RUSSIANS TEAR ANOTHER GAP IN GERMAN LINES

Whip 14 Divisions; Nazis Retreat.

LONDON, March 11 [Saturday]—(AP).—Moscow announced yesterday that the Red army had opened a third great offensive in the Ukraine and sent 14 Nazi divisions into such headlong retreat that they abandoned all their equipment—including 1,100 mired tanks and big guns. Twenty thousand Germans were killed, the Russians said.

The new offensive, heading south in the middle of the southern front, broke thru on a 109 mile line. It overran 300 populated places, including the pivotal stronghold of Uman, and resulted in the capture of 2,500 Germans.

Gain 25 to 44 Miles.

This third drive already has rolled forward from 25 to 44 miles in five days, thus setting ablaze the entire Russian southern front along a curving battle line more than 500 miles long. It joined offensives already under way to the east above the Black sea ports of Nikolaev and Kherson and to the west in the region of Tarnopol in Poland.

The Germans were retreating on each of the three big fronts as the Red army mounted a supreme effort to throw them back into Rumania and Poland or cut them to pieces if they should elect to make a stand in the Ukraine.

The latest drive directed by Marshal Ivan S. Konev, commander of the second Ukrainian front, was pushing south toward Bessarabia from the top of the German salient into the Dnieper bend.

Fight Inside Tarnopol.

Malinovsky's troops occupied 150 more communities in the area west of Krivoi Rog.

Nazis Admit Loss.

His army had rolled thru wide gaps in German lines to a point 40 miles north of Nikolaev and appeared to be curling around a large pocket along the Black sea which has Kherson on its eastern extremity.

Stalin's announcement of the drive by Konev's forces came only a few hours after the Germans broadcast a bulletin saying they had "abandoned" Uman "during heavy fighting."

The city had been a focal point of German resistance in south Russia since shortly after the fall of Kiev last fall. It has a population of 44,000 and is located in a hilly sector of the western Ukraine, 25 miles from the Russian Bug river.

Six Cities Threatened.

The Uman offensive began last Monday, the order of the day indicated, simultaneously with Malinovsky's attack from Krivoi Rog in the east. Both of these drives began a day after Zhukov opened the great battle of southern Russia with a strong offensive from Shepetovka which now has reached Tarnopol.

From the southeastern corner of pre-war Poland to the mouth of the Dnieper, the Germans were being pounded back and six important cities were threatened—Tarnopol, Proskurov, Vinnitsa, Odessa, Nikolaev, and Kherson.

U. S. Invaders Seal Off Japs in New Britain

ALLIED HDQ., Southwest Pacific, March 11 [Saturday].—(AP).—United States marines captured Talasea airdrome Wednesday and then wheeled north to occupy the town the following day, thus cutting in two the Willaumez peninsula of north New Britain which they invaded Monday.

Headquarters today reported the successes which firmly implanted Gen. MacArthur's forces more than 100 miles east of their Cape Gloucester holdings and within 170 miles of bomb ravaged Rabaul.

Capture Traps Japs.

The occupation of Talasea trapped any Japanese caught on the northern tip of the narrow land strip on the northern coast.

In the invaded Admiralty Islands north of New Britain, American cavalrymen have pushed 3½ miles northwest of captured Momote airdrome on Los Negros. Japanese planes strafed the sector without effect.

Liberator bombers raided islets fringing the northern coasts of Los Negros and the larger enemy held Island of Manus on Wednesday.

Rabaul Raided Again.

The same day a sizable force of planes from the Solomons dropped 134 tons of bombs on buildings and piers at Rabaul, whose six air fields sent up no interceptors. One raider was lost to ground fire.

In another action on the borders of the Bismarck sea, Americans moving west of Saidor, New Guinea, toward Madang achieved steady progress. Japanese planes ineffectually bombed them Tuesday night.

Near Dutch New Guinea, Catalina planes bombed shipping, causing one cargo vessel to be beached.

Parliament to Congressmen: 'Come See Us'

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—The United States congress will be invited to send a delegation of representatives of all political parties to Westminster this spring to "promote closer association" with the British parliament, it was announced tonight.

It was taken for granted that the invitation will be accepted and that the chosen senators and representatives will arrive soon. The invitation was hailed in the press as an outstanding event and as a guarantee of close Anglo-American cooperation in the future.

Will Hold Joint Session.

Unlike congress, which has twice invited Prime Minister Churchill to address its members, the parliament will not allow the congressmen to speak on the floor of the house. A special joint meeting of members of the house of lords and the house of commons probably will be held in one of the halls of the parliament building at which both American and British speakers, including Churchill, will be heard.

The visitors will see parliament at work, it was stated, and probably will be received by King George VI. The visit is to last several weeks.

Called Momentous Event.

According to the Daily Telegraph, the visit will mark "a momentous event in world affairs." By it, the newspaper added, "the fact that a singleness of purpose and a new comradeship has been attained is declared to the world and the determination that Anglo-American coöperation shall continue is made manifest."

Sumner Doubts She'll Be Invited.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Rep. Sumner [R., Ill.] said tonight that she doubted that the British parliament would invite her with other congressmen to visit England.

She said she had heard a member of parliament is planning to propose that a group from the American congress, including some women, be invited to England for a first hand examination of what the British are doing in the war and how their government functions.

Asked if she would accept a bid, Miss Sumner replied, laughing, "I don't think I would be invited."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—American and British warships will be turned over to the Russian navy in satisfaction of soviet war time claims on the Italian fleet, it was said today in informed reports, which apparently were borne out by statements from President Roosevelt, who said he and Prime Minister Churchill were in agreement on plans for meeting Marshal Stalin's claims.

The recent suggestion that a third of the captured vessels be turned over to Stalin drew a swift protest from Premier Badoglio of Italy, who negotiated the Italian surrender.

It was recognized here and in London that the surrender to Stalin of Italian vessels, which are being operated for the allies by their Italian crews, might injure the allied campaign in Italy by giving the Italian people a serious grievance.

Both Right, Says F. D. R.

Striving to calm the ruffled waters, Mr. Roosevelt today emphasized that what he had said on March 3 was correct; that what Churchill told the house of commons yesterday also was correct, and that there is no controversy.

Mr. Roosevelt said that key words in his original statement had been omitted by a lot of people, thus precipitating the controversy. He had said in his original statement that consideration was being given to putting roughly one-third of the Italian fleet or its equivalent at the disposal of the Russians. He described "or the equivalent" as the key words of his statement.

Asked about reports that the Italian fleet would remain in the Mediterranean and that Russia would get the one-third "equivalent" in American and British ships, Mr. Roosevelt said that anything he might say on the subject would violate military security, so he could not discuss the disposition of individual ships.

Tells of Division Plan.

Churchill told the commons yesterday that no change is contemplated in the present arrangement under which Italian crews are operating captured Italian ships against Germany and that the ultimate disposal of the ships might not be settled until after the war.

He acknowledged that there had been some discussion on the division of the fleet, with emphasis on reënforcement of the soviet navy either from the American or British fleets.

Because of the Italian protest, it was widely believed here that the American navy, tho fighting a two ocean war, will contribute the bulk of the vessels required to meet the Russian claim.

A number of members of congress denounced the proposal because its demand on the American navy would handicap the war in the Pacific still further.

About 100 Italian ships, including 5 battleships, 27 destroyers, 19 submarines, 8 cruisers, and an aircraft carrier, were surrendered last September to Gen. Eisenhower, then Mediterranean commander, who acted on behalf of Britain, Russia, and the United States.

Turks Upset Plans.

It was contemplated at one time that one-third of the Italian fleet would be transferred to the soviets for the rest of the war. The expectation then was that Turkey would join the allied cause as a belligerent, the Germans would be cleared from their island bases at the Mediterranean entrance to the Dardanelles, and the ships could be moved into the Black sea where Russia could make use of them.

The prospect of Turkish belligerency has diminished, however, and it appears the Russians could best use the additional sea power on convoy routes to northern ports.

The Italian ships were not designed for operation in cold seas, hence American or British ships would be better suited to this use. The chances are that most of the ships the Russians receive will be of American origin.

THE FOUR HORSEMEN

Joan Manners Sobs Story of Love for Child

Washington, D. C., March 10 [Special].—Joan Manners, former British movie star, testified today before a capacity audience in federal District court that her former husband, John Langan, is not the father of her 11 year old daughter and that he "never had relations with me at any time."

Miss Manners denied both in direct testimony and cross-examination that she ever had lived with Langan. She said she had shared the same house with him in Los Angeles for 12 days but hastened to add that he "couldn't possibly be the father of Joan," her daughter.

The former actress was the only witness during today's hearing in the custody battle over the child, which began in California more than five years ago. The girl, who has been living with Langan for two years, was placed in the custody of her mother on Feb. 25 by a Maryland court, but on the same day was "kidnaped" by Langan.

Langan Claims Parentage.

Langan, a former Hollywood director, asserts he is young Joan's father, and a blood test showed he could be, But the girl's mother says a Hollywood script writer named John Manners is Joan's father. Altho she married Langan twice "for technical purposes," she said she never considered herself really wedded to him.

Miss Manners, sobbing uncontrolably at times, told how Joan failed to recognize her last fall after a two year separation. She said the incident occurred at Bethesda, Md., where Joan was living with Langan.

"I got out of the car when I saw Joannie playing on the lawn," the former actress related. "I knelt down beside her and said, 'You're Joan, aren't you?' She smiled a little half smile and said 'Yes.' I asked her if she recognized me, and she shook her head, 'No.'

"I told her, 'Joan, I'm your mother.'"

Weeping Brings Recess.

Here she faltered and succumbed to her weeping. Justice T. Alan Goldsborough recessed court and Miss Manners left the room for five minutes. When she resumed the stand, she told of Joan's having said to her, "You can't make me love you, no matter what you do."

"I guarantee," Miss Manners told Langan's attorney, "that in 30 days I can make that child happy, and want to stay with me. Maybe in 10 days—maybe two."

Justice Goldsborough recessed the trial until Wednesday afternoon after instructing the opposing attorneys to direct their attention to the questions of who and where is John Manners, and were Langan and Miss Manners legally married in 1938, or was it a "trick" as she claims.

The court also told the lawyers to seek an answer to the question of whether Miss Manners sought a financial settlement from her secrecy on alleged indiscretions involving Neil Hamilton, the actor.

Ready to Seize Corn

The war food administration in Washington, D. C., yesterday drafted an order requiring that the bulk of the country's corn moving to market be set aside for the government. The directive, expected to be issued in a few days, is intended to prevent possible closing of processing plants using corn to manufacture essential food and industrial products. Market receipts of corn are running below processors' needs. Details on page 19.

6 PERSONS DIE IN HOTEL FIRE IN RICHMOND, VA.

Richmond, Va., March 11 [Saturday]—(AP).—Fire damaged the three top floors of the block long, fashionable Jefferson hotel here early today, causing at least six deaths. A dozen more guests were taken to hospitals.

One of the first identified dead was State Senator Aubrey Weaver, long prominent in state political circles, who had been living at the Jefferson while attending the current session of the legislature.

Firemen continued to search the smoke filled upper floors. The fire was reported under control an hour after it broke out at about midnight.

Many guests at the hotel, one of Richmond's largest, were rescued by firemen thru windows.

Army to Give New Planes to Civil Air Lines

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—New transport planes to relieve overcrowded schedules of domestic air lines will be released shortly by the army, the war department disclosed today. It also announced it had relinquished part of its war time control over air lines to the civil aeronautics board, including the allocation of the new planes and the reassignment of transports taken over by the army early in the war.

The army in December, 1941, took over 175 transport planes from the air lines, 49 per cent of the total then in service. Of these, 21 have been returned by the army in the last several months, a CAB official said today.

Number Is Undisclosed.

Army officials would not disclose the number of new planes to be released, nor when they would be available.

"They'll be coming along, tho," one officer said.

The CAB said it was swamped with requests from air lines for more planes. The Douglas DC-3s, with a passenger capacity of 21, are carrying an average of 19 or 20 passengers traveling on military priorities, according to the CAB. Additional planes would enable the air lines to provide more seats for the public, now clamoring at their ticket windows, it was said.

Planes made available by the army will be allocated on a basis of traffic volume, according to the CAB. It was emphasized that only critical bottlenecks could be relieved because at least 300 additional planes are needed to satisfy the demands for air passenger and cargo service.

CAB Takes Over Schedules.

The war department also returned to the CAB the responsibility for determining routes, schedules, stops and type of service performed by the airlines. Such decisions, however, will remain subject to war department redetermination if necessary "for reasons of military necessity."

The war department will retain all other aviation powers conferred on it by the President shortly after Pearl Harbor, including control of air priorities.

COBB'S VIEWS ON LIFE AND DEATH TOLD IN LETTER

Paducah, Ky., March 10 [Special].—A humorist to the last, Irvin S. Cobb, the noted author who died in New York today, left with his home town friends here a final testament of his pungent wit and ironic philosophy in the form of a 1,500 word letter written last December and marked, "Not to be opened until my death."

When his death became known here, the two men to whom he had entrusted the letter—Fred G. Neuman, his biographer, and Edwin J. Paxton Sr., publisher of the Paducah Sun-Democrat — opened the sealed envelope and disclosed the great phrase-maker's final remarks. They comprise a legacy of typical Cobbism concerning death, religion, and prospects of after life, all expressed in the flippant tone of which the document's author was a master.

Text of Cobb's Last Letter.

The text of the letter follows:

"To whom it may concern:

"In death I desire that no one shall look upon my face and once more I charge my family, as already and repeatedly I have done, that they shall put on none of the bogus habiliments of so-called mourning. Folds of black crepe never ministered to the memory of the departed; they only made the wearers unhappy and self-conscious.

Done with After-Dinner Speaking.

"I ask that my body be wrapped in a plain sheet or cloth and placed in an inexpensive container and immediately cremated — without any special formality or ceremony. If anybody tries to insert me into one of those dismal numbers run up by the undertaker's dressmaking department, I'll come back an haunt 'em. Nor do I crave to make my mortal exit in a tailcoat with white tie and artificial pearl studs.

"I'll be done with after-dinner speaking forever, so why dispatch me hence in the regalia of the craft? When a man died with his sins, let the sins die with the man. That's what I say and it sums up such speculations as I might ever have had touching on the future state, if any. For me a suitable epitaph would be: 'Anyhow, He left here.' But never mind that. It might offend some of the pious and I'd hate to go on giving offense after I've quit living.

"When convenience suits, I ask that the plain canister—nothing fancy there, please—containing my ashes shall be taken to Paducah, and that at the proper planting season a hole shall be dug in our family lot or elsewhere at Oak Grove and a dogwood tree planted there and the ashes strewn in the hole to fertilize the tree roots. Should the tree live that will be monument enough for me.

Slab of Limestone.

"But should my surviving relatives desire to mark the spot further, I make so bold as to suggest that they use either a slab of plain Kentucky limestone set flat in the kindly earth, or a rugged natural boulder of southern granite bearing a small bronze plate with my name on it and, if it seems pertinent, the year of my birth and the year of my death, which appears to be the custom, altho I could never understand why a gravestone should carry mention of the only two events in the career of the deceased with which he had absolutely nothing to do—unless he committed suicide.

"Also on the bronze tablet or the stone slab, as the case may be, and provided it doesn't cost too much, I'd like to have inscribed certain lines from the epitaph which Robert Louis Stevenson wrote for himself, to wit, as follows:

'These be the lines you 'grave for me:
Here I lie where I long to be.
And the sailor home from the sea.'

"I'm quoting from memory. If I'm wrong will somebody kindly correct me?

De Valera Defends Neutral Policy.

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—The United States publicly accused Ireland tonight of affording a base for axis spies endangering the approaching allied invasion of Europe. The Irish government replied it was taking effective anti-espionage measures and refused an appeal to expel German and Japanese diplomats from the country.

Premier De Valera.

The state department announced that the request for expulsion of the enemy officials, held to be leaders in the spy ring, was transmitted to Prime Minister De Valera at Dublin Feb. 21.

U. S. Lives at Stake.

The note, presented by Minister David Gray, reminded De Valera of the vast military preparations now under way in Britain and Northern Ireland, where America has bases. It declared it is "vital that information from which may be deduced their nature and direction should not reach the enemy."

"Not only the success of the operation but the lives of thousands of United States soldiers are at stake," the document added.

"Should American lives be lost it will not be thru any indifference or neglect of its duty on part of this state [Ireland]," De Valera said in his reply, the text of which was issued by the Irish legation here.

De Valera also said he had received the assurance of the American government that it "does not contemplate" using military measures—presumably invasion of Ireland—because of rejection of the request that the Irish eject axis officials.

Cites Radio Sending Set.

Specific evidence of enemy espionage operations within Ireland was given in the state department's assertion that [1] the German legation in Dublin, at least until recently, had possessed a radio sending set, and [2] German planes had dropped into Ireland two parachutists equipped with radio sending apparatus.

While acknowledging Ireland's good faith in its efforts to maintain strict neutrality, the United States said it actually is impossible to determine "with certainty" the extent of the enemy's Irish based espionage against American shipping and troops.

It then cited the fact that German and Japanese diplomatic and consular officers in Dublin still enjoy their customary immunity.

"Axis representatives in every country use these special privileges and immunities as a cloak for espionage activities against the united nations," the note said.

Suggests Break in Relations.

The Irish government was specifically requested to force the recall to their homelands of the enemy officials. The American note expressed the hope that this would be accomplished by a complete break in relations between Ireland and the axis.

De Valera retorted that forcing removal of diplomatic officials "is universally recognized as the first step toward war." He added that the Irish government "could not entertain the American proposal without a complete betrayal of their democratic trust. . . . Irish neutrality represents the united will of the people and the parliament."

On the charge that the German minister had a radio transmitter, De Valera said he had been "debarred from using it" for a long time and that for "some months" it had been in the custody of the Irish government.

Two 'Chutists Arrested.

"As regards the two parachutists dropped in Ireland last December," the Irish reply said, "they were apprehended within a few hours. Two other agents dropped here since the war began met a similar fate. The fifth, who arrived during the first year of the war, remained at large until Dec. 31, 1941, but the police were aware of his presence here almost from the first moment of

In commenting on Ireland's counter-espionage activities, De Valera said that including the captured parachutists a total of 10 foreign and two Irish nationals are now held in Irish prisons because they were "suspected of intentions to engage in espionage."

Britain Supports U. S.

"These are the facts," he said, "and it is doubtful if any other country can show such a record of care and successful vigilance."

He also disclosed that the British government had officially given support to the United States in its efforts to have the axis officials ousted.

"The Irish government does not wish to comment on this," he said, "except to remark that it is perhaps not known to the American government that the feelings of the Irish people toward Britain have undergone a considerable change precisely because Britain has not attempted to violate our neutrality.

Safeguards U. S. Interests.

"The Irish government feels sure that the American government would agree that it would be regrettable if any incident now should alter that happy result.

"The Irish government is therefore safeguarding, and will continue to safeguard, the interests of the United States, but it must in all the circumstances protect the neutrality of the Irish state and the democratic way of life of the Irish people.

"Its attitude will continue to be determined not by fear of any measures which could be employed against it but by good will and the fundamental friendship existing between the two peoples."

America's Argument.

The American note which was presented to De Valera said:

"Your excellency will recall that in your speech at Cork delivered on the 14th of December, 1941, you expressed sentiments of special friendship for the American people on the occasion of their entry into the present war and closed by saying, 'The policy of the state remains unchanged. We can only be a friendly neutral.'

"As you will also recall, extracts of this speech were transmitted to the President by your minister in Washington. The President, while conveying his appreciation for this expression of friendship, stated his confidence that the Irish government and the Irish people, whose freedom is at stake no less than ours, would know how to meet their responsibilities in this situation.

"It has become increasingly apparent that despite the declared desire of the Irish government that its neutrality should not operate in favor of either of the belligerents, it has in fact operated and continues to operate in favor of the axis powers and against the united nations on whom your security and the maintenance of your national economy depend.

Points to Geographical Position.

"One of the gravest and most inequitable results of this situation is the opportunity for highly organized espionage which the geographical position of Ireland affords the axis and denies the united nations. Situated as you are in close proximity to Britain, divided only by an intangible boundary from Northern Ireland, where are situated important American bases, with continuous traffic to and from both countries, axis agents enjoy almost unrestricted opportunity for bringing military information of vital importance from Great Britain and Northern Ireland into Ireland and from there transmitting it by various routes and methods to Germany.

"No opportunity corresponding to this is open to the united nations, for the axis has no military dispositions which may be observed from Ireland. . . .

Charges Axis Exploits Conditions.

"It would be naive to assume that axis agencies have not exploited conditions to the full in Ireland as they have in other countries.

"As you know from common report, united nations military operations are in preparation in both Britain and Northern Ireland. It is vital that information from which may be deduced their nature and direction should not reach the enemy. . . .

"We request therefore, that the Irish government take appropriate steps for the recall of German and Japanese representatives in Ireland."

33D DIVISION VETS PRESENT $1,000 TO HELP LUXEMBURG

C. Eugene Dillon, 7417 Paxton av., president of the 33d division War Veterans' association, whose members recall the World War I. hospitality of the little duchy of Luxemburg, last night presented a check for $1,000 to Fred Gilson, chairman of the executive committee of the American Committee for Luxemburg Relief. The money was raised at a party Jan. 29. Gilson, chancellor of the Luxemburg consulate in Chicago, said there are 10,000 Luxemburgers in the city. Present at the presentation in the Morrison hotel were Harold S. Springston, vice president of the veterans' association and chairman for the recent party; William L. Kelley, Chicago attorney, treasurer of the veterans, and Nicholas Molitor of the Evanston State Bank and Trust company, treasurer of the relief committee.

George Depasta, minister of Greece in Canada and former Greek representative here, calling at Red Cross headquarters yesterday, told James B. Forgan, Chicago chapter chairman, that Greeks should appreciate the Red Cross perhaps more than any other national group because of the aid it gave after the occupation of their country by the axis powers.

NEW DEAL 'PIED PIPERS' BLASTED BY REP. JOHNSON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Rep. Calvin D. Johnson [R., Ill.] tonight had a kind word for old fashioned Democrats but a few new phrases for the New Deal. In a radio address, he said:

"I do not charge the follies of the New Deal to true Democrats, altho many have acquiesced by their silence to certain of its acts.

"The history of the New Deal is brief and shadowy and its record toward our Constitution one of abrogation and disregard. I ask how much longer are we to follow these crystal gazing pied pipers who lead us downward toward bankruptcy? When members of congress criticize such activities, certain crackpots call us Fascists and charge us with hindering the war effort."

He described New Dealers as those "starry-eyed planners, those dreamers who, with your money, promise a utopia to the entire world."

Touching on the soldier vote issue, Johnson said if the army could deliver turkeys for the soldiers' Christmas dinners and could ship 40,000 tons of Christmas mail overseas, then it could easily deliver all the state ballots, weighing approximately 250 tons.

FINDS IRELAND NO LONGER FEARS AN ATTACK BY U. S.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 10.—The attitude of the Irish government toward the American request to sever diplomatic relations with the axis when this correspondent was in Dublin a week ago was that it could not be done. When I left the crisis was understood to have passed and the situation was said to have eased.

I was assured by an unimpeachable source that Ireland had no intention of taking any step which might conceivably involve her in the war.

So determined were the Irish at that time to maintain strict neutrality that it was said the government would ask German and Japanese diplomatic representatives to depart only on the condition that Americans and British also would leave.

Irish Fear Bombing.

The Irish believe that if their government cut off diplomatic relations with the axis, the Nazis would bomb Dublin off the map. Twice the Irish have been bombed by the Germans to remind them what would happen if they abandoned their neutrality, Ireland's lack of an air force, anti-aircraft guns, and inadequate fire fighting and water supply system render her very vulnerable to bombing, residents of Dublin said.

After the Americans presented their note to Ireland on Feb. 24 Irish troops were given a "stand to" order and were moved into defensive positions. Artillery and ammunition were rushed to gun sites and all military forces were put on the alert.

These preparations gave rise to reports that the Americans were about to invade Ireland from their bases in Northern Ireland and in the face of the government's air tight press censorship rumors spread. There were reports of border clashes and that an American fleet was standing off the ports while the government pondered an ultimatum from Washington. None of these reports was true.

Refers to Evil Rumors.

Robert Brennan, the Irish minister in Washington, asked the state department if the request to oust the axis diplomats was an ultimatum. The answer was "no." On March 1 Prime Minister De Valera referred in parliament to the evil rumors sweeping the country and assured the public there was no cause for uneasiness.

The same day he met with the defense council after which the situation was reported eased. Rumors that Gen. R. Mulcahy, leader of the opposition party, and other prominent figures had been arrested were without foundation. Mulcahy is a member of the defense council.

After the initial nervousness the Irish felt the country would not be invaded by the United States for several reasons. One was a belief that in view of the potential second front the allies would not want to launch diversionary military operations even against a minor power.

Restates Neutrality Stand.

The Irish also felt that President Roosevelt would not want to start anything against a small country in an election year, particularly in view of the administration's declarations that the war is being fought to uphold the rights of small nations.

In a speech at Cavan, Feb. 27, De Valera restated his position on neutrality and declared it was the policy of the whole people and every party and organization. Probably 90 per cent of the Irish are against any action which might involve the country in the war.

Sample of a federal ballot, prepared by the Republican national committee to show that a soldier in using it would not have the names of the federal candidates before him and would have no opportunity to vote for state and local officers. Other drawbacks were set forth by the committee.

Sample Brings Out Federal Ballot Flaws, G. O. P. Avers

How the "bob-tailed" ballot for soldiers provided for in the national administration's bill would look on paper is shown with a sample prepared by the Republican national committee, which yesterday listed six so-called flaws in the ballot. The sample carries no names, only blank spaces in which the faraway service man may write his choices for President, Vice President, senator, and representative, acting on such information as he may have on hand.

There is no opportunity for the soldier receiving only this ballot to vote for governor or other state officers. If he is a resident of Illinois or one of the other states that have made special provision for him to vote by mail, he will have to get an absentee ballot from his county clerk to exercise his full rights.

Six Weaknesses Listed.

This situation is the first listed of six flaws in the Green-Lucas bill cited by the Republican committee in a brief comment accompanying the ballot form. These objections are stated as follows:

"It [the "bob-tailed" ballot] denies the service man and woman the same participation in the November election that the civilian here at home enjoys.

"Voters in the armed forces would be partially disfranchised in that they could not participate in state, county, and local elections. They would not be permitted to vote for any of the 34 governors who will be elected in November.

Ballot Carries No Names.

"The ballot is clearly illegal and unconstitutional, ignores the requirements of state election laws and therefore could not be legally counted by election judges in many states.

SOLDIERS WANT STATE BALLOTS, SAYS AUTHORITY

Rudolph G. Hillebrand of the citizenship department of the board of election commissioners told 100 members of the Women's City club yesterday that fighting men prefer state ballots because "they have a great deal of interest in their local politics and want a voice in the election of state officials."

Hillebrand, invited to address the club on the changes in the new state law on absentee voting, revealed that if a soldier who had mailed in his absentee ballot died before the election day, his vote would not be counted. Further, he said, if a ballot should arrive after the polls had closed, the vote could not be counted, altho it would be saved for six months, along with the rest of the ballots.

Under the new law, any soldier can apply for an absentee ballot not more than 100 days and not less than five days before an election. He makes application to the county clerk, who forwards his request to the board of election commissioners.

SUFFERS HEART ATTACK.

Mrs. Mary Bouley, 51, of 1668 Division st., was taken to County hospital yesterday after she suffered a heart attack in a restaurant at 33 W. Madison st., where she is employed as a bus girl.

GILLETTE TO RUN AGAIN, BUT WON'T BACK ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Sen. Gillette [D., Iowa] coupled an announcement today that he will seek reelection with a statement reiterating his opposition to a fourth term nomination for President Roosevelt.

He told a reporter he is supporting some one else for the Democratic Presidential nomination, but declined to name him.

"What my party does at a nominating convention," Gillette added, "is another story. I do not have to yield my right to support the party nominee for President, Vice President, sheriff—or even senator.

"I am against a fourth term nomination for President Roosevelt or any one else. I wouldn't even support my own father for a fourth term nomination."

Fought Third Term.

While the senator fought a third term nomination prior to the 1940 convention, his friends say he supported President Roosevelt in the subsequent general election.

Often an outspoken critic of the administration, Gillette was marked for a "purge" in the 1938 primary election when the New Deal forces backed Otha D. Wearin for the Democratic nomination. Gillette won.

Commenting on his decision to run again despite frequent expressions of a wish to retire, the senator said the Iowa Democratic organization left no other choice for him.

"Let the People Decide."

"I have repeatedly asserted my purpose to retire from congressional service," Gillette wired Jake More, Iowa Democratic chairman, in reply to another telegram urging him to reconsider. "Your wire states that 24,000 petitioners insist that my public duty is to continue in senate service. All right. Let the people make the decision."

Gillette said he lay awake for more than four hours this morning pondering his decision.

MRS. ROOSEVELT DENIES KNOWING 4TH TERM PLAN

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, March 10 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, asked at a press conference today whether the President intended to seek a fourth term, replied:

"I never talk to the President about those things. I don't think a man's family has any right to influence him in things like that, which are truly important and which must be decided from circumstances at that time.

"I have no idea whether the President will run for a fourth term and I doubt very much that the President knows."

SEIZE BURGLAR BEFORE HE CAN FALL INTO TRAP

Oak Pk. Cops Recover Girl's War Bonds.

He is James Anderson Jr., 312 S. Maple av., Oak Park, a sophomore in Oak Park High school, who admitted stealing $250 in war bonds from the apartment of Miss Claire E. Pelland, 22, of 1116 Washington blvd., Oak Park, a stenographer, on March 8.

Leaves Note Next Day.

The next day he left a note in her mail box telling her she could get the bonds back by taking a Lake st. elevated train to the Kedzie av. station at 11 o'clock last night, carrying $80 in an envelope, and wearing a white gardenia in her lapel. The note warned her not to notify police, but she did.

Accompanied by a friend, Miss Dorothy Dahlgren of Washington, who is visiting her, Miss Pelland left her apartment last night and started for the elevated station at Marion st. She carried two long hat pins. Miss Dahlgren carried a rolling pin in her handbag.

Four Policemen on Job.

Detective Harvey Thor followed them on foot. Lt. Fremont Nester and Detective Wesley Matters followed Thor in an automobile. Detective Clarence Mau waited at Oak Park station to board the same train.

Three blocks from Miss Pelland's home, however, police noticed a young man obviously following the girls. They seized him. It was Anderson. They found the war bonds on his person. He confessed.

Gets 3 Year Sentence for Refusing Army Call

Benjamin J. Dunajski, 29, of 2427 W. 139th st., Blue Island, a war worker, was sentenced to three years in prison yesterday by Judge William J. Campbell in federal court for refusing to report for induction into the army, even in a noncombatant capacity.

MICHIGAN G. O. P. FAVORS DEWEY, SURVEY SHOWS

Expect Delegates Will Be Uninstructed.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lansing, Mich., March 10.—Michigan, such is the present prospect, will send an uninstructed delegation of 41, headed by Gov. Harry F. Kelly, to the Republican national convention in Chicago, June 26. It will not be committed to any one in advance, officials declared, it will not be susceptible to high pressure salesmanship or bedlamite gallery demonstrations, and its purpose will be to vote for the best candidate available.

"I believe we shall send to Chicago an uninstructed delegation in every sense of the word" said Gov. Kelly today.

Meanwhile, explorations into sentiment in western Michigan from Benton Harbor to Grand Rapids, and reports here from Republicans in touch with all quarters of the state, indicate that Michigan's favorite among the Presidential possibilities is Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, by a long, long shot.

Warren Well Liked.

In Grand Rapids and Lansing, one runs into a current remark everywhere, that if the convention were held tomorrow, the Republican national ticket would be Dewey and Warren [Gov. Earl Warren of California]. Dewey is a Michigan native son. If he were to throw the blankets off, the politicians say, the nomination would drop in his lap.

Wendell Willkie's stock is said to be still slipping. What strength he has is reported to be in the Detroit area and some of the other manufacturing centers. Lt. Comdr. Harold Stassen, ex-governor of Minnesota, appears to have negligible support. Gov. John Bricker of Ohio, after his address in Detroit early in the year, is growing in support.

Gen. MacArthur has admirers everywhere but most politicians here say that as a Presidential possibility he is held back by an opinion that he could not get the nomination. One hears this in Grand Rapids, home of Sen. Vandenberg, head of the MacArthur movement.

McKay Embattled Again.

Frank D. McKay of Grand Rapids, Republican national committeeman, is the center of a fight which just now has the headlines. For more than a quarter of a century McKay has been a Republican leader, and western Michigan has been his bailiwick. He has been fought for years, especially by groups in Wayne county [Detroit]. This year, the old feud is being renewed, and his opponents are seeking to lift his scalp as national committeeman.

Friends of McKay speak of it as an effort by Wayne county to dominate the state. But this time it appears to have spread into more of the rural districts. Sen. Ferguson has opposed his reelection as committeeman in June in Chicago, and two days ago Gov. Kelly in a statement addressed to the 83 Republican county chairmen, aligned himself with the groups seeking to retire McKay.

McKay's friends here and in Grand Rapids say fights are nothing new to him and that he has a knack of surviving.

Points to Detroit Losses.

At Miami, Fla., yesterday McKay, just back from a day's fishing in the Everglades, said by telephone it was much ado about nothing, and that as yet he has not announced himself as a candidate for any office. This was interpreted by his opponents as indicating he may not run. McKay said he would have more to say however, on his return to Grand Rapids, probably next week.

"They speak of party unity" he said, "while these Grosse Pointe debutantes go running around tearing the party to pieces. Party success? Why, they have been losing Detroit for some time now."

McKay has been credited as largely instrumental for the 1940 campaign, that landed Michigan in the Republican column. The county conventions March 20 will select delegates to the state convention to be held in Detroit April 20, at which the national delegates will be elected.

L. U. STAMBAUGH ENTERS DAKOTA RACE FOR SENATE

Fargo, N. D., March 10 [Special].—A four way race for the Republican nomination for United States senator from North Dakota in the June 27 primary developed here today when Lynn U. Stambaugh, Fargo attorney and national commander of the American Legion in 1941, tossed his hat into the ring.

A newcomer in North Dakota politics, Stambaugh's name will be on the ballot with at least three veteran political warhorses, Sen Nye, the incumbent; Rep. Burdick, who this week received the indorsement of the Nonpartisan league, and A. C. Townley, founder of the league.

Democrats to Hold First Campaign Meeting Today

The first of a series of conferences on Democratic campaigning will be held for the 10th congressional district today in the Orrington hotel, Evanston. Sheriff Mulcahy and William J. Tuohy, candidate for state's attorney, will discuss prospects with Curtis MacDougall, candidate for congress, and the township committeemen. There will be similar meetings later for other congressional districts of Cook county.

RULES SOLDIER CAN SEEK OFFICE IF NOMINATED

Prior Political Work Banned by Army.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—President Roosevelt today announced the army and navy had evolved an agreement at his direction under which regular army and navy personnel may accept a nomination for public office if it is tendered them.

The agreement prohibits members of the military services from participating in any political campaign unless they receive nominations thru no activity of their own.

Barred from Conventions.

"No member of the land or naval forces while on active duty, will use his official authority or influence for the purpose of interfering with an election or affecting the course or outcome thereof," the order stated. "Such persons, while on active duty, retain the right to vote, and to express their opinions privately and informally on all political subjects and candidates, and to become candidates for public office as permitted in this regulation.

"They will not be permitted to participate in any way in political management or political campaigns. The foregoing prohibition includes, among other things, activity at political conventions or on political committees, participation in political campaigns, the making of political speeches, the publication of articles or any other public activity looking to the influencing of an election or the solicitation of votes for himself or others."

Can't Seek Office.

Evidently with Gen. MacArthur in mind, Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that the agreement, which was signed by Secretaries Knox and Stimson, was not directed at any one person and that it clarified past regulations. He said he did not think a controversy could be made out of it.

The agreement was widely studied in political circles because Gen. MacArthur has been regarded as a possible Republican candidate. Under the terms of the order, MacArthur could not seek the nomination, but could accept it if he were nominated thru the activities of his supporters. If nominated he could campaign for election.

ARMY ORDERED NOT TO SELECT YANKS' READING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—The army war college library has been ordered to cease recommending magazine articles for reading by soldiers, following charges made by Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] that the library had selected an article smearing Gen. MacArthur, Secretary of War Stimson told Vandenberg today.

Stimson disclosed the action in a letter to Sen. Vandenberg, in which the secretary also revealed that the list of recommended articles—including the MacArthur story singled out for attack by Vandenberg in a senate speech yesterday — had been compiled by Dr. Luther H. Evans, chief assistant librarian of the library of congress.

Evans' immediate superior, Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress and formerly chief of the office of war information, was accused in the senate a year ago of disseminating at government expense, thru the library of congress, interventionist doctrines of the New Deal administration.

Article Belittles General.

In his senate speech yesterday, Vandenberg revealed that the February reading list of the army war college library had recommended an article in the January American Mercury entitled "Gen. MacArthur—Fact and Legend," written by John McArten. The article belittled the military accomplishments of the hero of the Philippine defeat and charged that he exaggerated accounts of the Southwest Pacific forces to enhance his personal standing.

Stimson, in his letter, said there had been "no intent to imply war department approval" of the magazine articles selected,

Content with Action.

"I hardly need assure you of my complete agreement with your statement that 'the war department must be [scrupulously] careful to avoid the official distribution of partisan material to the army,' either at this time or any other," Stimson wrote. "I have directed that the list be eliminated from future issues of the library bulletin."

Sen. Vandenberg said he was content with Stimson's "forthright action" and that he considered the incident closed.

SMEAR VICTIMS DEMAND RADIO TIME FOR REPLY

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10. — The radio industry was warned in the house today that it will stand convicted of conspiring to destroy free speech and parliamentary government if it does not take steps to afford persons maligned on the air, an opportunity to answer attacks before the same radio audience.

Rep. Martin Dies.

Broadcasters of the stripe of Walter Winchell, who specialize in false and malicious assaults, must be compelled to turn over their radio time to their victims, Rep. Dies [D., Tex.] told members, so that the same listeners may hear both sides of the case.

Radio Smears Increase.

The chairman of the house committee on un-American activities yesterday gave details of a widespread plot to undermine public confidence in congress. He named Winchell, John Roy Carlson, alias Derounian, and five other names who authored the smear publication "Under Cover"; Sidney Hillman's CIO political action committee, and the Communist dominated Lawyers guild, which has 800 members in key government posts, as the chief instigators.

Radio is being increasingly employed by the mud slingers, Dies said, and the broadcasting companies have in many instances refused to allot the same facilities to those attacked. He emphasized that the answer to a radio smear should be given to the same audience which heard the original slander.

Legislation will be introduced to carry out this objective, if the broadcasting companies refuse to work out a fair arrangement themselves, Dies announced. He predicted overwhelming majorities in both houses for such a bill.

"Congress and the American people will no longer tolerate the totalitarian practice of permitting the use of broadcasting facilities to tear down the character and reputations of 'innocent people,'" Dies said. If the companies are wise, they will take the initiative in working out a fair arrangement that will accord the maligned people the opportunity to be heard."

Asks Rayburn for Ruling.

Use of the Congressional Record in the smear conspiracy was brought up by Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], who asked Speaker Rayburn for a ruling on insertions by Sen. Guffey [D., Pa.] which, Rankin said, constituted "scurrilous and scandalous attacks on the entire membership of the house."

Rayburn said the house could not take action regarding a senator's actions and could only enforce rules governing its own members.

Rankin declared that radio is developing into "one of the most dangerous instruments used in the attacks upon congress. A short time ago we had Winchell strutting around in the uniform of a navy lieutenant commander, spreading the propaganda of the traitor, Carlson. Thru congressional action, he was given the choice of stripping off his uniform or getting into the war and, of course, took off his uniform. Now he denounces congress as 'the house of reprehensibles.'"

Beaten on Street

BARONESS DE ROTHSCHILD.

New York, March 10 (AP).—Baroness Alphonse de Rothschild, widow of Baron Alphonse Mayer de Rothschild of the European banking family, was beaten and robbed by a zoot suited Negro on Park av. last night, police disclosed today.

Members of the family reported she still was confined to bed in her Park av. home and was under a physician's care. They said she was thrown to the ground and struck on the head during the attack. Her purse, containing $35 in cash and alien registration papers, was taken, police said.

The baroness' screams attracted passers-by, who took her to a physician's office. The baroness, mother of two children, is the former Clarice Adelaide Montefiore, daughter of Edmund Sebag Montefiore, Jewish banker and member of a prominent English family. Her husband, an Austrian citizen who fled here in 1940 to escape the Nazis, died in 1942 at Bar Harbor, Me.

VOTE VANDALISM IN SERRITELLA'S WARD REPORTED

First violence in the primary campaign was reported yesterday to Police Commissioner Allman by Henry Pope Jr., founder of the Business Men's committee to halt election frauds, and Bernard S. Black, 1st ward leader and a candidate in the hotly contested fight for Republican ward committeeman.

Black has Gov. Green's backing against Committeeman Daniel A. Serritella, who repeatedly has been accused of bipartisan deals.

Black and Pope reported that windows in Black's headquarters at 254 W. 26th st. were broken Thursday night. Two bricks were found inside. One had passed thru a picture of Gov. Green affixed to a window.

The B. M. C. officials also complained that one of their precinct captains, John Zuccarello, 2643 S. Wells st., had received threats by telephone.

EACH ON HIS OWN, PLAN OF G. O. P. SLATE'S RIVALS

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

The last semblance of united opposition to the state-wide regular Republican organization ticket apparently vanished yesterday with Oscar E. Carlstrom's announcement that he will appear alone during most of his campaigning for the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomination against Gov. Green.

Carlstrom said he would open his campaign at Danville next Wednesday. The rally will be in behalf of his candidacy only. Other appearances scheduled by the former attorney general will be at Peoria, Quincy, Harrisburg, and other cities.

Carlstrom and two other anti-slate candidates filed their petitions in Springfield together Feb. 21. They were Deneen Watson, running against Richard J. Lyons for United States senator, and Lloyd C. Moody, who is opposing Atty. Gen. Barrett's bid for renomination. Watson said then that they would campaign together and that other independent candidates might join them.

Watson Makes Own Plans.

When Watson was apprised of Carlstrom's plans, he said he didn't know whether the others will share his speaking platforms. He said he will start campaigning more intensively about March 20.

Taylor Wilhelm and Walter Waite, running against C. F. Becker for the nomination for state treasurer, also are traveling apart from the others.

None of these independents has equaled the speaking schedule of State Treasurer William G. Stratton, who vows to visit every one of the 102 counties in Illinois. Stratton seeks the secretary of state nomination against the slate candidate, Arnold P. Benson, president pro tem of the state senate.

Stratton's new headquarters at 10 S. La Salle st. announced that the women's division of his campaign will be headed by Mrs. Edna E. Brinkman, president of the Hinsdale Women's Republican club.

Veterans Line Up for Benson.

Sen. Benson's backers announced that veterans of three wars are being organized in his support. Discharged soldiers of this war in joining with veterans of World War I. and the Spanish-American war in a committee headed by Joseph E. Novotny. Quarters in Springfield and in the La Salle hotel here are being opened by the group.

The John Ericsson Republican League of Illinois announced election of G. R. Johnson of Elburn to succeed County Commissioner William N. Erickson as president.

CHICAGO YANKS' LAMENT: NO BIG FIRES IN BRITAIN

Engineers Pepped Up for Hot Europe Jobs.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AN AMERICAN INVASION TRAINING BASE IN ENGLAND, March 10.—About the last thing most soldiers look forward to is a fire, but this afternoon I had an unusual experience sitting in wooden barracks and surrounded by a group of eager, grinning "fire fans" from Chicago or other midwestern places.

They are members of an engineer fire fighting platoon, first to be trained at a school at Camp Ponchartrain, La. When the invasion of western Europe begins they expect to get there fairly soon to protect supply dumps from fire. They are now doing the same job at this depot.

Today I arrived just too late to see a platoon race thru a narrow barracks door into waiting trucks to cover a boiler explosion. Perhaps it was just as well.

But the Fire Was Out.

"It was all out before we got there," lamented Pvt. Walter F. Bartylak of 4807 S. Seeley av., Chicago.

"They're always out before we get there," added Corp. Howard Zyburt of 5604 Leland av. "We haven't had a really good fire."

"There was a time when the security officer turned in an alarm from his quarters," said Corp. Leo Bakalarski of 6149 S. Damen av. "We thought he was just giving us a test. But he really had a chimney fire, only it was a little one."

The last few nights the boys have been kept awake by air alerts which deployed them in four sections at strategic points of the depot, but all they drew was no sleep. No bombs fell, and you got the idea from the conversation that these soldiers, who have not been thru raids, actually hoped for some incendiaries. Most of them, in civil life, were mechanics or truck drivers, like Pvt. Adam Maca of 2907 W. 25th pl., who regaled the group with his exploits as a Chicago Tribune truck driver.

Use Two Truck Types.

The platoon is equipped with two types of fire trucks. One is a pumper trailer made by the John Deere Wagon Works of Moline, Ill., pumping 500 gallons a minute and towed by a 1½ ton truck. A larger model, similar to a small civilian fire truck, carries 300 gallons of water, which is pumped by the same motor which runs the engine.

Their boast, according to Sgt. Guy Brown of Moline, who worked four years on tanks in the Rock Island arsenal, is that they can put water on any part of the depot five minutes faster than British national fire service teams, which also answer alarms.

"Only we can't use our siren," complained burly Pvt. Louis Zorich, of 8036 Yates av., Chicago. "We just drive fast with black-out lights and pray."

Others from Chicago.

Other members of the platoon are Pvt. William McDonough of 745 W. 47th pl., Chicago; Pvt. James Mazany, 2652 S. Troy st.; Pvt. Martin Spiros, 1133 Oakdale av.; Pvt. John E. Wolf Jr., 5642 N. Parkside av.; Pvt. Robert J. Lewandowski, 5511 Leland av.; Pvt. Robert Bearsley of Moline; Corp. Raymond Mueller, Sgt. Boyd Koneck, Sgt. Joseph Sivak, Pvt. Raymond Feltes, and Pvt. Gilbert Karlson, all from Milwaukee, Wis.; Pvt. Merle Johnson and Pvt. James Sizemore, both of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Just before I left, Pvt. Adam Antonopoulos of 4358 Maypole av., Chicago, brewed five cups of GI coffee and as I opened the door several shouted, "When are we going to get THE TRIBUNE? We miss our home town paper."

JAS. ROOSEVELT AWARDED A STAR FOR GALLANTRY

San Francisco, Cal., March 10 (AP).—Lt. Col. James Roosevelt, marine corps, was presented with a silver star at the Presidio of San Francisco today for gallantry in action at Makin atoll, Gilbert Islands.

The citation to the eldest son of the President said that while attached as an observer to a unit of the 27th infantry division which effected the landing on Makin, "Col. Roosevelt voluntarily sought out the scenes of the heaviest fighting."

"Thruout the three day period," the citation said, "he continually accompanied the leading elements of the assault, exposing himself to constant danger. His calmness under fire and presence among the foremost elements of the attacking force was a source of inspiration to all ranks."

Allied Forces Advance in Burma

U. S. FORCES GAIN IN N. BURMA; 600 JAPS DIE IN TRAP

NEW DELHI, India, March 10 (AP).—Chinese-American forces under Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell smashed south three to four miles in the Hukawng valley of North Burma in the past 24 hours while Chinese troops continued to chop up trapped Japanese in the Walawbum-Ninghku Ga area, killing 600, it was announced today.

Elements of the Chinese 22d division moving down the east side of the Hukawng valley contacted the Americans at Walawbum, and the merged forces advance on Chanma [Changmai].

The Chinese force on the west flank advanced two to three miles toward Ginswe Ga and Payawm, battling the fleeing Japanese.

Chinese troops killed approximately 150 of the enemy in mopping up action near Ninghku Ga. Another Chinese force killed approximately 450 Japanese trapped between their lines at Ngamaw Ga and the American roadblock near Walawbum on the Nambyu river.

American bombers, supported by British airmen, raided Japanese bases at Shwebo and Pauk, central Burma, and Mogaung and Kamaing in the northern sector.

RUSSIA CHARGES NAZIS USE FREED CAPTIVES IN WAR

MOSCOW, March 10 (AP).—German soldiers taken prisoner by the British and then exchanged for British troops captured by the Nazis have been remobilized and sent to the Russian front in violation of international law, the newspaper Pravda charged today.

Pravda printed a signed statement obtained from a German prisoner, Corp. Karl Wilde of the 1st battalion, 257th regiment, 83d division, who said he figured in an exchange of "healthy prisoners" between Britain and Germany and was then sent to the Russian front.

Wilde said that he was captured in the summer of 1942 near El Alamein and interned in a camp near Port Said. There, he added, Swiss and Swedish officials checked the list of prisoners and sent 800 healthy and 400 wounded to Barcelona on two British ships, where an exchange was effected.

WARNS OF CIVIL WAR IF FINLAND YIELDS TO RUSSIAN TERMS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March 10 (AP).—Acceptance of Russia's original armistice demands might precipitate civil war in Finland, Eric Lindquist, foreign editor of the Swedish newspaper Morgan Tidningen, reported today after a trip to Helsingfors.

While Finland was reported awaiting Moscow's reaction to a revised Finnish answer to Russian terms, Lindquist reported that Finnish public opinion was so unprepared for peace that only one person was capable of uniting the people—Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, Finnish commander in chief.

There is strong opposition to the government's attempts to get out of the war, observers say, not so much because of any feeling of friendliness for the Nazis as because of the long black-out of information, which has left a great segment of the population unaware of the nation's real predicament.

12 NATIONS' MEN IN ACTION WITH ALLIES IN ITALY

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALGIERS, March 10.—Allied troops engaged in Italy represent the most inclusive allied nations front yet achieved. In the seven months campaign men from 12 countries have been in line at various times against the Germans.

In addition to Americans and British, the forces have contained Canadians, Indians, New Zealanders, Poles, French, Tunisians, Moroccans, Belgians, Algerians, and Italians. Further international flavor has been added by the presence on the battlefields, for short periods, of a Brazilian advance reconnaissance party and Russian observers, but both of these groups were noncombatants.

U. S. 3d Division at Anzio.

The American 3d Infantry division is with other troops at the Anzio beachhead. Other American units reported in action in Italy during the campaign are the 34th, 36th, and 45th infantry divisions as well as Rangers, armored elements, and the 509th paratroop battalion.

British forces have included the 78th infantry division and armored units, parachutists, and Commandos. The Canadians have had a corps in action while the Indians have had a division. The New Zealand 2d division also has been identified.

Two Polish Outfits in Action.

Two Polish Carpathian and Kresowa divisions have been in combat. The French Corps Expeditionaire includes Tunisian, Algerian, and Moroccan native troops. The Moroccan unit contains some of the famed Ghoumiers. Regular French officers are in charge of these African fighters.

Belgian detachments have been with the Rangers and Commandos. The Italian contingent is described as a motorized formation.

YANK AIRMEN RIP ROME RAIL YARDS AGAIN

ALLIED HDQ., Naples, March 10 (AP).—Fighter escorted American medium bombers attacked railroad yards in Rome again today and heavy damage was reported.

[The Nazi controled Rome radio said "a large number of houses were hit and it is feared casualties are high." The broadcast made the claim, unsupported in allied announcements, that two of the raiders crashed in flames near the outskirts of the city. The Swiss radio, meanwhile, quoted the German commander of Rome as saying that Rome was considered an open city and had no anti-aircraft guns.]

The Tiburtina yards in Rome's eastern suburbs were hit by Marauders escorted by American piloted Spitfires and rolling stock and warehouses were declared blasted.

Thunderbolt escorted Mitchells struck the Littorio yards on the northern limits of the city. The Littorio yards also were bombed on Tuesday.

Two small but vicious German stabs at American positions southeast of Carroceto on the Anzio beachhead were repulsed by Yank infantry at dawn yesterday, leaving no man's land so clustered with enemy dead and wounded that German details required several hours to remove them under a Red Cross flag of truce.

Wife of Missing Flyer Is Awarded His Medal

Mrs. Mildred Sedivic, 1423 S. Pulaski rd., wife of Lt. Richard Sedivic, air corps, who was reported missing in action over Europe two months ago, yesterday received the air medal for which her husband was cited.

BRITAIN'S COAL STRIKE SPREADS DESPITE PLEAS

Leaders of Miners to Hear Terms Today.

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—Britain's rate of coal loss from the South Wales strike rose to 500,000 tons a week today as the number of strikers increased to 100,000, and the ministry of fuel and power described the situation as "just a little worse," with prospects for a week-end settlement no better than even.

Strikers went to the pits today—but not to work. It was a "collar and tie" appearance at the colliery offices to draw pay.

Leaders to Hear Terms.

The next move to settle the dispute, the worst coal strike since 1926, when the government took over the mines, is set for tomorrow at Cardiff, where delegates of miners' locals will hear details of the government's proposals to remove some of the main causes of the walk-out.

These include a graduated system of wage allowances above the minima to meet special conditions. Union leaders said the miners did not fully understand the government concessions.

M. P.'s Will Attend.

Thirteen members of parliament from coal field districts are to be present to underscore the nation's drastic need for maximum production and to urge a return to work pending arbitration.

The British war cabinet let it be known that firm action will be taken to halt the strike. There was no official indication of what the action would be, but labor leaders said the government was prepared to take over the mines as it did during the general strike of 1926.

Maj. Foss to Command New So. Pacific Squadron

San Francisco, Cal., March 10 (AP).—Maj. Joe J. Foss, marine pilot from Sioux Falls, S. D., credited with felling 26 planes, is returning to the South Pacific as commander of a newly organized air squadron, marine headquarters announced today. Maj. Foss, tied Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's first World war record after bagging four Zeros in a dogfight over Guadalcanal on Oct. 23, 1942.

BILL PROVIDES RULE BY CONGRESS OVER SALE OF WAR GOODS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Revelations concerning the army's Detroit tool scandal have heightened congressional interest in the bill introduced by Sen. Nye [R., N. D.] to regulate the sale of surplus war materials.

Sen. Nye.

Sen. Nye's bill now is pending before the senate military affairs committee. It would require government agencies having surplus stock of war materials suitable for civilian use to dispose of them under congressional authority.

The agencies would submit detailed inventories to congress every 60 days. They then would make inquiry of all the other government agencies to make certain that the surplus stock might not be utilized by the government.

The agency controling the surplus then would offer the goods at public sale to the highest bidder. But the prices obtained would have to be at least as much as the goods cost the government.

AIRLINE CHIEFS SEE REVAMPED U. S. AFTER WAR

Effect of Auto Routes in '20s Recalled.

BY HAL FOUST.

In considering the post-war future of commercial aviation, the imagination flies into the stratosphere. And there it finds the realists of the industry.

The witnesses interviewed for this article are three top flight air line executives, men of knowledge and of responsibility. Each, in discussing the future of his business, carried this interviewer into rare altitudes.

Rickenbacker Gives Views.

The authorities and their most interesting statements were as follows:

Said Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, ace of World War I., confidential agent of the war department in World War II., hero of 21 days on a raft, and president of the Eastern Air Lines:

"Manned by those dandy kids who are winning this war, planes will furnish passenger, mail, and express service to every town of more than 2,000 population. With overnight delivery service between any two points in America, merchandising will be revolutionized."

Said Alexander N. Kemp, 65, a conservative banker and insurance executive before he became president of the American Airlines a year ago:

"Aviation will revamp America after this war, just as did railroad expansion following the Civil war and automobile and highway developments after the first World war."

Patterson Sees Huge Growth.

Said W. A. Patterson, 44 year old president of United Air Lines, who has been in this business for 15 years:

"The potentialities are too great to foresee beyond five years. However, within four years after the war there'll be regular and frequent service between the larger cities of the world. And within this four years, domestic air transportation will grow to five times its dimensions in its best pre-war year, 1941."

The manufacturing end of the aviation industry is not so bright. It's black. Today's production for destruction is at a rate of 100,000 planes a year. Less than a week's output could supply peace time operations for a year. There are only about 250 planes now flying the commercial air lines in the United States.

1,250,000 to Lose Jobs.

Of the million and a half now employed in aircraft and aero engine production, about a million and a quarter will lose their present jobs when the war is ended. Manufacturers are contemplating conversion of their huge war time plants to make automobiles, pre-fabricated houses, furniture, or some other assembly line product but, either for competitive reasons or because of uncertainties, no definite plans have been announced.

Let's return to an office in Rockefeller Center, New York, where sits Rickenbacker, a lanky figure relaxed in a swivel chair as if resting momentarily between physical activities. Eyes of gunsight intensity, under brows like eagle wings, stare hard at a question. It's only his ready and thoro grin that saves his face from a deadly seriousness.

"I can't talk of post-war world air transport," he said in a commanding baritone, "because of the possible inference of association with my globe trotting for Uncle Sam. But for this country, I can tell you that the commercial air lanes in America are going to be expanded tenfold in the first five years after the war. The daily total mileage of commercial flight will be multiplied 15 to 20 times.

Will Change Merchandising.

"We'll carry 90 per cent of the passengers now buying Pullman tickets on the railroads for trips of more than 100 miles. Our express service will revolutionize merchandising. With overnight delivery service from anywhere in America, inventories can be kept at a minimum. We'll fly perishables from Florida and Texas and deliver New England lobsters fresh from the sea to Miami, New Orleans, and Los Angeles hotels.

"The future growth of air transport, passenger, and fast freight, will not be at the expense of the railroads. The increase of industrial and commercial activities will benefit the rails. They'll have more local passenger business. With their big advantage of much lower costs, they'll continue to haul the bulk of freight, and the growth of air transport will add to this rail freight traffic.

"Today, the air lines could use five times their present equipment and still not have enough planes to meet demands. After Germany's collapse and before the defeat of Japan, we'll be able to buy some transports while industry begins its conversion to peace production. With Hitler dead, the allies will have more guns, tanks, ships, air transports, and men than they can use against Hirohito.

Sees 300,000 Private Planes.

"Aside from commercial operation, there'll be probably 300,000 private planes in the United States during the first three or four years after both wars are ended. There'll be another upturn in private plane operation when the helicopter comes into general use.

"When the helicopter is perfected, possibly in six or seven years, it will solve our tough problem of fast transport between air ports and downtown business centers. In the meantime we are dependent upon automobile, truck, and business service and our immediate hope is for further construction of express highways to air ports."

Igor I. Sikorsky, designer of the windmill aircraft which can land on a rooftop, responded to an inquiry from this reporter: "There will be much research and development work to done on the helicopter after the war in order to adapt it fully for wide peace time use."

Now let's meet Mr. Kemp in his New York office. His appearance belies his 65 years but not his banker background. He has a middle age plumpness and he's neat and precise. Upon introduction, he said he was too conservative, too close to the earth to speculate on the post-war. And then he started talking and really took off.

Cites Effect of Railroads.

"After the civil war," he said, "you'll recall that railroads displaced water transportation. Communities on the Mississippi river died. New cities sprang up at rail centers.

"After the other World war the automobile became a potent influence in locating towns and cities. Metropolitan areas spread into new suburbs along the main highways. Some communities deserted railroad locations and moved to near-by highways.

"After this war, you'll see a transformation of similar magnitude. The motivating influence will be the airplane.

"Business executives will hop to London for a conference just as they now take overnight trips to New York for a directors' meeting. Transoceanic vacations will be common.

"We can deliver a papaya for breakfast anywhere in the United States a day after it is picked in Florida. Not every one will want this tropical fruit but just about every one is going to be affected in some way by the expansion and extension of social and business intercourse in this new age of flight."

Any Place Only 60 Hours by Air

Chicago's own, genial Pat Patterson was interviewed at the Chicago airport. He insists, and probably correctly, that he is the most conservative of the airline executives. It's his hobby to debunk fanciful postwar dreamers. Yet here's his contribution:

"No place on the globe is going to be more than 60 hours by plane from Chicago.

"Within four years after the war, we'll have a five times growth in the volume of domestic air transportation. The growth in airline personnel is illustrated by United's plans to retain its present 7,500 men and women, to have jobs waiting for 1,100 now in armed services, and to hire 10,000 more within four years.

"Post-war commercial planes will include a four engined, 62½ ton, 100 passenger transport with a cruising speed of 250 miles an hour and a range of 3,000 to 3,500 miles; a four engined, 35 ton moderate range passenger type for de luxe sleeper service; a four engined 25 to 30 ton coach or club carrier for passengers and cargo, and a 16 ton twin engined plane for passengers, freight, or both.

"The transportation between the central business district and the airport is a weak link in our system today in Chicago and in other cities. The helicopter is five to 15 years in the future—more likely 15. The air lines are advocating a superhighway from the loop to the airport, using the old I and M canal bed for much of the route. This would bring us within 13 minutes' driving of the loop."

Wounded Japanese-American Officer Returns

Resident of Hawaii

Capt. Taro Suzoki, 39, of Honolulu, believes his company of Japanese-Americans—members of the 100th infantry of the 34th division—deserves its share of credit for helping the American 5th army to establish its Salerno beachhead in Italy, but doesn't want any for himself.

Wounded in the arm and leg, he is in Chicago for medical treatment. Yesterday, telling how his battalion, which came from Honolulu, trained at Camp McCoy, Wis., and then was sent to Italy, where it routed the enemy from a tough position on a hill, he said it had suffered more than 40 per cent casualties, including 96 killed, 306 wounded, and 17 missing.

Capt. Suzoki, holder of the Purple Heart award, is a graduate of the University of Hawaii.

AURORA MARINE RIPS JAP SHIP IN RAID ON RABAUL

Plants Big Bomb in an Oiler in Harbor.

BY STAFF SGT. DAN BAILEY.
[Marine Combat Correspondent.]

Starting a high speed approach at 13,000 feet, the Illinois marine then leveled off his plane and roared over the target at 350 miles an hour, tossing his bomb directly into the ship's side.

"The ack-ack in the valley was very heavy," Phillips said. "There were machine guns and 20 mm. cannons on both sides.

"When I approached the oiler—which was a short distance offshore—I was level with the vessel's deck. I could see crew members jumping off into the water.

"I jerked my bomb lever, then had to pull up sharply to avoid hitting the ship's mast."

It was the marine pilot's second direct hit on an enemy vessel.

Now, on his third and last tour of combat duty before returning home, Phillips is credited with 30 bombing raids against the Japs.

A graduate of East Aurora High school, Phillips was a pilot in the royal Canadian air force when the war broke out. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Phillips of Aurora.

BOUGAINVILLE'S JAPS MAKE GAIN; CHICAGOAN HURT

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands, March 11 [Saturday] (AP).—Striking during a rainstorm and under cover of low mists, Japanese broke thru barbed wire entanglements Thurday on the northern perimeter of the American lines at Empress Augusta bay on Bougainville in the northern Solomons. A 32nd division spokesman said the enemy succeeded in occupying a few machine gun pillboxes on commanding ground.

One shell fell in a marine camp. Among the wounded was Lt. William Holt, of Chicago, marine press relations officer. His wound was not serious. The plane of Capt. Edwin M. Shanks of Evanston, Ill., was hit by anti-aircraft fire in a raid on Rabaul, New Britain, and forced down, but a rescue plane saved him and his crew.

WHEAT IMPORTS END BREAD LINE IN SOUTH ITALY

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ITALY, March 10 (AP).—Italians of southern Italy are getting more to eat, bread lines have disappeared, and locally produced commodities are flowing more freely into regular trade channels after a clamp down on black markets, allied control commission officials said today.

Lt. Col. W. J. Legg said that rations of bread, olive oil, dried peas, sugar, and milk have been provided and that cheese and soap soon will be added. Shipments of wheat from the United States and Canada have eased the situation, he said.

YANK ACE GIVES NAZI AIR FORCE 15 MORE DAYS

A FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, March 10 (AP).—"Give us 15 more good days when we can get the Jerries up and I think it will mean the war is won as far as the luftwaffe is concerned," Capt. Walker Mahurin, leading fighter ace in the European theater, said today.

While his prediction definitely was on the optimistic side, it showed how American fighter pilots feel about this week's air battles during which the men flying Thunderbolts, Mustangs, and Lightnings have shot down 197 enemy aircraft.

The former Fort Wayne, Ind., clerk's 20 victories are only six under the American World War II. record held jointly by Marine Maj. Gregory Boyington, missing in action since last January, and Marine Maj. Joe Foss. Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker topped America's aces in the last war with 26 triumphs.

Have Superiority Now.

Mahurin likes to see Berlin under his wing tips. "It shows the trend more than anything else when we can go all the way in there and shoot them up," he observed. "We definitely have superiority now."

Mahurin admitted he is "scared to death" on every flight. "I think a lot of us are," he added.

A fellow pilot asserted, however, that Mahurin never showed fear when he dived into swarms of German fighters.

Mahurin, a handsome 25 year old flyer, said he got "lots of fun out of combat, especially after you've got a Jerry. Then you're always afraid you'll not get home for the biggest fun of all—telling everybody, 'O, boy! I got one'."

Mahurin isn't a boaster, however, and he never thinks much about being the ranking ace in this theater. In fact, he thought that Lt. Robert Johnson of Lawton, Okla., a member of the same unit, was tied with him with top honors. Johnson has 19.

All Like to Shoot 'Em Down.

"Everybody likes to shoot down Jerries," Mahurin continued. "It makes no difference who gets them. The more we all get means the end of the war is that much closer."

He flew 30 missions before getting his first enemy plane, but has more than made up for his late start by twice scoring triples—the last one over Berlin.

On his first raid nine months ago, Mahurin got banged up when a 20 mm. shell tore thru his ship's right wing. "I think it was a good thing in a way," he said. "At least you know what to expect. The majority of flyers who have got a lot of Jerries have been shot up at one time or another, but I don't remember it."

JAP MARSHALL AND CAROLINE BASES BOMBED

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, March 10 (AP).—Army heavy bombers hammered Japan's oft-hit Ponape and Kusale bases in the eastern Caroline Islands Wednesday, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz's headquarters announced today.

Airdromes and docks were bombed at Ponape and ground installations were hit at Kusale. There was no air interception. The same was true in simultaneous raids on four eastern Marshall islands, where army, navy, and marine aircraft concentrated on wrecking gun emplacements and keeping airfields unusable.

Japs Claim Two Jaluit Raiders.

New York, March 10 (AP).—The Tokio radio today said 30 American planes had raided Jaluit Island in the Marshall group Tuesday and that ground batteries downed two of the raiders. The broadcast also said American planes had attempted to attack Kei Island in the Banda sea west of New Guinea.

ALLIES INVADE ADRIATIC ISLE, BERLIN REPORTS

'Gen. Churchill' in Charge, Germans Claim.

LONDON, March 10 (AP). — The Berlin radio today said that 1,500 British and American Commandos — "under the command of Gen. Churchill" — have landed on the Adriatic island of Lissa. The broadcast added that other raids on the Dalmatian coast and near-by islands may be expected.

Where allies are reported to have landed.

The German reference to a British general with the name of Churchill, suggested it might be Capt. Randolph Churchill. He is Prime Minister Churchill's son who recently was reported to have parachuted into Jugo-Slavia to confer with Marshal Josip [Tito] Broz.

Might Refer to Brigadier.

Some Britishers speculated that DNB's reference to "Gen. Churchill" might refer to Brig. J. A. Churchill, former aide-de-camp to the king, who led a Commando raid into Sicily near Messina before all Germans were cleared from that section. British sources said, however, they had no information about the reported landing.

The Germans said the landing was "probably designed" to secure the island — 10 miles long and five miles wide — as a supply base "on behalf of Tito bands in southeast Europe." They added that it had yet to be determined whether the Commandos included the 2,000 Tito followers on Lissa.

The broadcast termed the raids of small military value but said they had propaganda value, "particularly toward the Tito bands which during the last few weeks have complained about the lack of British and American support."

Partisans Press Offensive.

Lissa is about 25 miles southwest of the Jugo-Slav port of Split and about 50 miles southwest of the nearest territory held by Tito's forces.

Jugo-Slav forces pressing an offensive in Slovenia have inflicted severe casualties upon the Germans and are continuing a steady advance, Tito announced in a bulletin broadcast from his headquarters.

Sharp fighting also was reported in Macedonia. There the Partisans said they were carrying the battle to German and Bulgarian troops.

King Peter Arrives.

Negotiations looking toward the settlement of differences between the Jugo-Slav government in exile and Tito were expected to begin shortly as King Peter and two of his chief ministers arrived in London today from Cairo.

Foreign Minister Josip Smodlaka of Tito's government was reported en route to London to participate in the conferences, called by the British government.

Accompanying Peter was Dr. Bozhidar Puric, premier and foreign minister of the government in exile, and Vladeta Milicevic, interior minister. Two other members of Peter's cabinet arrived here Wednesday.

Possible solutions of the Jugo-Slav impasse include a merging of Peter's cabinet with that of Tito, with Peter disclaiming Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, his war minister and leader of the Chetniks, who has been accused of pro-Nazi dealings.

Report Puppet Chief Slain.

New York, March 10 (AP).—The German controled Belgrade radio said in a broadcast today that Col. Miles Marsalovich, chief of cabinet in the puppet Serb government was shot and killed Wednesday by an unidentified assassin. The broadcast, which quoted an announcement by the Belgrade municipal administration, was recorded by United States government monitors.

RAF BLASTS NAZI AIRPLANE WORKS IN SOUTH FRANCE

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—R. A. F. Lancaster heavy bombers blasted a Nazi airplane factory near Marseilles last night in the wake of the American daylight pounding of Berlin. It was the R. A. F.'s third straight night operation without loss of a plane.

The Paris radio went off the air tonight indicating that R. A. F. night bombers might have returned to attack Nazi targets in France.

American Flying Fortresses and Liberators took a day off. They had set an endurance mark for large scale heavy bombing by hitting the German capital four days out of six.

An air raid alarm sounded in Berlin today for several hours, but no bombs were dropped, a dispatch from Stockholm said.

The R. A. F. night blow was against a factory at Marignane where six engined flying boats are built and French planes are converted into troop carriers. It is a part of the plane manufacturing "reserve" which the Germans left in France.

'THIS IS THE LIFE,' HEROES OF TRUK EXULT ON LEAVE

One Who Hit Cruiser Is Envy of Pals.

Four young navy flyers, their green uniforms crumpled from sitting for many hours, climbed out of a huge United Airlines passenger plane yesterday and walked stiffly down the runway toward the depot of Chicago airport. A few persons glanced at them casually, and quickly shifted their eyes back to a knot of newspaper photographers who were popping flash bulbs at some other passengers.

The flyers stood for a moment in the waiting room and then drifted into the coffee shop where they settled themselves about a little table.

Comment on Difference.

"This sure is different from a couple of weeks ago," one of them said. "Imagine settling back and taking it easy while somebody else flies you around, then sitting at a table and having a woman serve your coffee! Life is beautiful again."

"Still, Johnny, I'd like to have another crack at Truk harbor," one of the others said. "Maybe I'd plant a bomb in the middle of a Jap cruiser like our little friend across the table and be a hero."

The four flyers are among the first pilots who participated in the attack on Truk harbor, the Jap stronghold in the South Pacific, to return to this country.

Members of Hell Divers.

The four, all dive bomber pilots and members of the Hell Diver squadron, are Lieutenants B. G. White, 24, of Boston, Mass.; W. W. Perry, 22, of Macon, Ga.; John Lansing, 24, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Caleb Kendall, 23, of Boston, Mass.

Lt. White is credited with a direct hit on a Jap cruiser during the Truk harbor attack. The damage done by White's bomb was so great that the cruiser was put out of control and her anti-aircraft batteries silenced. The torpedo plane pilot who followed White in the attack on the cruiser radiod, "God bless you, my friend," as he made his own run over the ship unimpeded by bursting flak.

The fliers said the Jap opposition over Truk, particularly on the second day of the attack, was very ineffective and did little damage to the American forces. Most of the American fighters protecting the bombing groups, they said, couldn't find anything to do.

When the American naval and air forces attacked Truk, which was believed to be one of the main Japanese bases, the harbor was filled with transport ships and smaller warships, Lt. Lansing said.

The four flyers are on the way to their homes on leave, after which they will return to active duty. Their squadron has been stationed in the South and Southwest Pacific for nine months and also participated in battles in the Marshall and Gilbert Islands.

Also arriving at the airport were five members of a Seebee unit which has been in the South Pacific for 24 months. They are Chief Petty Officer W. O. Hewett of Boston, Mass.; Chief Petty Officer Robert Hastings of Baltimore, Md.; Seaman Richard Chamblin of Arlington, Va.; Ship's Cook John Jones of Washington, D. C., and Machinist's Mate John Murphy of Auburn, N. Y.

LONDON, March 10 (AP). — Leon Deschaens, deputy police chief in Brussels, was fatally shot by an unidentified assailant today, a Berlin broadcast said.

Canadians Save Disabled U. S. Sub-Chaser and Men

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, March 10 (AP).—Rescue of a United States navy subchaser and her crew of 20 men, adrift in the stormy North Atlantic for 23 hours, was announced today by the royal Canadian navy. The American ship first ran into grief when a drifting log smashed her steering gear. Before she could call for help, her radio system went dead. While trying to make port in heavy seas she ran out of fuel.

U. S. CITIZENSHIP SPURNED BY KIN OF SPY TEACHER

Federal District Judge John P. Barnes yesterday set March 24 for a hearing on the government petition to revoke the citizenship of Gerhard Max Kauffmann, 39, a draftsman, identified as brother-in-law of Capt. Walter Kappe, head of a German saboteur school near Munich. Kauffmann, who lives at 3017 Logan blvd., surprised the court when in answer to a question by Assistant United States Atty. Francis McGreal, he said he wanted to be denaturalized. Kauffmann has surrendered his citizenship papers to the government.

WPB RESTRICTS LATIN IMPORTS OF RUM AND GIN

Puts Coast Guard Back on Booze Runners' Trail.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 10.—Attempts to revive rum running on the Atlantic seaboard were foreseen today by the war production board in issuing an order restricting the importation from Cuba of rums, gins, cordials, and whiskies distilled from sugar cane. Imports after March 15 will be under strict quota controls limited to 100 per cent of 1943 shipments.

The new regulation will cut average monthly imports of liquor from Cuba by about 50 per cent below last December's receipts, when imports reached a peak of 2,279,000 gallons. Imports from Cuba this year under WPB quotas will average 1,200,000 gallons a month.

WPB said it had notified coast guard and customs officials of the new regulation controling Cuban liquor imports and requested their assistance in enforcing the restrictions. A WPB spokesman said the liquor shortage in this country and the short distance between Cuba and the Florida coast might attract criminal elements to resume smuggling.

Coast Closely Guarded.

Coast guard representatives, however, discounted the possibility of war time rum running. They asserted that the coast is carefully guarded by land and sea patrols and by protective devices which would detect the approach of an intruder vessel.

"We have very efficient patrols operating along the coast on the lookout for enemy ships and saboteurs," a coast guard official said. "A rum runner would have a slim chance of slipping thru the net and would still have to contend with beach patrols. Our gun crews nowadays don't ask too many questions and a suspicious vessel wouldn't remain afloat very long."

Need Alcohol for War.

The restrictions on imports was imposed to halt further "excessive diversion" to beverage alcohol of molasses required in this country for war alcohol production, WPB said.

Because adequate supplies of molasses were not obtained from Cuba, American distillers were forced to consume huge quantities of food grains to provide alcohol needed for synthetic rubber, explosives, and other war products.

WPB also clamped down quota controls over the distillation of beverage alcohol from sugar cane in the United States, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Hawaii, and Alaska. The quotas will be determined on the basis of actual production or imports in each calendar quarter from 1940 to 1944.

Determination of the production quotas for distillers in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will involve serious complications because liquor exports of these islands provide a substantial portion of their foreign trade, WPB officials said.

Old and New Argentine Leaders

FEAR ARGENTINA MAY LEAD BLOC AGAINST U.S.

Ramirez Resignation Seen as Blow.

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—The situation in Argentina, described by Secretary of State Hull today as in a state of confusion, has aroused considerable concern among diplomats over possibilities arising from the formal resignation of President Pedro Ramirez.

The main worry is whether recognition of the regime of President Edelmiro Farrell by Bolivia, Chile, and Paraguay means that a southern Latin-American bloc of any permanence may have been formed.

Fear Anti-U. S. Drive.

Farrell, formerly vice president, took over during the coup d'etat which followed shortly after the Ramirez government broke relations with the axis.

There is the feeling here that an Argentine-led bloc most probably would be directed against the United States and might engender formation of an opposing group clustered around Brazil, which has close ties of friendship with this country.

One possible test of the strength of the links between Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, and Paraguay may come in the Chilean and Paraguayan reaction to Ramirez's resignation.

Two May Reconsider.

Both countries maintained relations with Argentina on the official basis that no unconstitutional change had taken place; they accepted the Farrell interpretation of the coup as a temporary withdrawal of Ramirez because of illness.

Now they have a chance to reassess the change as more fundamental and to reconsider their relations with Argentina.

Farrell Assumes Office.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 10 (AP).—Gen. Edelmiro J. Farrell, who had served for two weeks as acting president of Argentina, assumed the office of president today upon the resignation of Gen. Pedro Pablo Ramirez.

This latest change in Argentina's kaleidoscopic political picture came after Ramirez—whose administration previously had broken relations with the axis—delegated his executive powers to Farrell two weeks ago on the ground that he was fatigued by the tasks of office.

The Supreme court, which received copies of both documents yesterday, met today and decided to acknowledge their receipt and place them on file. This was interpreted to mean that the court intends to remain aloof from this latest change.

Turkish Envoy to Britain Resigns; No Reason Given

ANKARA, Turkey, March 10 (AP).—Husein Rauf Orbay, 63, Turkish ambassador to Britain, has resigned, it was announced tonight. Orbay, a stocky, gray haired bachelor who speaks English with the ease of his native tongue, was appointed ambassador to Britain in February, 1942.

[The announcement gave no reason for Orbay's resignation, but Britain and Turkey have been at odds recently over the rate of delivery of war materials to Turkey.]

ASSERTS FLYERS WHO BAIL OUT OFTEN GET BACK

Lt. Glenn A. Profitt, 26, former Chicago linotype operator and now a bombardier with 12 decorations and 50 missions to his credit, said yesterday flyers who bail out of their disabled planes frequently get back to their bases.

Lt. G. A. Profitt.

"Once, in the Foggia area, we saw four of our planes simply disintegrate in the air," he said. "We said a prayer for the crewmen and supposed all of them were lost, but a month later one of them came back. He had been blown thru the nose of his ship. He was wounded but parachuted safely and was hidden from the Germans for 25 days by an Italian. There are many such cases of men getting back when it appeared impossible that they could have survived an enemy attack."

Profitt, his wife, Jessie, of Corbin, Ky., and their son, Glenn II., 2, are visiting friends at 106 S. Michigan av., Villa Park. They formerly lived at 4644 Hazel st.

'OLD MAN' RAIDS KURILE JAPS LIKE ONE OF THE BOYS

AN ALEUTIAN BASE, March 10 (AP).—Commodore Leslie E. Gehres, commanding the navy's Fleet Air Wing 4, rode stormy North Pacific skies with bomber crews in the latest raids on Japan's Kurile Islands.

"I wanted to see what it was like over there," said the big, genial 45 year old commodore. "Also, I wanted to let my boys know their old man was willing to go where they go."

He added that the new raids were a continuation of the attacks started last December against Paramushiro and Shumushu, the northernmost Kuriles. The latest was the night of March 5-6.

Commodore Gehres made the long run, hundreds of miles across the ocean and back, in his flag plane with its regular crew.

The commodore said he was gratified with the success of the bombing campaign which was interrupted by the weather only once since it started Dec. 22.

"We know we've done some damage and we've worried the enemy plenty. They're not sleeping very well on Paramushiro," he said.

Gehres disclosed that only one navy flyer has been injured in all the Kuriles missions. Ensign R. J. Lapham, navigator, of Madison, Wis., received a scalp laceration when bumped against the top of a plane by the concussion of Japanese anti-aircraft shells.

POLISH PRINCE DESCRIBES NAZI DRIVE ON JEWS

Many details of Germany's treatment of Poles—especially of Polish Jews—were given in an interview yesterday by Prince Ulgierd Czartoryski, Polish Red Cross representative in Brazil. He is spending ten days in Chicago during this, his first visit to the United States.

"I lost 90 friends within a few days in October of 1933," he said. "They were executed by German firing squads."

Prince Czartoryski himself spent two months in a German concentration camp but he escaped. Powerful foreign influence was brought to bear on the German occupying authorities in his behalf, and he was allowed to go to Italy. His knowledge of happenings in Poland from the end of 1939 on is based on close contacts with Poles who have since come out or have been able to send out messages.

Branded Slaughter House.

"Poland has been turned into a slaughter house for the Jews," he said. Jews from Germany and from other Nazi occupied countries were sent into Poland to share the fate of the Polish Jews, he asserted.

He said that the Warsaw ghetto, which contained 450,000 persons, was destroyed last April in a three week battle in which the Germans brought up machine guns and even artillery, and the Jews fought for their lives with munitions supplied by the Polish underground.

He estimated the number of Poles deported by Germany at about two million [another 1,600,000 were taken by Russia]. He described other of the German measures aimed at the weakening of Poland such as the law forbidding Polish women between 23 and 29 to marry, and the policy of kidnaping and Germanizing Polish children before they reached the age of reason.

Points to 1920 Treaty.

Asked to comment on the Polish-Russian border controversy, Prince Czartoryski called attention to the official soviet encyclopedia of 1940 which, in commenting on the treaty which ended the 1920 war, says that Russia wanted to give Poland a frontier farther east even than the one now in dispute.

As to the charge that the Polish government in exile is reactionary and irreconcilable, he asserted his belief that there was no more liberal, democratic government on earth and that the Polish government sincerely desired to come to an agreement with Russia.

ORDERS 2 COPS DISCHARGED IN EXTORTION CASE

Policeman John E. Brady of the Town Hall station, and Thomas R. Henehan of Chicago avenue, were ordered discharged yesterday by the civil service commission, which heard charges Wednesday that they had been involved in the extortion of money from the owners of a tavern at 1169 N. State st. last July 2.

Edward and Herman Bezark, the victims, who recovered their $30, did not prosecute in Criminal court. Capt. Frank Reynolds of the Chicago avenue station, and Walter G. Storms, deputy chief of detectives, pressed the charges before the commission.

The two policemen are alleged to have entered the tavern with Jacob Schlechter, a warehouse watchman, whom they introduced as a police lieutenant. They told Ralph Villano, the tavern manager, that the license was faulty, but said they would accept $30 to keep quiet about it, it was related at the commission hearing.

Dons Sergeant's Uniform, Escapes from Guardhouse

Pvt. Carroll B. Hamilton, 20, of Haverhill, Mass., who was picked up in Chicago yesterday by military police and charged with being absent without leave from the army air base at Salt Lake City, escaped a few hours later from the guardhouse at Fort Sheridan. A public relations office spokesman said Hamilton, put to work painting the guards' quarters, apparently donned a sergeant's trousers, overcoat and cap and walked out of the fort unchallenged.

NAZIS CAPTURE LT. W. S. CROSMAN; W. J. KOEHN LOST

Lt. William S. Crosman, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Crosman, 917 Forest av., Evanston, is a prisoner in Germany, his parents learned yesterday, in an official message from Washington. Lt. Crosman went to England early in January, and in a letter dated March 6 from England, he told his parents he had just returned from his first air raid over Europe, as co-pilot on a Flying Fortress bomber.

Lt. Crosman entered the army in January, 1942. He is a graduate of Evanston Township High school and was employed by an Evanston steel company. He is engaged to marry Miss Nancy Nahmens, 706 Seward st., Evanston.

Lt. Wilfred J. Koehn, a Flying Fortress navigator, was reported missing in action while on an operational mission to France, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Koehn, 5203 Kenmore av., were advised by the war department. The 25 year old officer had made 25 missions and had won the air medal. He was commissioned at Monroe, La., a year ago, and has been overseas four months.

NEW DEAL TYPE OF FASCISM HELD BAD AS HITLER'S

The New Deal government is tending toward European fascist control of every phase of American life, and is basically so hostile to private enterprise that business cannot survive unless the New Deal is put out, Samuel B. Pettengill, former Democratic congressman from Indiana, charged yesterday.

Pettengill, now vice president of the Transportation Association of America, made his statement as a participant in a preview for the Executives' club in Hotel Sherman of the Northwestern university Reviewing Stand, national radio forum.

Other speakers on the panel topic, "The Future of Free Enterprise," were Maynard C. Krueger, Socialist professor of economics at the University of Chicago; Barnet Hodes, city corporation counsel, and Dr. Howard Berolzheimer, professor of finance at Northwestern.

The forum will be repeated at 11 a. m. tomorrow over station W-G-N and the Mutual network.

IF A HOTTENTOT SPOKE ENGLISH, THERE'D BE WAR!

Professor Hits Basic as Way to Peace.

Doubt that a widespread use of basic English would go far toward solving the world's most serious problems was expressed yesterday by Mitford M. Mathews, research associate in English at the University of Chicago and assistant editor of the Dictionary of American English.

"There are starry eyed idiots who think that if we talked alike we'd get along together," he said. In refutation he cited the American Revolution and the American Civil war, both fought between peoples whose language was the same.

"A husband and wife probably wouldn't quarrel if one talked Hottentot and the other English," he added.

Basic English "Isn't Basic."

Mathews was asked for his comments after Prime Minister Churchill announced in the British house of commons Thursday that the teaching of basic English as a universal language would be sponsored and carried out by the British government thru a variety of official channels. Basic English, called "a language within a language," seeks by means of a vocabulary of only 850 words to communicate all the ideas which are part of the every day thought processes of the majority of people.

A radically different position was taken by Robert Holmes Seashore, professor of psychology at Northwestern university and a close student of words and their uses.

"The importance of a common language in advancing the understanding between persons or groups can scarcely be overestimated," he said.

Science's Benefits Cited.

Seashore cited the practice of seeking to reduce into a standardized terminology the many specialized words used by various types of scientific workers, and he thought that the benefits such as better common understanding that science had derived from this practice was similar to the benefits which society in general would derive from the use of basic English.

Regarding Churchill's statement that basic English plays a considerable part in American instructions to foreigners seeking citizenship, Marcus T. Neelly, district operations officer of the immigration and naturalization service, explained that the nationality act of 1940 forbade naturalization of a person who was unable to speak ordinary English.

WRITES BROTHER BUT MATE GETS THE BAD NEWS

Mrs. Adelaide C. Stamm, 30, of 409 S. Humphrey av., Oak Park, wrote a letter to her brother in the navy last Sept. 26, but mistakenly addressed it to her husband, Frank H. Stamm Jr., 31, an army private now stationed at Camp White, Ore.

"In view of the fact that if I divorce him now I will no longer get the allotment," Mrs. Stamm wrote, "I decided I will wait to see if he goes overseas, and in the meantime keep out of his way."

Stamm's lawyer, Leonard Schram, presented the letter yesterday to Circuit Judge Robert J. Dunne, who enjoined Mrs. Stamm from collecting further allotments. Her husband is suing her for divorce, charging desertion.

LEADERS OF OIL INDUSTRY BLAST F. D. R.'S POLICIES

Demand President Act to Prevent Ruin.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., March 10.—Oil men representing a large portion of the 20 billion dollar industry today told President Roosevelt that men "under your direction and control" have "spent millions and are planning to spend hundreds of millions," more of the taxpayers' money "without objection from you" on foreign oil projects "in eager anticipation of the demise of the domestic oil industry."

The statements were made in a letter to the President in which the petroleum producers addressed the executive simply as "sir," concluding with a petition that he give the charges immediate "realistic attention."

They petitioned the President to "order your administrative officers in charge of price control to so adjust price ceilings on crude oil and its products as to permit the functioning of an industry in the service of our country in the manner in which it is best fitted to the end that it may provide the products so necessary to the safety and welfare of this nation."

Ask 50 Cent Price Rise.

They also advocated, in a joint statement, an increase of 50 cents a barrel in the price of crude oil "to take care of higher operating and development costs, to prevent the undue abandonment of stripper wells, and the loss of more than 4 billion barrels of oil reserves, to encourage secondary recovery operations, and to furnish the incentive to wildcat." The proposed price rise was 15 cents a barrel higher than the increase approved about a year ago by Petroleum Administrator Ickes and rejected by the office of economic stabilization and the OPA.

The letter to Roosevelt came out of the joint meeting of the boards of directors of the Independent Petroleum Association of America and the National Stripper Well association, which more than 100 leading oil men from all over the country attended. It was signed by Ralph T. Zook, I. P. A. A. president.

Attack Federal Activities.

Bluntly and vigorously attacking the whole structure of government activities and price fixing in oil from before the United States' participation in the war, their letter says:

"In eager anticipation of the demise of the domestic oil industry, departments of government have spent millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money drilling wells and developing oil in foreign countries, while denying the domestic oil industry a price for its oil sufficient to pay the cost of replacement.

"Still other departments of government under control are preparing, without objection from you, to spend hundreds of millions of dollars building pipe lines in other foreign countries.

"One department subject to your order is now making plans to spend millions of dollars of taxpayers' money to finance government oil drilling upon the public domain in Alaska at a point where the sea lanes are open to shipping only six weeks in each year.

Charge Industry Strangled.

"This course, so persistently pursued, of strangling an essential industry endeavoring to produce an adequate supply of a vital commodity, while at the same time the government is spending the taxpayers' money to enter into the very business it is thus throttling, is contrary to our form of government and is a process leading inevitably, if not stopped, to socialized government monopoly.

"The Bill of Rights does not mention government monopoly because the founders of our country could not have conceived of the course now taken toward the oil industry. But the Bill of Rights does provide that property may not be taken for public use without compensation. This applies in war time as well as in peace. The right to engage in a lawful occupation is property; and the method used by your office of price administration, if continued, will destroy the domestic oil industry. This is confiscation without compensation."

Ask Congress to Act.

The meeting passed a resolution calling upon congress to kill Ickes' Arabian pipe line deal, and his Petroleum Reserves corporation, which fathered it. The oil men urged that congress take early action to "cancel the contract between the Petroleum Reserves corporation and the American-Arabian Oil company, and the Gulf Exploration company, and to dissolve the Petroleum Reserves corporation."

The American-Arabian Oil company is owned by the Standard Oil company of California and the Texas company, and the Gulf Exploration company by the Gulf Oil corporation. These two American companies have owned the middle eastern Arabian reserves for years. Oil men generally believe their officials were coerced into the pipe line deal.

THE QUESTION.

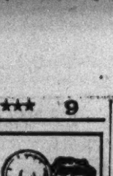
Have you ever had to call on a neighbor for something?

WHERE ASKED.

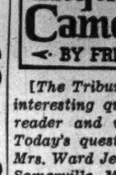
Adams st. and Michigan av.

THE ANSWERS.

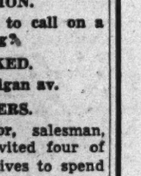
William A. Gaymor, salesman, 3424 Adams st.—I invited four of my relatives to spend the week-end with me and they brought the whole family, which was more than I could house. I asked our neighbors to lend me their guest room for two or three nights. They obliged so I gave them a side of bacon and a big ham.



Le Roy Lindenmuth, marble washer, 330 S. Damen av.—When a pipe in our kitchen broke my wife and I were so excited we didn't know what to do about it at first. Then she tried to stop the water while I ran over to fetch a neighbor. He was an artist at fixing plumbing and got the situation under control.



Charles J. DeBere, physician, 1315 Astor st.—My neighbor and I couldn't get along without each other in the summer time. I call on him whenever I need a lawn mower or any particular garden tool and he relies on me for the things he doesn't have. I'm sure our war gardens are bettered by our coöperation.



Frances Connor, clerk, 4027 Lake Park av.—It always was my mother's job to awaken me on time in the mornings and I depended on her. While she was gone on a two weeks trip I asked our neighbor if she'd mind calling me every morning at my regular getting up time. She was very faithful and I was never late.

Evelyn Lang, clerk, 7056 Wentworth av.—The woman next door is a much better cook than I am and I quite often call on her for expert advice. A few days ago I made some fudge that didn't seem to be hardening properly. She added something and cooked it longer, and it was as good as could be.

Richard O'Keefe, student, 3743 Wallace st.—I had played with our neighbor's boys often enough to know that we could cross from our upstairs window to theirs, so when I found no one home and the house locked one evening my neighbor allowed me to use their upstairs window to get to mine.

$50,000 BALM SUIT EXTORTION, SAYS BROKER'S REPLY

Harry Dobry, 42, an insurance broker, defendant in a $50,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Marguerite Teehee Cunningham, 25, filed an answer in Superior court yesterday charging the purpose of the action was extortion.

Dobry's answer, drawn by Atty. Julius L. Kabaker, denied representing that he was unmarried, denied proposing to Miss Cunningham, and denied that she proposed marriage to him on Dec. 31, 1938, as she alleged in her bill.

The entire and absolute freedom of the press is essential to the preservation of government on the basis of a free Constitution.
—Daniel Webster.

ABUSES REVEALED BY THE SEDITION CASES.

It is well that congress has been in session at the same time that the sedition conspiracy proceedings have been under way in Washington. The senators and representatives have had a ringside seat. They can hardly be unaware of the very serious defects in our judicial system which have been revealed in these prosecutions and which congress has it in its power to correct.

The 6th amendment to the Constitution says: "In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed. . . ."

Most of the defendants in these cases have been indicted three times. The first two indictments were so battered by the court that heard the pleadings that the government chose not to go to trial on what remained. Nevertheless, the earlier indictments stand and the guarantee of a speedy trial has been nullified.

Likewise these people are not being tried in their own states and districts. The 6th amendment was intended, among other things, to prevent a tyrannous government from sending men and women for trial far from their homes into districts where the climate of public opinion was favorable to the prosecution. This wholesome provision of the Constitution has been overcome by charging the defendants with conspiracy and alleging that some part of the conspiracy occurred in Washington. By this device the trial is being held in the capital tho the defendants do not live there and no doubt have been put to heavy expense to maintain themselves there.

Use of the conspiracy theory to evade the intent of the 6th amendment is a grave abuse, calling for corrective measures by congress. It would have been bad enough if the trial had been placed in a remote corner of the country, but to hold it in Washington greatly aggravates the wrong, for the vast majority of the people in Washington are dependent upon the government for their livelihood. They cannot be counted upon to be impartial jurors in litigation in which the government is a party. Plainly the judicial code should be amended to exclude government employes and their dependents from juries hearing cases in which the government is a party. If an employe of General Motors may not be a juryman in a case brought by General Motors the same limitation should apply to government employes in federal prosecutions.

Furthermore, in these sedition cases, the prosecution has been violating the spirit of the 5th amendment with its insistence on grand jury indictments. That provision was intended to assure every citizen on trial that, even before he entered court, he would know precisely what crime he was charged with committing, for only so could he prepare his defense. Even the government's bill of particulars in the present sedition case is vague. The defendants are charged with promoting "general suspicion between all groups and classes in an attempt to cause national disintegration and paralysis."

"Suspicion and hatred between various groups," the bill continues, "between different economic classes, between different religious groups, between different geographical groups with varying economic interests were promoted by every means and in every way so that when proper disintegration had been accomplished selected persons in strategic positions would then, acting together, be able to seize power."

This may describe what the attorney general thinks was in the minds of the defendants and it describes equally what a vast number of people in this country, in all probability a majority of them, think is in the minds of the New Dealers.

If men can be held to trial on that kind of a bill of particulars it is clear that the federal practice act is in need of amendment at this point also.

CAKE AND BIG MONEY.

When Wendell Willkie stumped the far west not so long ago, he paid particular attention to Oregon. Willkie has connections in Oregon which make that state particularly attractive to him. Ralph H. Cake, Republican national committeeman from Oregon, was Willkie's campaign manager four years ago and he is attempting now to deliver his state to the Wall street candidate. The Willkie connections in Oregon, as usual, are the ties of big money.

Cake is a big shot, financially. He is president of the Equitable Savings and Loan company, one of the largest institutions of its kind in the northwest. The big money of the west is, and always has been, the slave of big money in the east; hence Cake, the western financier, and Willkie, the candidate of the eastern international bankers, are working hand in hand.

What the voters of Oregon will have to decide is whether the big money interests can buy their state and whether they are going to allow Ralph Cake to hold the favor of the New York bankers by putting over this, his biggest deal.

JUDICIAL SELECTION.

In New York City the Aurelio scandal, the recent outrageous conduct of the former Communist mouthpiece, Judge Leibowitz, in a rape case, and the political manipulations on the bench of Judge Pecora have contributed to agitation for appointive judges.

Those who believe appointment, rather than election, would improve the caliber of judges seem to have overlooked Martin Manton, who sat for years in New York on one of the nation's highest courts. He was driven from the bench and sent to prison for selling his judicial rulings.

Manton was an appointive judge. All of the federal judges are appointive, and in the last 11 years they have been appointed largely for political reasons. The country has had the spectacle of men without judicial experience, and with little or no trial experience, placed on the highest court in the land, not to interpret the law but to expound a particular political philosophy. It has the spectacle of judicial appointments being held open as refuge for administration partisans who face defeat at the polls.

Judicial selection is one of the most difficult problems that our system of government has to face, and one for which a perfect solution is yet to be found. Both appointment and election have certain merits, but neither is an absolute guarantee of honest judges. The reason is simple. Honesty can never be assured by the machinery of government. It depends upon the vigilance and intelligence of the people operating the machinery.

What troubles New York is not elective judges but rotten politics. If New York City wants to clean up its judiciary, it must first clean up its politics.

THE RUSSIAN VICTORIES.

The gains of the Russian armies in the last few weeks have an importance that ought not be underestimated. The Germans have lost heavily and for the purposes of this argument it makes little difference whether they were driven from the territories they held or have conducted an orderly retreat. In either event, they have been deprived of important sources of metals and of an agricultural empire, on both of which they were heavily dependent.

Moreover, and more especially, they have been pushed so far that unless they are soon able to stabilize their line they will have no reliable position on which to organize a defense. The Riga-Odessa defensive system is threatened at both ends and may actually have been disrupted in the center. If that line goes it may seriously be doubted that even with a shortened front the Germans can continue to get the food and other supplies they need to stay in the war. Besides, their north-south communications are being disrupted, with consequent difficulties in supplying the armies facing Russia and in sending reënforcements to points under attack.

All of this suggests that the Germans may be defeated by fall, or, at least, that their capacity to make war has been so sharply reduced by their losses of men and resources that the end of the road is in sight.

ABSENTEE MANAGEMENT.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company is a vast enterprise. The annual report just issued shows that it holds stock in subsidiary companies, which cost more than 2½ billion dollars. These companies served 21,246,600 telephones in 1943, covering the entire country. From its subsidiaries the parent derived income in the form of dividends totaling 160 million dollars last year.

Besides being a holding company, A. T. & T. operates the long distance lines, which produced gross revenues of 180 million. There were nearly 150 million long distance calls in 1943, or 50 million above normal.

The service rendered by this company even under the stress of war is excellent. That is not to say that it could not be improved if the main office of the company were not maintained at about the most disadvantageous spot in the network, the extreme end. Remote control from New York cannot be as effective as control from headquarters equally accessible to all parts of the enterprise.

A. T. & T. established its offices in New York when the company was being put together. At that time regional companies were being assembled for consolidation into a system; exchanges of stock, bond issues, and such matters were the chief concern. It was convenient to be in New York where the money was.

The company has long since passed beyond that stage and the head office can now concentrate on matters of operational efficiency. We have often been impressed by the quality of men who direct the telephone subsidiaries here, but they must often be in the dark, being obliged to operate under policies formulated by a hierarchy 1,000 miles away. The situation must be even less satisfactory on the west coast, where there are properties in which the company has invested 170 million dollars.

Absentee management causes an even greater loss of efficiency to some of the railroad lines and manufacturing giants. There are railroads which do not come within a thousand miles of Wall street, but have their head offices there. Some companies which draw but a small fraction of their sales and none of their supplies from the east have their offices on lower Broadway. It's bad for the business, but it suits the social ambitions of the wives and daughters of company officials.

Too many great corporations are run from New York, far from the scene of production and sales. Oddly enough, the directors and officers of such companies often have little financial investment in them. Absentee management is bad for the corporations and for the country. We hope legislation will not be needed to correct this evil.

Asked about his political future, Mr. Wallace can only say, "I'm in the lap of the gods." As to that, there are those who believe Henry is on his last lap. —New Haven Register.

All this leap year tradition is pleasant fiction, of course, for the gal who really wants a man usually can get him, in any year, and the men know it, too. —Decatur Herald.

MR. PEPYS DEFIES FASHION.

11th March—Have been indignant about the weather, especially the piercing winds, and decided to do something about it. So I appeared in public wearing high shoes to protect my ankles, and whenever suffering citizens saw them they gaped as if they had seen a dinosaur, and wanted to know where I had found such museum pieces and where could they go to buy them. Advised my admirers to go shopping in Alaska, where the inhabitants know how to dress for winter.

Have seen only one sign of spring thus far, which is a little melting of the ice at noon in sunny places, but it soon freezes again, hard as iron, making new traps for careless walkers. Above the howling of the ceaseless wind, have heard the wailing of many stricken souls now making their first acquaintance with Income Tax Form 1040, which I polished off long ago.

Now to tide over the week-end by reading a new book called "The Misadventures of Sherlock Holmes," in which are stories by numerous wags whose heroes are named Sherlaw Kombs, Picklock Holes, Thinlock Bones, Shylock Homes, Hemlock Jones, etc. Expect to find these humorists a sad lot of slapstickers.

Choppy Signs His Stuff.

Choppy says the other night he decided he would make out his income tax return. So, he put on his bookkeeper's suit, his pince nez, his green celluloid eye shade, and his paper sleeve cuffs, mounted his bookkeeper's stool, seated himself at our dinette table and went to work.

Well, Choppy says it started out easy. It wanted to know his name, which is Choppy. Then he says it wanted to know his last name, and that got him. He says he has no last name, as he has not been legally adopted, so he let it go as Choppy. Then he wrote his address.

Choppy says he got to his occupation and he put down "writer," and his social security number, which is 00-000-00-0-0-0000. He says he put a period in the middle of each 0, so that his number looked like a row of his eyes. The name of his employer, he says, was also easy, and he wrote "Roy Engel."

Now, Choppy says he got to the tough part, because the form wanted him to state the amount earned as a writer, and he was amazed to find he had been paid nothing by me for all the writing he has done. Where did all those doggy biscuits, meat, coats, harnesses, leashes and stuff come from, he wants to know. He says I told him they came from the Candy Eye.

This business of not being paid by his employer, Choppy says, was not enough. He was horrified to learn that all his writing is being plagiarized by some one who signs his contributions "Roy Engel," and he wants to know how come he is not being paid by this person, whoever he is, and is not given credit for his writing.

Choppy says I said: "Well, well, this is serious. The very next article you write for the Linemaster will be signed by you."

So, here it comes. Choppy.

SHORT TALK TO DAUGHTER.

Now listen, pet, you're but fourteen,
Yet none more worldly have I seen;
Your lipstick is a crimson smear;
Your mouth is painted ear to ear.
Your hair (I quote) is raven black,
But need you wildly fling it back
With gestures meaning to portray
A siren, sultry, proud, or gay?
(At risk of seeming crude and stark,
Your neck bears a high-water mark!)
Another thing, dear, by your leave,
I'm tired of being called naïve;
Let's get this straight or I'll go wild;
I am the mother; you, the child!

CONSTIPATION RESPONDS TO SIMPLE RULES.

If any single malady is entitled to be called universal, it is constipation. Yet there is not the slightest excuse for permitting the disorder to develop or persist. Most of our trouble arises because we insist upon tinkering with our "innards." In consequence, we meddle with contractions and oblige the intestinal tube to adjust itself to abnormal conditions.

One of the commonest causes is the abuse of purgatives. There are times and occasions when assistance will be needed but not with individuals who are obviously well. I am satisfied that many a diagnosis of "colitis" is made merely because mucus appears in the stools. The fact is that the presence of this material shows that a healthy lining has secreted an extra quantity due to some type of irritation.

As we can well understand, forcing the colon to perform under the whip of a cathartic may be responsible for pain and gas. In addition, the after-effects may be fatigue, loss of appetite, and increased nervousness.

Many a person will assume that the digestive tract is at fault just because he feels like nothing at all—and looks worse. He may be upset but not because of bowel sluggishness. That region of his anatomy is trying to do its job. More often than not, if the sufferer will think back over his doings for the last day or two, he will recall dietary indiscretions, sufficiently glaring to account for the whole matter.

I have heard perfectly intelligent people say that they make a practice of using a powerful purge at least once a week because "I crave a feeling of inner cleanliness." Even this may be enough to establish a laxative habit and it will take the alimentary canal a long time to recover from such assaults. If these drug devotees could look at the inner surface of the intestines after one of these bouts—its angry, red appearance would dissuade them from repeating the dose.

There is no better plan of management than the establishment of good hygiene, which includes the custom of going to stool regularly. Nothing should be allowed to interfere, not even the ringing of the telephone. If victims of intestinal torpor will drink two or three glasses of hot water one-half hour before breakfast, 90 per cent of their difficulties will be solved.

Some may imbibe too little liquids. If the circulation lacks fluid it will abstract it from the digestive apparatus as well as from the tissues beneath the skin. We must have enough natural lubricant so that edibles will pass along smoothly.

As a part of the balanced diet, some roughage will be required. Furthermore, we would not expect proper behavior if we ate nothing but carbohydrates meal after meal. Insufficient residue would remain to stimulate the muscles to work. Neither would we confine ourselves to cheese alone. The reason we select a varied menu is because it supplies all the nutriments which the body cells demand. In like fashion, this presents the plastic soft mass which carries just enough stimulation to initiate regular emptying.

MANY FRACTIONS.

G. W. writes: Will you explain the meaning of "complex" in the vitamin B preparations?

REPLY.

In this connection, the word implies that the food accessory is made up of many fractions, or parts. For example, B contains thiamin, riboflavin, nicotinic acid, etc.

NOT WHOLLY DEAF.

C. L. writes: Is it only imagination when an old man, almost totally deaf, claims he can hear his own voice when he talks?

REPLY.

DECREASES RESISTANCE.

D. W. writes: How does catching cold make Bright's disease worse?

REPLY.

The ensuing infection and congestion place a heavy load upon the kidneys. This is the exact opposite of good treatment. We try to relieve and spare the renal organs.

WRONG COLOR.

CENSUS PROPHECY

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Pro and Con.

The mail has just brought a complaint directed toward the poetic efforts of our prolific and revered contributor, Halifax Gadley II. This anonymous ditty spoke thus, with a wanton disregard of accepted verse forms:

O, Mr. H. Gadley Two,
It's nice there aren't more of you;
Think what the output would be
If there were H. Gadleys Three!

I'm not in appreciation lax,
But enough is as good as a feast;
So will you gad to Halifax
For a month or so at least?

Being one of those dogs who feels that no accused man is guilty until found so by a jury of his peers and consequently is entitled to his hour of self-defense, we showed this charming ditty to the grandson of Mr. Gadley II., a man never diffident about signing a name not his own, and asked if he were man or mouse. His metrical reply, entitled "Well, You Asked for It," speaks for itself:

Stop trying to drive me to work,
You child labor demon—you jerk!
Like England and taxes
There'll be Halifaxes
Till you are locked up as berserk.

I'll grant you that Halifax Third,
A foolish, untalented bird,
Wrote poetry badly
And not like a Gadley
Before he was hanged and interred.

But that's not the end. There are more
Of the Gadleys, whose scions galore
Are teethed [like canaries]
On rime dictionaries—
I'm Halifax Gadley the Four.

Command Performance.

One of the eminent columnists on this page, and it was not Dr. Cutter, has just received a letter, apparently from the White House. By a beautiful disarrangement of mail boxes it landed in this department. That may sound strange and unjust, but as this column daily receives bits of verse addressed to the gentleman in the White House it is merely turnabout.

The document in question involves no national security, so that we are printing it in full without the customary procedure of submitting it to censorship:

"Dear Sir:

"The President wishes me to thank you not only for your patriotic coöperation in the shortening of your column but also, and especially, for showing us how easily an additional saving of space can be achieved. The clipping hereto attached is from your column of this date [March 9]:

"'Snug in our blizzard-busting cap we braved the icy elements, yet here and there some freezing fool had gall enough to mock at our unstylish headgear. Nuts to such:

"['That is four lines of blank verse, run in as prose.']

"The typographical ingenuity with which you have compressed four lines of verse into four lines of prose, extraordinary as that feat may be, is surpassed by the brilliant facility with which you have reduced the total linage from four to six lines by adding two lines of explanation.

"Would you be willing, sir, to accept a government position at a salary of 98 cents a year, less the usual deductions for social security, income and victory taxes, and war bond purchase?

"Faithfully yours,
"[For the President]."

Definition.

Thunderbolt pilots overseas are said to be taking a ribbing from Lightning pilots because a dictionary was found which defined thunderbolt as: "A large crash of noise, causing no damage, immediately followed by a bolt of lightning."

The American dictionary on this shelf doesn't say that at all. It says: "An electric discharge producing lightning and thunder, especially when striking or doing damage."

THE GENERATION NEVER LOST.

Camp San Luis Obispo, Cal., March 6.—I want to tell you about a buddy of mine. Two years ago he and I were labeled as the "lost generation." Being 18 years old then, we didn't care. So we didn't go to church on Sunday and we liked boogie woogie. We had things pretty much our own way—money, cars, and every other thing an 18 year old would want.

Then some other boys not so fortunate wanted as much and started stealing. We all were called jitterbugs, morons, the "lost generation."

Two years ago they called us such names. Now they start again. Why don't they please stop! Can't they look around and see that we, "the lost generation," have saved the day? We are the ones in the South Pacific. When Americans make an assault on some Jap held beach it's 20 and 21 year old boys like myself who bomb the Japs for the attack.

I just came back from there and I left my buddy behind. He won the silver star and a few other medals for his death. And yet I still read about the "lost generation." The only way we're lost is that the folks back home have given us up. Wouldn't it be nice if we suddenly decided to disregard our moral responsibilities and refuse to fight for those people who berate and condemn us? Tell that to the lads on Tarawa, Wake, Arawe, Buna, Gona, and Guadalcanal.

When will people begin to understand that we're saving their lives at the risk of our own lives? I guess maybe those folks are glad we're up in the front getting killed. It was the "lost generation" anyway and any benefit derived from it goes on the credit side of the books. I hope to God my buddie didn't die thinking that.

WANTS REVENUE AGENT TO SIGN.

Waukegan, Ill., March 8. — Several weeks ago at the Waukegan revenue office my return was filled out by one of the employes who failed to sign his name to the schedule. Afterwards I inquired why he did not sign the schedule and I was informed that it was only when the schedule was filled out by an outsider, other than a government employe, that he was required to sign his name.

Thus if an error is made the revenue office can disclaim all responsibility as the taxpayer has no proof that it was made by a revenue employe. I don't know if this rule came from Washington or if it was a local one originating in the Chicago bureau of which the Waukegan office is a branch. Anyway it is a poor one and unworthy of the federal government. It looks as tho they were safeguarding incompetent employes. TAXPAYER.

WORD FROM A PRISON CAMP.

Hudsonville, Mich., March 4.—A few weeks ago you were so very kind. You sent us a clipping out of The Tribune about our son, Staff Sgt. James H. van der Laan. Today we received a card from him from Germany saying: "Dear Folks, here I am again. We just had our Thanksgiving dinner yesterday. It was pretty good. Hope to be out of here by Christmas. Be sure to send parcels as soon as you can. Check with the Red Cross as to what you can send, but don't forget a razor and blades. I am well and in good shape, Jim." It is wonderful to know he is well. We thank you again for your kindness.

MR. AND MRS. L. S. VAN DER LAAN.

IN SHORT, THEY STINK.

Lake Forest, Ill., March 7.—Among other people, I am wondering how long we must be forced to listen to certain radio advertising utterly devoid of any suggestion of nicety, elegance, or delicacy. Their many insults to my intelligence, their tiresome and nauseating repetitions, their childish inanity, have so frayed my nerves that to come into actual contact with the products advertised would bring on a violent eruption of allergic squeamishness.

They sound like pin-feathered efforts to make a bungling application of psychological salesmanship. It is high time that the public rose in a unity of remonstrance against the puerile use to which the glorious radio is put when it might always be a purveyor of inspiration and delight, restful, and soothing, and wholly helpful.

Frankly, the public is not afflicted with such rotten taste. We can appreciate acceptable advertising. Why then must we have the foul products of some cheap advertising school sandwiched between every morsel of music, or news, or other sane broadcasting?

USELESS SCHOOL SUBJECTS.

Chicago, March 6.—It seems to me that the older folks and parents do not understand much about school. One letter said that children take useless subjects. In high school there are only seven required subjects. They are three years of English, one year of general science, one year of American history, one-half year of civics, four years of physical education, one year of art, and one year of music. Of these subjects I can see none that is useless.

To graduate you must have 36 credits. To get these credits you must take other subjects. These subjects are picked by the child. They pick any old subject just because a friend is taking it, so they take it just to get enough credits to graduate. If some one is surprised to graduate it is probably because they didn't think they did enough work to graduate. I would like some one to name a subject they feel is useless, and why.

CARL THOMPSON,
A Student.

HE'S FOR THE GRAND TOURS.

Des Moines, Ia., March 7.—The first lady of the land is now on her way again into foreign lands. Would there be any significance to this long journey, outside of the fact that she is using airplanes and gas and eating food? If so it is well that the narrow minded bigots and haters have their say and I look for some timely remarks to be submitted to your paper. Your column is in a class by itself—a wailing wall for sure. WHEN INSURANCE BENEFICIARY DIES FIRST.

Streator, Ill., March 10.—My husband has an insurance policy made payable to his first wife who is deceased. He claims that I will be the beneficiary after his death. Is this correct, or will the money be divided between his son and me? M. F.

It seems probable that the policy is so worded that it would go to his estate, which would mean that you and his son would both share.

Last Letter to Friends Airs Philosophy.

"'I have come back home.'

"And thank you, no flowers. Does anybody feel moved to send flowers, I'd prefer that they give the money they'd spend there to some local nondenominational charity. Cover the spot with leaves—Christmas berries from the flatlands and cedar from the friendly low McCracken county ridges if it be winter, and leafy boughs from native hickories or hackberries or crabapples if it be in other seasons.

"Above all I want no long faces and no show of grief at the burying ground. Kindly observe the final wishes of the undersigned and avoid reading the so-called Christian burial service which, in view of the language employed in it, I regard as one of the most cruel and paganish things inherited by our forbears from our remote pagan ancestors.

Asks 23d Psalm Read.

"In deference to the faith of our dear mother, who was thru her lifetime a loyal tho never a bigoted communicant of that congregation, perhaps the current pastor of the First Presbyterian church would consent to read the 23d psalm, which was her favorite passage in the scriptures and is mine since it contains no charnel words. No morbid mouthings about corruption and decay and, being mercifully without creed or dogma, carries no threat of eternal hell fire for those parties we do not like, no direct promise of a heaven which, if one may judge by the people who are surest of going there, must be a powerfully dull place, populated to a considerable and uncomfortable degree by prigs, time servers, and unpleasantly aggressive individuals. Hell may have a worse climate, but undoubtedly the company is sprightlier.

"The Catholics, with their genius for stage management, handle this detail better. The officiating clergyman speaks in Latin and the parishioners, being unacquainted with that language, are impressed by the mystery and the majesty of the rolling, sonorous periods without being shocked by distressing allusions and harrowing references.

Dignity and Beauty.

"As an aside I might add that my notion of an ideal religion would combine the dignity and the beauty of the Romanist ritual with certain other ingredients; the good taste and the ability of the Unitarians and Episcopalians—a trait not too common to some of the Evangelical groups—to mind their own business.

"I'm proud that I never set myself up to be my brother's keeper, having been sufficiently occupied by the job of being my own keeper. To these add the noble ethics and the splendid tolerance expressed in reformed Judaism; the study in independence and the good business principals of the Mormons; the gentle humility and ordered humanity of the Quakers, plus the militant zeal and unselfish devotion of those shock troops of the lord—the Salvation Army, who fight in the trenches of sin's no man's land to reclaim the tortured souls and clothe the naked bodies of those whom the rest of a snobbish world forgot.

"If, based on this combination, there was a determination to practice the sectless preachments and the teachings of Jesus Christ, who was the first true gentleman of recorded history and the greatest gentleman that ever lived, I might not have joined the fold but certainly I'd have stood on the side lines and cheered for it.

"But getting back to what I was talking about: I am a life member of Paducah lodge, No. 17, B. P. O. E., but I'd prefer that the burial program of the order not be read. Like most burial programs it needs editing. However, if the members desire to turn out, either as a body or singly, I'll be very glad to have them present. Judging by my latest visits to the basement of the Elks' club it wouldn't do them a bit of harm if some of the habitues there got out in the open air if only for a trip to a cemetery.

Songs By Friends.

"For the windup, I'd be grateful if some of my colored friends sang, first 'Swing Low, Sweet Chariot,' and then 'Deep River.' I think I could count on Mattie Copeland of Jones st., who for so many years was a loyal, loving servant of my family, to recruit the singers from the choirs of our colored churches.

"I was almost overlooking one item: I take it that there will be no need for pallbearers, as the trade term goes. Pallbearers are another surviving relic of heathen practices. Recalling how this pair of my friends could cuddle to their bosoms three of a kind in a dollar limit game, I'd nominate either George Goodman or Will Gilbert as a dependable custodian of my mortal remains on the trip to the burying ground. Anyhow, properly rendered down, my ashes shouldn't much more than fill a Mason's fruit jar.

"Among others I'd like to invite to go along for the ride—provided they promise it be cheerful and bright—I think of Col. Gus Thompson, Fred Neuman, Herbert Wallerstein, Jim Smith, Douglas Bagby, Ed Paxton, Capt. Louis Igert, Fletch Terrell, Ed Scott, Jim English, Henry Well, A. R. Meyers, Dr. Warren Sights, Dr. Frank Boyd, Linn Boyd, Roy Nelson, Tom Waller, Jack Fisher, Roy McKinney, James D. Langstaff, Morton Hand, Henry Ward, Leo Keller, Elliott Mitchell, the Rev. Custis Fletcher, Luther Carson, Sam Langstaff, Charley Vahlkamp, Wade Sowell, Bob Moshell, and Charley Beard. If I have overlooked any suitable candidates I beg their pardon. Ladies also welcome with or without escorts.

"I rather figure some of my fellow townspeople might favor memorial exercises of sorts, either in connection with the funeral or elsewhere. Personally I have no objection, only desiring that no dismal note be permitted to ooze into the proceedings. Keep the thing cheerful, boys and girls.

Make It Snappy.

"If somebody feels called upon to speak, I'd like to suggest for the job—well, say Tom Waller. He could be depended upon to be neither verbose nor lacrymose. Or if Waller isn't available there's Jack Fisher or Jim Wheeler or Roy Shelbourne. Only make it snappy.

"Well, I reckon that will be about all except that I extend, in passing, my affectionate and grateful regards to the gracious and generous folks who make up overwhelmingly the dwellers in my home community and my native section. You've been mighty good to me and I appreciate it. Much obliged, you—all, and goodby and bless you and prosper you.

U. S. HOLDS TWO FOR SIDE MONEY OPA VIOLATIONS

Mrs. Catherine Warak, 41, of 1144 Addison st., and Louis Fleck, 38, of 1643 N. La Salle st., employes of the Cougle Commission company at 1135 W. Randolph st., were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday on charges of receiving and soliciting side payments from customers in excess of ceiling prices on poultry.

They pleaded not guilty and were released under $1,500 bond each for hearing March 16. Richard G. Finn, assistant United States attorney, said they were arrested after office of price administration agents allegedly saw Mrs. Warak accept $50 in marked money from Mrs. Frank Bakalla, wife of the owner of the Victory Poultry Market, 1942 W. Chicago av.

Finn quoted Mrs. Bakalla as saying that she ordered 10 coops of chickens by telephone and that Fleck told her the chickens would cost $5 a coop extra. When she called for the chickens, she didn't have the extra money, she said, and Fleck told her to get it. She then informed the OPA, Finn said, and the agents watched when she returned and paid Mrs. Warak the additional $50.

DOOMED SLAYER GIVEN MENTAL TESTS IN CELL

Paul Williams, who is scheduled to die in the electric chair Wednesday for the holdup murder of a south side grocer, was examined in the county jail yesterday by two psychiatrists appointed by the state board of pardons and paroles. The examination was ordered by the board on the petition of Williams' attorney, Francis J. Callahan, who said there was a record of insanity in Williams' childhood. Williams was convicted and sentenced to death last Sept. 17, five days after he shot and killed the grocer, Thomas Papayanis.

PADUCAH PLANS RITES FOR COBB IN MANNER ASKED

Humorist Requested a Simple Funeral.

Paducah, Ky., March 10 [Special].—Home town friends of Irvin S. Cobb planned tonight to carry out his funeral in the modest manner he specified in a sealed letter opened here today following his death in New York City.

The noted author, actor, and after dinner speaker asked that the final rites be plain, that there be no showy mourning, and that his ashes be used to fertilize a dogwood tree on the family cemetery lot here, "monument enough for me."

It was considered likely, however, that there will be some more ceremony than Cobb felt he should have. The American flag on Paducah's new federal building was immediately lowered to half-staff when word came home that the town's famous son was dead.

Was Ill 3 Months.

Cobb was loyal to Paducah, and Paducah was loyal to him. In evidence of the citizens' affection is a city park, a bridge over the Ohio river, and an eight story hotel—all named for him.

Cobb's death climaxed an illness of three months during which he remarked that his doctors "talk big about ultimate recovery, but these babies can't fool me." He was in a coma during his last 24 hours.

His wife, the former Laura Spencer Baker of Savannah, Ga., to whom he had been married 44 years, was with him when he died. He is survived also by a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Cobb Rogers of New York, the author of several successful novels.

Cobb Was 67 Years Old.

The author, who was 67, was born here, the son of a Confederate soldier. At 16 he was a cartoonist on a Paducah paper and at 19 was its managing editor. His career took him to the New York Sun and New York World, the Hearst publications, the Saturday Evening Post, to Europe as a foreign correspondent in World War I., and to a place as one of America's best known humorists.

He wrote so much he lost count of his output, but eight years ago estimated it at about 60 full length books, more than 300 short stories, and from 2,000 to 5,000 feature articles. One of his last books, his autobiography, "Exit Laughing."

Tho a Democrat, he supported Wendell Willkie in 1940 terming him "the only Democrat I know who is running for President."

ARMY OF WASPS WILL WAGE WAR ON CORN BORERS

BY GAIL COMPTON.

Illinois farm fields will be turned into battle grounds this summer when the department of agriculture releases swarms of wasps and flies to attack and kill the European corn borer which is ravaging the crops. The parasites will come from New Jersey where they will be collected by the United States department of agriculture.

Two different types of small wasps and a fly resembling the house fly will be used as parasites to prey on the borer. This practice of parasitization has been employed with moderate success in the eastern part of the nation. In Massachusetts up to 30 per cent of the borers were killed in some areas, and an average of 12 per cent were killed with the parasites thruout the state.

Release Parasites in July.

The wasps and flies will be released in Illinois some time in June, according to J. N. Wright, entomologist with the Illinois State Natural History survey. They will prey on the borers during July when the borer is half grown.

The wasps turn the tables on the borers by doing a little boring of their own. They penetrate the borers' body and lay eggs in it. The fly deposits its eggs on the outside of the borer. Both parasites crawl into the tunnel made by the borer in the corn stalk to do their work.

Eggs Live on Borers.

The eggs of the parasites live on the bodies of the borer and continue to feast on them even when the borer goes into the pupa stage. Then instead of a new generation of borers appearing from the pupa stage, a new generation of wasps or flies emerges to continue the good work. The borer is killed by the young parasites inside its protective shell.

Wright declared, however, that farmers must not rely solely on the parasites to clean their fields of borers.

INFANT WELFARE TO QUIT 6 PARK FIELDHOUSES

Philip D. Armour, president of the Infant Welfare society, said yesterday the Chicago park district has asked the society to move its stations from six park fieldhouses.

The request that the society find new quarters was made by Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, and George T. Donoghue, general superintendent, and the negotiations were conducted "on the most cordial terms," Armour said.

"There was no deadline set as to when we would move and there is no friction because of the request," he continued. "We are still operating in the park stations and we shall continue to do so until we find satisfactory space elsewhere.

"Dunham explained that he was sorry to do this, but policy demanded it. He told us that since we were not supported by federal, state, or municipal funds, he could see no justification for permitting the society to occupy park quarters."

How to make a WAR GARDEN

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Gardeners who wish to grow their own vegetable seedlings for transplanting to the garden in May and June still have time to make small, simple hotbeds, but this job should be completed as soon as possible, and certainly within the next two weeks.

Perhaps the simplest hotbed is that built on the south side of a residence around a basement window. This type of hotbed is heated by air coming thru the open window and by the natural heat of the sun thru the glass sash which is used to cover the bed. It is not necessary to dig a pit under such a hotbed, since no manure is used. The required temperature in a hotbed is 65 to 70 degrees, and this heat can be maintained even during March and April by opening the basement window to the necessary degree [according to the outdoor temperature].

Florists' Flats Recommended.

In a hotbed of this type the seeds can be planted directly in a seedbed under the sash, but a preferable method is that of seeding in small wooden florists' flats. By using flats the gardener can prepare a light soil, if necessary by adding sand to his yard soil, and plant the flats indoors for later transfer to the hotbed.

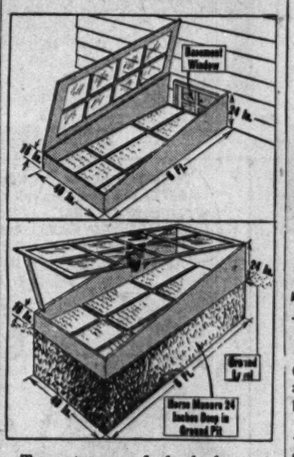
If the gardener has no basement window for such a hotbed, he can build a permanent hotbed in any open area of the yard. The necessary heat for such a hotbed must come from the fermentation of horse manure placed in a pit under the frame. The manure can extend to within four inches of ground level if the seeds are to be planted in porous soil over the manure. If florists' flats are to be used the manure can be at ground level and the flats placed on 2 by 4 boards.

Size Depends on Garden.

The size of the hotbed can vary according to the size of the garden to be planted and the building materials available. An ordinary storm window can be used for coverage, and the size of the hotbed may vary according to the size of the storm window available. The temperature inside the hotbed must be controled by opening and closing the glass covers according to the outdoor temperature.

The gardener on the Tribune Farm, Wheaton, already has made greenhouse plantings of Crimson Cushion tomatoes, Pascal celery, Prague celeriac, Corinthian leek, California Bell peppers, Black Beauty eggplants, Snowball cauliflower, dwarf green kale, and Jersey Queen cabbages. Gardeners who have hotbeds ready for use can make similar plantings now.

Two Hotbeds



Two types of hotbeds, one drawing heat thru a basement window, the other heated by the fermentation of manure. The glass sash may be attached either on the side or at the tip of the frame, the latter hinging being preferred.

CRASH IN IOWA KILLS CADET AND HIS INSTRUCTOR

Cedar Rapids, Ia., March 10 (AP).—Pete L. Thomas, 19, Enid, Okla., former halfback on the Tulsa university football team, and his instructor, William Clark, 38, Cedar Rapids, were killed yesterday when a training plane crashed after shearing off a wing in a midair collision. The other plane was landed safely. Thomas was a student flyer in the army air forces college training detachment at Coe college here.

Indiana, Michigan Flyers Die.

San Francisco, Cal., March 10 (AP).—The navy today announced names of three flyers killed Wednesday in the crash of a plane at Monterey. They included John Blackburn, 21, Bedford, Ind., and Charles Boyer, 20, Scottsville, Mich.

SEE COURT TEST ON DIVORCE FOR ABSENT SOLDIER

An opportunity to test the court issue whether a man in military service can obtain a divorce by deposition was made possible yesterday by the executive committee of Circuit court judges.

Chief Justice Frank Bicek, Judge Philip J. Finnegan, and Judge Julius H. Miner, meeting as a committee, decided to permit a complete hearing in Circuit court of the divorce action filed for Walter Scherenberg, a soldier now in Hawaii, who accused his Texan wife of infidelity.

Because Scherenberg's wife is not contesting the bill, it is possible that the hearing court will appoint a friend of the court to represent the public and argue the legality of a deposition divorce. Lawyers said yesterday it is likely that the public's representative will appeal the case to the Illinois Supreme court.

DRAKE GUN ONCE A TACK HAMMER, TESTS DISCLOSE

Slayer's Perfume Lingers in Working Parts.

The revolver with which Mrs. Frank Starr Williams was killed in the Drake hotel Jan. 19 had been carried in a woman's purse so long that the odor of the killer's perfume permeated the working parts of the gun, Chief of Detectives Sullivan said yesterday when the department released complete data on the gun.

Cover plate on hammer slot housing of revolver used to kill Mrs. Williams. It shows where it was pried off and along edges where it was used as hammer when cover plate was off.

Sullivan and Charles Wilson, head of the crime laboratory, said the odor was not strong enough to be identified. Wilson's report on the revolver, an Iver-Johnson .38 caliber model manufactured in 1910, was released in the hope that a former owner or an acquaintance of the owner might identify it.

Used as Tack Hammer.

The blued steel, five shot revolver was sold so many years ago that sales records have been lost and efforts to trace it have proved futile. Its serial number is D-37449. It apparently has been used as a tack hammer as well as a weapon.

Wilson pointed out that nicks and scratches on the handle show rough usage. The front sight is loose and there is evidence of repairs by an inexperienced person using a semi-circular punch and a cold chisel or screw driver.

Makeshift Pins Used.

"The two pins that held the barrel to the stock were removed and ordinary finishing nails substituted," Wilson added.

Wilson also noted that the gun apparently was carried for many years in a holster, as the blue coloring on each side of the stock was worn away by the friction of long contact with leather.

CAB DRIVER DIES OF INJURIES IN HAMMOND CRASH

Roy McAttee, 27, of 126 156th pl., Calumet City, was fatally injured yesterday when his taxicab collided with an automobile driven by Joseph Kalopach Jr., 20, of 1515 Fred st., Hammond, at the intersection of Calumet and Chicago avenues, in Hammond. McAttee died last night in St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond. Four other persons suffered slight injuries.

Patrick Lyon, 69, of 4328 Harrison st., a retired post office clerk, died in Garfield Park hospital of injuries suffered March 8 when he was struck by an automobile at Van Buren st. and Kildare av. The driver was Floyd White of 4244 Harrison st.

HARRY V. CHURCH, LONG IN SCHOOL WORK, DIES AT 70

Harry V. Church, who as superintendent of the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero from 1899 to 1933 saw the school grow from 54 students to an enrolment of 8,600, died Thursday in Seattle, Wash., school officials were notified yesterday.

Mr. Church was 70. He had served as secretary and treasurer of the department of secondary school principals of the National Education association and secretary of the National Honor society.

He leaves his widow, Katherine, two daughters, and three sons. Memorial services will be held at 3:30 p. m. Monday in the Presbyterian church in Berwyn.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

W. G. writes: "I will be 18 on May 3 and I want to get into the coast guard, but I also want to graduate from high school in June. I have been told that when I sign up for the draft I have to wait until I am called and cannot enlist. On the other hand, a friend in the coast guard told me I could enlist while I am still 17 and not have to quit school until I graduate. Which is right?"

ANSWER: If you want to get into the coast guard you will have to enlist before you are 18, but they have no "hold-over" plan whereby you may continue in school until you graduate. You cannot get in after you are 18 because they do not have a share in the draft quotas at the induction station.

G. F. A. writes: "I was among the first in my state to be selected for training under the selective service and training act of 1940 and during my training I was disabled. Am I not entitled to compensation?"

ANSWER: Since this service was compulsory it certainly would seem that you are entitled to compensation, but the veterans' administration says: "Selectees under the selective training and service act of 1940 are not entitled to disability monetary benefits under present legislation, as they do not acquire a military status unless and until they are actually inducted into ACTIVE military service."

M. G. A. writes: "I was rejected from service last September and classified 4-F. At the time I was submitted for induction the company I am employed by observed a strict policy of not asking for deferments for any one. Due to the heavy inroads on personnel in my department, the company has revised its policy somewhat to request deferments for certain men. Would there be any particular advantage or necessity of my company filing form 42-A in my behalf at this time in view of my present classification?"

ANSWER: Your 4-F classification has no relationship to occupational necessity. Therefore, if your employer has any idea you are a "necessary man" in your present activity it probably would be advisable that he file a form 42-A with your local board so that if the physical standards are changed to include as eligible for service men with your defects you could then be considered for occupational deferment. If he doesn't file the 42-A you might be called before he had a chance to do so.

M. F. A. asks: "Is there any place to which a seaman's family may turn for financial assistance? I have been in a hospital ever since my ship was torpedoed and my wife simply must have some money."

ANSWER: Thru a program known as "aid to dependent children," funds have been made available by the government to the families of merchant seamen. The money is distributed thru local state relief agencies to which application is made.

CRIME SCHOOL'S SECRETS TOLD BY FAGIN'S GIRL AID

Temptation Related at Check Trial.

A young Kentucky farm girl told a jury in Criminal court yesterday of coming to Chicago, getting a job in a South State st. tavern, and later becoming a member of a check passing gang that netted more than $100,000 during its months of operation.

The witness was Donna Peay, 21, of 867 Oakwood av., who testified as a state's witness against Walter J. Pelka, reputed leader of the gang, and two of his accused aids. Miss Peay has been convicted of operating a confidence game and a motion for probation is pending before Chief Justice Benjamin P. Epstein.

Tells of Tempting Offer.

The young woman said she came to Chicago from a farm near Louisville last July and got a job in the tavern as a waitress and dice girl. She said she met Pelka in the place and that when she complained of the hard work and long hours, he asked her if she would like to make more money with easier hours, wear beautiful clothes and go out to nice places.

When she and a companion agreed that the prospect was pleasing, she said, Pelka explained they should pose as war workers and that he would supply them with various identification badges and papers needed to cash checks. She said Pelka told them, "We need new faces all the time."

Pelka, she said, got them a new apartment on the south side, had them dress in slacks and do their hair up in knots to represent war workers, and then drilled them in what they were to say when they cashed the checks in various stores after making small purchases.

"I don't want you to make any slips," he told them.

Each Check for $32.26.

She said that Pelka supplied them with social security cards and war worker badges and took them out on a tour of south side stores. She said each check was for $32.26, the amount earned by the women workers in the plant on which the checks were drawn. She said that she and her companion had cashed about a dozen checks between them.

"At one place a jeweler said he couldn't cash the check and took me to a currency exchange which wouldn't cash it," she testified. "I was scared and shaking all over. When I told Pelka about it, he said, 'get a bite to eat and it will settle your nerves.'"

The witness said Pelka gave them $80 or $85 for their joint share of the day's check passing and that when she told him she was scared and wanted to quit, he warned her, "that's too bad now, you're in it now and it doesn't make any difference whether you cash one check or a hundred." The witness said that Pelka intimated that something would happen to girls that didn't go along.

OBITUARIES

The Rev. Guy K. Neal.

The Rev. Guy K. Neal, 67, organizer and pastor of the Zion Gospel tabernacle, which has branches in Chicago, Waukegan, Michigan City, and Minneapolis, died yesterday in his home at 2715 Elizabeth av., Zion. The Rev. Mr. Neal joined the Christian Catholic church of Zion in 1898 and served as an evangelist and elder under the late John Alexander Dowie until 1921, when he was ordained an apostle. He spent 1932-'33 as a missionary in the British Isles, and when he returned, he broke with Wilbur Glenn Voliva, who had succeeded Dowie, and organized the Zion Gospel tabernacle. He is survived by his widow, Lily; a daughter, Bette Ann, and a son, Martin. Services will be held at 10 a. m. Monday at Et. Edmund's church, Oak Park.

BUSY ENGINEER HIRES MAN AND TROUBLES BEGIN

Told He Can't Have Him; Got Him.

James R. Cavanaugh, 43, president of the Industrial Engineering company at 4124 Madison st., has been so busy making blue prints for aircraft and radio companies working on war contracts, that he had no idea, until recently, that it was against the law for him to hire a new employe without permission of the government bureaus. But he knows now.

"For six weeks I've been trying to get permission to hire just one lone draftsman," he said yesterday.

"I wrote letters, I made telephone calls, I filled out forms. But always the answer was the same. I couldn't have the man.

Says He Blew Up.

"But I did have him, because while I was appealing all these decisions he's been working for me. Ten to 12 hours a day. What happens? A man came here, said he was from the United States employment service, and spotted this employe. The way he acted you would have thought I'd sabotaged the war effort. I blew up."

Cavanaugh said his bout with the USES and the war man power commission started when Mario Simboli, 28, of 752 N. Mayfield av., told him that his talents as a draftsman were not being fully utilized by the La Salle Designing company at 628 W. Lake st.

Part time he was running errands, he said, altho he was paid $1.10 an hour. Cavanaugh offered him $1.60 an hour. But, Simboli says, his employer refused to release him and as a disciplinary measure for seeking another job, laid him off for three days.

Deaf to All Appeals.

"So Simboli asked the USES for a certificate of availability so he could work for me, but they turned him down," Cavanaugh continued. "He then appealed, lost, turned to the WMC, lost. But all the time he was working for me, because we are short of help. And then this fellow from the USES came. He said, 'Simboli must go; you must separate him from the concern.' So I threw in the sponge. I told Simboli he was fired, and then I asked him what he was going to do. Simboli said he was going to go home and play with his kid for 60 days, after which, according to this funny work law, he would be free to come to work for me.

"'You mean you're going to loaf all that time, with men needed so badly?' I asked. When he said that was what he was going to do I decided that Simboli and I had some constitutional rights, and I hired him back. Now it's up to the WMC and my lawyer. Let them figure it out. Simboli and I have work to do."

J. H. HUMMEL, 65, FORMER TRIBUNE PARIS CHIEF, DIES

According to cabled information received yesterday, Jules H. [Jack] Hummel, 65, former manager of the Paris edition of THE TRIBUNE, died Dec. 15 of uremia at his home in France.

Born Nov. 12, 1878, in Sandwich, Ill., Hummel joined The Tribune staff in Chicago as assistant to the former auditor, D. M. Deininger, in 1909. He was employed in the local offices until 1916, when he was sent to Canada to arrange a pulpwood purchase for the paper. On completion of that assignment, he went to Quebec to assist THE TRIBUNE'S Ontario paper company in establishing its Shelter bay plant.

In 1921 Hummel was sent to Paris when THE TRIBUNE revised its foreign staff and in 1924 became manager of the Paris edition, a position which he held until the edition was suspended in 1934. On Jan. 26, 1935, he was retired on a Tribune pension. Since that date, according to friends, he is believed to have been living at his villa near Paris.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO J. C. LINCOLN, 74, CAPE COD NOVELIST

Winter Park, Fla., March 10 (AP).—Joseph C. Lincoln, 74, who wrote scores of novels centering around the rugged New England Cape Cod section he knew as a boy, died here today at a hotel of a heart attack. Lincoln was an associate editor of the League of American Wheelmen Bulletin until 1899, when he moved from Boston to New York. His writing career, which saw him turn out two score works, really began in 1902 when he published his "Cape Cod Ballads." Some of his other books were the "Old Home House," "Quahaug," "Extricating Obadiah," "Shavings," "Silas Bradford's Boy," "Cape Cod Yesterdays," and "Great Aunt Lavinia." Lincoln maintained a summer home at Chatham, Mass.

BLAME ODT BUS LINE CURB FOR LABOR SCARCITY

Government bureaus which have crippled Chicago transportation services with arbitrary restrictions are responsible for the acute labor shortage which other burocrats say exists in war plants in this area, it was charged yesterday at a meeting of the council's local transportation committee.

"Chicago is a labor shortage area because transportation is not adequate, and jobs at war plants are not attractive to workers who have no way of getting to them except by walking," said Ald. Quinn [50th], chairman.

The committee members voted to recommend that the council send letters to the war man power commission, the office of defense transportation, and the war production board, demanding the restoration of bus services which have been abandoned by government orders, and the establishment of some new routes.

Members said the city should ask that the Kimball av. bus line be restored.

Varied Events Are Included on Calendar for Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO gatherings at the Arts club, an Easter seal tea, a reception for a visiting Polish prince, and a college alumnae luncheon are on the week-end's varied program.

The Arts club has a substantial waiting list of guests hoping to obtain last minute cancellations for tomorrow night's dinner preceding a program by the Gordon String quartet. Among the fortunate ones assured of reservations for this popular club event are Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, Mrs. Dennis Gent, Mrs. Clifford Norris, Mrs. John Welcher, Mrs. Robert Griffin, Miss Margaret Sweeney, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mrs. Winterbotham Badger, Mrs. H. Lee Buswell, Mrs. Thomas Marshall, and John Palmer. The quartet will choose its selections from the works of Debussy and Shostakovich.

The club will be crowded this morning when Dr. Oliver St. John Gogarty speaks before friends of Poetry magazine in the second of a series sponsored by a committee to raise funds for the magazine. Dr. Gogarty, one of Ireland's most celebrated wits, will speak on "Poets I Have Known," and afterward he will be among Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell's luncheon guests at the club. Monday night Dr. Gogarty will speak at the Francis W. Parker school, answering the charges made in the will of the late Mrs. George Bernard Shaw that the Irish are awkward, shy, uneducated, and inarticulate.

Other Week-End Events.

The consular corps, members of the American Friends of Poland, and civic leaders have been invited to a reception which the Polish consul general, Dr. Karol Ripa, is giving at 5 p. m. today in the Drake hotel's French room for Prince Olgierd Czartoryski. The prince arrived in Chicago Wednesday to spend 10 days, having landed in New York recently from Brazil on his first visit to this country.

Early in the war the prince's possessions in Poland were confiscated by the Germans, and he was saved at the last minute from death before a Nazi firing squad only by the intervention of the pope and of the queen of Italy, who is a first cousin of his wife. Since then he has represented the Polish government in exile and now is South American delegate for the Polish Red Cross. Mrs. Ripa is vacationing in Florida and so will miss today's party.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Willett will entertain at tea from 3 to 5 p. m. tomorrow to boost the annual appeal for crippled children thru the sale of Easter seals. Miss Thecla Doniat, a founder of the Illinois Association for the Crippled, will assist in receiving, along with Mrs. Edward Compere, Mrs. Byron Kanaley, Mrs. Frank L. Beals, Mrs. Will A. Wade, and Mrs. Frank M. Padden, among others. George H. Williamson heads the association.

Three young women whose services Mr. Willett purchased in a recent war bond sale will run the elevator leading to the Willett penthouse atop 20 N. Wacker dr. They are Miss Patricia Lannan, Miss Yvonne Hoskins, and Miss Mary Alice Dolan.

The Chicago chapter of the Connecticut College Alumnae association is entertaining at luncheon today for the college's new president, Dr. Dorothy Schaffter. The party will be given at the Woman's Athletic club and will follow a meeting of the Woman's College Board of Chicago at 11 a. m. at the College club. Miss Grace Louise Bull of Glencoe, president of the chapter, will miss the luncheon as she is in Florida.

Also on the Calendar.

The Midwest badminton tournament will be held today and tomorrow at the Evanston Township High school, taking the place of the national tournament, which will not be held for the duration. Milwaukee, Wis., will be represented by its championship men's doubles team of Dean Foote and Jack Riday. The veteran's class for men over 40 will be part of the tournament again. There will be a cocktail party and luncheon for contestants just before the finals tomorrow.

The Columbia Yacht club will give its annual Beachcomber's ball tonight, with prizes awarded for the most appropriately dressed masculine and feminine beachcombers.

Yves Simon, professor of philosophy at the University of Notre Dame, will speak at the Alliance Francaise weekly lecture at 11:30 a. m. today in the Fine Arts building.

Doubled Tax April 1 Spurs Buying of Furs

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

The gentleman who is thinking of buying his wife a new fur coat—or a new coat with fur on it—for next Christmas would be prudent and economical to do it before April 1, the date the present 10 per cent tax on furs is doubled.

Despite the purse strain obtaining from the March 15 obligation to Uncle Sam the "buy now" policy still is indicated to the man—or woman—with a fur coat to buy since fur forecasts point to continuing high prices, exclusive of the new tax.

A survey of Chicago coat departments yesterday showed large stocks of furs and also of fur-trimmed cloth coats still available.

Steady buying thruout the past 18 months has disclosed, furriers said, that preferences were running to muskrat and Persian lamb, but that women "still buy fur coats from a vanity angle" notwithstanding war and taxes. That is, a woman wants glamor with her coat, if she can achieve it, and she is apt to buy a fur with inferior wearing qualities if it suits her fancy and becomes her.

Women are paying an average of $300 to $500 for fur coats, but prices range from $100 upward. Prices of fur-trimmed cloth coats generally range from $60 to $130.

Individual stores reported provisions for buying now to avoid the tax. One furrier said a woman might charge her purchase now or she might arrange a budget basis and avoid the tax. But, a definite plan must be made now. Just a cash down payment with a loose "pay the rest later" understanding means that the 20 per cent tax will have to be paid on the outstanding balance.

Women's war jobs are creating many first time fur coat buyers, it was disclosed. Another source of new business is the first time purchasers of fur scarves.

Fur salesrooms reported a lack of the wild buying that characterized the eve of the 10 per cent tax or the chaos that accompanied shoe rationing—when people bought all wearing apparel in sight in anticipation of further garment rationing. The postponement of the application of the 20 per cent tax is also believed to have reduced rush purchasing. Originally set for Jan. 1, the date was moved to Feb. 1, then to March 1, and finally to April 1.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

So to Bed.

"If I were having trouble with my back I'd just go to bed," they say to you. . . . "yes . . . just go to bed and stay there and rest . . . that's what I'd do."

"Really?" you say.

"Really."

As a cure you'll grant it this much—it's inexpensive! No downtown lunches . . . no transportation . . . no tempting department store sales. You decide to try it.

You've read articles about how to be "sick gaily," so you get out your fancy bed jacket. The drooping, dejected thing has hung in the closet so long it has taken on a new hue—ashes of roses—well, ashes, anyway. You hunt up your breakfast-in-bed tray—a misnomer if you've ever heard one. So far it has served solely as a typewriter table.

The Room in Order.

But, there's a catch to going to bed. First of all, if you must stare at the room you simply have to put it to order. No two ways about it. . . . nothing will do but that you put the room to rights. You go thru several stacks of magazines, clear off your desk, straighten the closet [some one might leave the door open], and then you decide it won't take a minute to hang those pictures that have been down since the wall paper was cleaned last fall.

How are you doing? Fine! Then you remember a backrest somewhere in the store room and, after all, you might as well be comfortable, so you patter down to the basement [which is a trifle chilly] and there you undo three large packages. One turns out to be the backrest, which also has changed color. It's a pallid green.

Ready now to hop into bed, but there's your mail! Maybe you should take this opportunity to get all caught up on your correspondence. So you putter around the room, collecting one thing and another until you find three unpaid bills—which you pay—and that gives you an idea. Perhaps you'd better spend a few moments balancing your check book just in case you can't afford this sinking spell!

Rest at Last.

At last you're ready when your eye lights on the files. Heavenly day! What a mess! You carry three folders to bed and by this time there's barely room for you what with all you've piled up. You slide in . . . the telephone rings. Someone is delighted to find you home and how's everybody at your house? Great! And how's everybody at your house? You hang up and the telephone rings again. It's someone else elated to find you home and won't you please write a check to keep the spirit of '76 alive in these perilous times?

And, your dog is delighted to find you home. Just to show his appreciation he jumps and sits down adroitly in the middle of a typewriter drawing you've been saving for St. Patrick's day. The telephone rings again . . . then the door bell. On the steps there's a little man with a big machine . . . you'd told him [and you should have remembered] to come to clean the rugs . . . O, come right in . . . bring in that half-track tank destroyer . . . come in . . . come in.

Taffeta Bags Most Popular in Spring Array

BY REA SEEGER.

Gloomy stories about the scarcity of leather handbags and somewhat exaggerated tales about the stratospheric price marks on the few all-leather bags still available are getting around. But seasoned shoppers show little consternation about the state of handbag showings once they see the clever ideas promoted as substitutes for leather. Some of those in the early spring collections surpass colored leathers as crisp dramatics for any costume.

The famous team of bag and matching hat or bag with matching gloves still clicks. This spring the taffeta beauties break all existing records for color, contrast, and pattern. They come in clean, precise stripes, ranging from the narrow candy stripe to awning widths, huge checks, eye blinding plaids, and classic dots of all sizes. Most of the bags are of the pouch style or are gathered, with taffeta covered rings or loops for carrying over the arm. Deep and wide, capaciously satisfying pouches hold everything from ration cards to unfinished sweaters.

Next to the taffeta beauties come the smart street bags of felt and fabric, the felts soft and simply tailored, ideal for use with suits and slim coats. All bright colors are obtainable as well as street shades of blue, black, copper, dark beige, and brown. Ribbed fabrics are new, fashioned into neat little pouch bags with a drawstring. Metal eyelets in the bag are decorative and the drawstring is the same color as the bag. Contrast colors, navy, black, and brown, provide a good color choice.

Women in War Work

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Louisa Farrand.

For the last 18 months Miss Farrand has been the head of a club situated near the headquarters station of the 8th air force "somewhere in England." She had a choice of United States territory to canvass for the campaign and chose the midwest because the men her organization serves in Britain are from this area.

"The men ask innumerable questions and by visiting their own section of the country I can 'recharge' my knowledge and bring back the answers," Miss Farrand said.

Her description of a Red Cross club director gives a vivid picture of the job she does 14 to 16 hours a day. She said she is like a "manager of a large hotel in war time, a duchess in a drawing room, a matron in an orphan asylum, and the ringmaster of a six ring circus."

Miss Farrand established the first Red Cross recreational center in Ireland and has set up numerous other such centers since. She deals with the British ministry of supply, which provides quarters, rations, and furnishings on a reciprocal aid basis.

Most of the volunteers who serve in varied capacities at the 8th air force club are British women who work in factories during the day and devote their evenings to assisting Miss Farrand and the understaffed Red Cross organization.

Miss Farrand will return to her duties in Britain after her current tour. Among the things she will take back with her are lipstick and nail polish, as well as toilet water. "The men like them," she said. "Anything which can help a woman to look feminine always pleases the men."

Miss Farrand joined the Red Cross two years ago. Her years on college campuses with her father, Livingstone Farrand, at one time president of Cornell university, especially qualified her to work with young men. She always has been close to the organization for which she now is working, because Dr. Farrand was national head of the Red Cross at the close of the last war and was responsible for the plan upon which the organization operated in peace time.

Men in the maritime service who visit the canteen of the Navy Mothers' club at 6 p. m. tomorrow will meet Actress Joan Blondell, who is appearing here currently in "Something for the Boys." The party will be the joint project of the mothers' group and of the Navy Sisters and Wives' club, an auxiliary, and will be given at headquarters, 335 N. Michigan av.

Mrs. Harriet Weber is canteen chairman for the mothers, and Miss Joan De Cooke for the sisters and wives.

The auxiliary will open an intensive drive for members Tuesday under the chairmanship of Miss Ora Guetter. The organization will have a general meeting at 7:30 p. m. Prizes of box seats to "Something for the Boys" will be awarded to members bringing in the greatest number of recruits. The only eligibility requirement is that a prospective member be the wife or sister of a man in the navy, coast guard, or marine corps.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

TWO weddings of interest here are taking place today in New York City. The marriage of Miss Sally Tritsch to Orville Chase Wetmore, which will be solemnized at high noon in St. James' chapel of St. John the Divine cathedral in New York City, has taken a number of Mr. Wetmore's relatives east for the ceremony, including his mother, Mrs. Harold A. Moore of Evanston. Mr. Moore will be his stepson's best man. Also present will be the Kenneth Moores and their daughter, Patricia; Mr. Wetmore's grandmother, Mrs. Frank O. Wetmore, and the Horace O. Wetmores. The latter's sons, Horace Jr. and Frank G. III., will go to New York from the Groton school.

The bride's uncle, Dr. Albert O. Tritsch, will perform the ceremony. Miss Tritsch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John E. Tritsch of New York, will have Miss Betty Hauf of Washington, D. C., as maid of honor. Carleton Dickerman of Spencer, Mass., will usher with the bride's brothers, John Grant Tritsch of Wilmington, Del., and Robert Grant Tritsch, a sophomore at Princeton. Mr. Wetmore and his bride will live in Wilmington, where he is doing chemical research.

Clark-Kimball.

For her marriage today in New York to Lt. Robert William Clark Jr., Miss Marjorie Kimball will wear the handsome ivory satin and rose-point lace wedding gown in which her mother, Mrs. G. Cook Kimball, was a bride, and an heirloom rose-point lace veil. In New York for the ceremony, which will take place at 4 p. m. in the chantry of St. Thomas' church, are Mrs. Kimball and her sons, Richard Kimball of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Nelson Kimball of Philadelphia, and their wives.

The Rev. Dr. Roelif H. Brooks will officiate at the ceremony, which will be followed by a small reception at the Colony club. The bride will be attended by Mrs. John Berdan of Pittsburgh. Dr. Frederick H. Allen of Philadelphia will serve as best man. Temporarily Lt. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark of Seattle, Wash., and his bride will remain in New York, returning to Chicago some time in April.

Seegert-Dundas.

When Capt. Neal Seegert suddenly received a 15 day leave from his army air force post in Garden City, Kas., he and his fiancee, Miss Gloria Jane Dundas, decided to be married at 4 p. m. today in the chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Alfred Dundas of Winnetka, will give a reception afterward at the Michigan Shores club. After a wedding trip to New York, Capt. Seegert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Seegert of Wauwatosa, Wis., and his bride will live in Garden City.

Miss Ann Umbach will serve as maid of honor and Miss Elizabeth Youngren and Miss Nancy Rambeaut as bridesmaids. Fred Seegert Jr. will be his brother's best man and Aviation Cadet Robert Hilton Dundas will come from Cleveland, O., to usher with Paul Burhke.

Other Weddings.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richard Schueler and the Raymond Hermans are in Los Angeles, Cal., for the marriage today of the Schuelers' only daughter, Martha, to Hamilton Herman, one of the Hermans' three sons. The ceremony will take place

Hats Are Off to Hats On in Elevators Idea

BY RUTH MONTGOMERY.

This was the consensus of Chicagoans questioned yesterday on the "keep your hats on in elevators" campaign launched for men by Robert J. Glenn, manager of the Hotel Governor Clinton in New York City, who is in Chicago for the Mid-West Hotel association convention in the Palmer House.

Elevator operators were wildly jubilant. "Maybe there'll be room for us in our own elevators now," was a typical reaction.

E. A. Hill, 838 Wolfram st., an operator in a large office building, was more explicit.

"Women have been taking men's places for years," he observed. "Why should men smash their best hats in crowded elevators, when all they get is a glare from the women they jab in the eye with their elbows, while clutching for their hats?"

"The other day a woman smothered her wrath when an overly polite man hit her in the face with his elbow. But as soon as he left the elevator she exploded with, 'Well, I certainly wish he'd left his hat on his head.' It's getting so only strangers and newcomers take off their hats in elevators, anyway."

Even the etiquette editor of The Tribune, Miss Louise Dooley, is inclined to agree with the hats on campaign.

"It's the practical, sensible thing to do," she observed. Then she added wistfully: "But, O, dear, it was one of the few little things we had left!"

College Club Will Hear Youth's Post-War Ideas

Chicago College club has invited a panel of students from the Jones High school and their instructor in civics, Mrs. Myrta L. Jex, to present the ideas youth of today have for the post-war world. The discussion will take place after a noon luncheon, at which Miss Lucy Ann Collins and Miss Isabell M. Kincheloe will be the hostesses.

Speaker at Woman's Aid to Discuss Modern Music

The Chicago Woman's Aid has arranged a music breakfast for noon Tuesday in its rooms in the Medical and Dental Arts building for Mme. Margit Varro. Mme. Varro, pianist and formerly a teacher in the Royal Academy of Music in Budapest, will discuss the question, "How New Is Modern Music?"

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sanders of Sheridan rd. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Gloria Mae, to Louis Freed of Chicago, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freed of San Antonio, Tex. The ceremony is set for April 2 in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 10.—Sister Elizabeth Kenny will announce to a national committee which will gather in Chicago March 24 to confer with her that her life story will be told on the screen. Charlie Koerner, head of R. K. O., has taken the story off the market and his studio will make the picture with Rosalind Russell starred. She will finish "Roughly Speaking" for Warners first. She has a commitment following that with Columbia, but Koerner's trying to work out a deal with Harry Cohn which will permit him to begin "Sister Kenny" not later than July. David Hempstead will not produce the Kenny picture. Another writer will go to work on it with Mary McCarthy. . . . This will be great news to those thousands who have urged me to keep up the good work and not let the picture die. With our boys fighting and dying for freedom all over the world, it behooves us to fight for a woman trying to save lives and great suffering at home.

Spreading Favors.

David Selznick offered Twentieth Century the services of Shirley Temple for "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." You've got to hand it to David for holding out for top roles for Ingrid Bergman. He's turned down a profit of $350,000 on her because, says he, "I feel every appearance she makes must be an important theatrical event." Her next will be life of Sarah Bernhardt unless Metro decides to do "The Pirates," in which case, she's a natural for the Lynn Fontanne part. . . . Alfred Hitchcock returns for "The House of Dr. Edwards." . . . And Cary Grant may do "Houdini."

It's Hardly Fair.

Gracie Fields doesn't deserve the type letters she's getting from mother of her former secretary, who was murdered while Gracie was overseas entertaining the boys. . . . Ida Lupino related to a friend that when she was having an argument with her husband, it ended by her dead father, Stanley, throwing a lamp at him—to me the best stunt of any year. . . . Mickey Rooney didn't buy that star sapphire Ramsey Ames is sporting, nor has she yet told him who did. . . . It's even money here that Elyse Knox and Tom Harmon are already married. . . . You can expect Marilynn Maxwell to announce her engagement to Alan Curtis any minute. . . . Gloria Jean is sending her younger sister, also her stand-in, to art school.

Silence Did It.

Maria Montes is begging her studio to buy "Paradise Street," by Henry Grisson, a book given her when she came down with a bad case of laryngitis. . . . Now that flowers are blooming in spring, tra-la, it looks more and more as tho Capt. Clark Gable and Kay Williams are really in love. . . . I hear Paramount's got a knockout in "The Hitler Gang." It has given the film adult treatment in every department. . . . Harry Cohn would love to star Irene Dunne in Ruth Gordon's play, but he hasn't been able to buy it yet. Nor does he own the rights to "Paris Underground," altho he's still hoping. That story should be a must for the screen. I hope when it's made they'll bring its author, Etta Shiber, to Hollywood.

It Seldom Happens.

John Philliber of Elkhart, Ind., has been in pictures for years, but goes home at least once a year. He never really got a good part until Arnold Pressburger gave him one in "It Happened Tomorrow." His friends in Elkhart won't believe he's got a good part, so he wired Pressburger, who's sending the film on to him in his own home town, where he'll give his friends the first peek at it. . . . Ann Miller will be starred in "Eadie Was a Lady," written around the song. It's about a strip tease dancer who wants a college education and joins the burlesque troupe to pay for it. Monte Brice is writing it. . . . Anna Frenke, stepdaughter of Anna Sten, makes her debut in "America's Children" with Otto Kruger. . . . Perry Como gets his big chance in "Something for the Boys" with Betty Grable.

Film Comedy Dismal Flop to Our Critic

"GOVERNMENT GIRL."

An RKO-Radio picture, directed by Dudley Nichols, featuring Olivia de Havilland and Sonny Tufts, and presented at the Palace.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Never have I seen anything more gauché or in worse taste than her performance as "Smokey," the "government girl" of this movie. She apparently saw "The More the Merrier" and attempted to go Jean Arthur—who starred in that story of Washington—one better. The result is nothing short of pathetic.

The picture's a zany comedy, ringing in plenty of propaganda in favor of the "ins." Don't criticize things that are being done because you don't know WHY they're being done—is its message.

Miss de Havilland plays secretary to the new head of the bomber division, who arrives in Washington to do a job—and does it—WITH the lady's help. . . . At least that's the story's story. . . . Personally I think that even in Washington Olivia's "Smokey" would have drawn a padded cell.

Sonny Tufts is a fine actor who does all that could be done with his impossible role—and teammate. . . . Agnes Moorehead and George Givot are skilful in "bit" parts. . . . Ann Shirley, as Olivia's roommate and the new bride of a soldier, is awful, simply awful.

As for direction—any director who would let "Government Girl" loose on the world after contemplating at a preview Miss de Havilland's elocutionary outburst at a senate hearing—PLUS all that had gone before—should have his head examined. . . . If there were no other way out of the dilemma, he should have stolen into the archives in the dead of night and with his own little hands and his own little hatchet reduced all copies of the film to—filaments.

See you tomorrow.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is the height of absurdity to draw trumps without making provision for the establishment of a vital side suit. Consider this typical case.

NORTH
♥ 10 7 3
♦ 6 4

WEST
♠ 8 5 4
♥ A J 6
♦ Q 10 8 3 2
♣ 9 4

EAST
♠ 7 3 2
♥ 9 4
♦ K J 7 5

SOUTH
♠ K J 9 6
♥ K Q 8 5 2
♦ A 9
♣ 8 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

It was correct for South to start with one spade so that he could show his heart suit without "reversing." North realized that his partner might have a four-card spade suit, but the North hand was so strong that this was no cause for worry, and the jump to four spades can scarcely be criticized despite the unconventionality of making such a jump without four supporting trumps.

West opened the diamond three and East's jack drove out the ace. Immediately, declarer drew three rounds of trumps, and he was obviously pleased when the suit broke 3-3. He denied himself the pleasure of taking the club finesse, choosing instead to lead to the king and return a heart to the king. West meekly ducked. Declarer then led to the club ace and returned a heart to his own queen. West won and shifted to diamonds. When declarer ruffed he had taken his last trick, and this left him two tricks short of the contract.

If declarer had not been in such a hurry with his trump drawing, he would have found it virtually impossible to lose his contract. The most vital consideration was to establish the heart suit, and altho it was necessary to concede two tricks to do so, declarer could well afford this concession, as well as that of a diamond trick.

Thru the Looking Glass

If you want to be an honest-to-goodness ray of sunshine to a hospital patient, take her a gift of beauty. You'll be agreeably surprised at how warmly it will be received and how much it can do to brighten spirits. Pretty toiletries and cosmetics have an almost sure-fire effect in dispelling the doldrums that can set in, particularly during convalescence. There's only one thing to avoid, and that's a heavy, overpowering fragrance in whatever you may decide upon.

Dusting powder or talc in an airy scent and gay package is a delightful remembrance. Soft, featherlight powder is cooling and refreshing and helps to counteract that feeling of sickness that's such an annoying part of being confined to bed.

Give special consideration to a gift of bland, delicately perfumed soap. Bed patients often develop a sensitive skin that needs the soothing sort of cleansing a rich, creamy soap affords, and when it's accompanied by a nice fragrance, it's both comforting and soothing. Speaking of soothers, don't forget the body lotions that lubricate parched skin. They're a real help in relieving itching or chapping, and a rubdown with one of these after a bed bath helps to make an illness bearable.

Sachet, cologne, and perfume are excellent for injecting a bit of glamor into a patient's life. And a bottle of nail polish or a lipstick in her favorite shade will be welcomed especially if the sick one is on her way to recovery and interested in keeping herself looking pretty for visitors.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Double Boiler Prune Souffle.

[Serves six.]

1 cup sieved, cooked prunes
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 eggs whites, stiffly beaten

Add sugar, salt, and lemon juice to prune pulp while still warm, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and turn into upper part of ungreased double boiler. Cook, covered, over water that is just boiling for 45 to 60 minutes or until center of souffle is firm. Serve warm with custard sauce or cream.

Rapid Growth Characterizes Adolescence

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Each year we see more and more scientific studies being made of the period in childhood we call "adolescence."

But if we only knew as much about the physical side of adolescence as we do about the physical side of babyhood, it would be a great boon to our sons and daughters in their teens, and to us who are their parents.

I mention babyhood and adolescence in the same breath because, altho far apart, they are the two times of fastest growth in the life of a human being. That much we do know about adolescence.

We know also that this is frequently a time of uneven growth and development. The muscles, for instance, don't always keep pace with the bones—you know the tall young fellow who's shot up so fast that he has no endurance at all. He looks almost like a man when he's scarcely more than a big, little boy. His heart and other vital organs may be lagging behind too. "Fits and starts" of first this part of the body and then that characterize the growth and development of many young persons, but not all, however, as some do pass quite smoothly and evenly thru these years. That this unevenness ties up with temporary personality phases is inevitable. Today I want to go on with some brief advice on the physical side.

A young boy had had a prolonged illness, had lost weight, and was not eating well. This below par physical condition would surely have some effect on his spirits and reaction to life generally, and so might partly account for his moodiness. This lad should have special rest, and perhaps certain vitamins in concentrated form, given under a doctor's direction, and a building up by excellent food and outdoors.

But, altho this advice is given for a boy who had been ill, there are points about the regime that could be followed by parents of teen age boys and girls who are not recuperating. If your son is chronically languid, if your daughter has no ambition, don't leave their health habits entirely to them. Take the matter in hand yourself; look at them with their possible needs in mind, and then do a little managing of their day, their nights [with accent on rest], their food, their exercise, their hours, their diversions, their studies.

Kitchen Pointers

—By Mary Meade—

"What wines do you serve at dinner?"

Choice of wines depends upon personal preferences, but the novice should follow the old, accepted rules for the first few dinners: Dry wines only for appetizer, and thru the meal to dessert; sweet wine with the dessert, or after dinner. If one wine is to be served thruout the meal, make it sherry [could be champagne, if you're lucky]. If the main course consists of fish, chicken, pork, lamb, or veal, a white wine, such as sauterne, chablis, or sherry, is suitable. With game, mutton, or beef, use a red wine [dry], claret or burgundy for example.

Dry wines are preferred for cooking, except possibly for puddings or desserts. A bottle of sherry or sauterne and one of claret will take care of sauces and gravies in most households. Popular dessert wines include port, tokay, and muscatel.

"I broiled lobster tails according to your directions, but they were tough," a reader writes

Probably the heat was too high, or you may have overcooked them. Some cooks steam or simmer lobster tails until they change color before broiling them, but the whole operation may be done in the broiler, first the shell side, then the meat. It is important to keep the heat at about 350 degrees and not to overcook.

'Good Night, Sweet Prince'

. . . By Gene Fowler

(Copyright: 1943-'44: By Gene Fowler; Published by Arrangement with Viking Press, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS: "He looks like little Greengoose, the pretty lad in the storybook," said Mrs. Louisa Lane Drew as she held her new grandson, John Barrymore, on Valentine's day, 1882. The father, Maurice Barrymore, was born Herbert Blythe, but selected his professional name from an old playbill in an English theater. After coming to the United States he met and married Georgianna Drew of the famous theatrical family, despite the opposition of Mrs. Drew. Lionel, Ethel, and John were born. Altho a wayward husband, Maurice was fascinating to his children, and his star continued to rise in the theater. Mrs. Drew's sons, Sidney [Uncle Googan] and John, also were actors of growing prominence.

INSTALMENT VI.

THE ENTRANCE OF THE LITTLE FAUNS.

The Philadelphia fortunes of Mrs. Drew began to pale in the late '80s, and her home began to lose its familiar members. The tinkle of Great-Grandmother Kinloch's little bell no longer was heard. Uncle Googan had married Gladys Rankin, daughter of McKee Rankin, and had gone with his pearl handled cue and a fragment of "Odd, To Say the Least of It" to New York. Uncle Jack Drew had become a permanent resident of that metropolis.

When papa decided to take his three children to live in New York, Mrs. Drew showed no tears. The family had outgrown the Tomb of the Capulets, and never again would be gathered together for long at any time except among the pages of the encyclopedias.

Lionel was 11 years old, Ethel 10, and Jack 7 when in 1889 they moved to New York, then a city of almost 1,400,000 population. It was the Horatio Alger time of luck and pluck, of rags and riches.

Each afternoon a parade of great names moved along Broadway. During the Barrymore children's first stroll in this street of fickle luster, they glimpsed a succession of magnificos, among whom they admired most of all papa's friend, John L. Sullivan, the heavyweight champion.

When John L. lifted his silk tile to Ethel and she saw the close cropped skull, the child naturally believed him to be Genghis Khan. She fled behind her father's coat tails. Mr. Sullivan turned to Lionel. "And what's your name, lad?"

"Lionel," said the boy, panting with hero worship.

Mr. Sullivan grunted. "It is, eh? Lionel! Huh!" He looked at Maurice accusingly, grunted again, then squinted at Jack and said cryptically, "Well, well, well!"

Jack at this time was less than prepossessing. He seemed as slim and pale as a church candle, wore black bangs, and looked like a Siamese office boy. He had nothing about him to indicate that he would grow up to be a new Apollo.

Mr. Sullivan poked Jack gently with his stick, merely knocking the boy's wind out, then said to Maurice in parting, "Fine family, Barry! Fine family!"

Papa took the children to the zoo on Indian summer days. He knew a great deal about animals because of his experiences in India. His lectures enchanted other zoo visitors, and before long a crowd would be following him and his charges from cage to cage.

One day he decided to discuss the habits of the llama at the Central park menagerie. "It is a domesticated variety of the guanaco," he said, "and spits in your eye if he doesn't like you. The first dramatic critic was a llama. The great-grandfather of William Winter was one. Llama meat is not good for the dinner table. Tastes like a forgotten sponge."

At about this time the newspaper men began to pepper Maurice with inquiries about his play "Nadjezda." It had enjoyed a favorable premiere in San Francisco during the late "great tour." Now, a year or more after that presentation, Sarah Bernhardt was appearing in "La Tosca," the work of the French playwright Victorien Sardou. Certain of Barrymore's friends charged that the French academician had plagiarized Barrymore's basic idea.

Maurice ignored the issue until informed by a reporter at the Lambs bar one day that Sarah Bernhardt had said, "An idea sometimes is suggested to a dramatist by an obscure source. Sardou is a master; the man who accuses him insignificant."

"I hold a man no less a thief," Barrymore remarked, "if he steals from his own hat rack my cane, which I have confidently placed there, and proceeds to build upon it an umbrella."

The Police Gazette, a pink package of flamboyant engravings and frisky body type to be found in every barbershop of America, wrote up the "Nadjezda" controversy. Its drama critic buttonholed Maurice in the doorway of Rector's one evening.

"Did you see the piece I wrote about you in the Police Gazette this week?"

"No," Maurice replied. "I shave myself."

As children, the Barrymores were timid with strangers. Indeed, an inward shyness possessed them during their subsequent private lives, notwithstanding their ease on the stage or in other public collisions. Ethel could become a bundle of claws when approached clumsily. As for Lionel, he might do either of two things to a well meaning dullard: punch him in the nose, or retreat into an ossified cocoon and glower at him. Jack, after adolescence, concealed from the world his sensitivity and his daydreams by assuming an ebullient facade, together with cock-o'-the-walk mannerisms and prussic acid humor. He could be tactless at times, abruptly ironical, or unexpectedly aloof, and too often closed the door on those who otherwise might have come to know the wild yet child-sweet spirit of the man, his surpassing inner decencies, his star-lit charm.

Because of the irregularity of their theatrical duties, their frequent tours, the elder Barrymores decided to send Ethel to a convent and place the boys in Catholic boarding schools.

It was agreed that Jack go to Seton Hall. Maurice accompanied his younger son to South Orange. There they toured the campus with the head of the school, Father Marshall, and Lionel.

Father Marshall had a serene personality, dignified and reserved, and the face of an ascetic Spanish nobleman. In the gymnasium, he indicated the parallel bars. "Have you ever exercised on the horizontal bars, my son?"

"Yes, father," Jack replied. "Lots."

While Father Marshall, papa, and Lionel looked on, Jack got up, then went heelsup into the air, standing on his hands on the bars. Suddenly from his pockets there showered some curious keepsakes, including a razor, a loaded pistol, a pack of playing cards, and a pair of dice.

FURIOUS BOUTS MARK BATTLES FOR 1944 TITLES

Winners Earn Right to Face New York.

PICK MICHIGAN TO WIN BIG TEN TRACK HONORS

Preliminaries Carded This Afternoon.

Michigan's domination of the Big Ten conference indoor track situation during the last decade is expected to remain unbroken in the 34th annual meet in the University of Chicago fieldhouse today. Preliminaries in five events will be held this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, with the finals starting at 8 o'clock tonight. The Wolverines, winner of eight of the last 10 meets, are favorites to capture this year's title and may top the record total of 53⅓ points which they rolled up in winning last year's meet.

Coach Ken Dougherty has entered a squad of 28 men which has swept thru an undefeated indoor season, including a smashing triumph over Illinois, the team which is expected to finish second. Leading the Wolverine contingent are defending champions, Bob Ufer, quarter miler, and Ross Hume, one mile.

Young Triple Threat.

These veterans are picked to repeat last year's victories and the Ann Arbor entry boasts other potential winners in Capt. Bob Hume, two miler, and twin brother of Ross and Elmer Swanson, who placed second in the high hurdles a year ago. The Wolverines also are strong in the mile relay and have turned in the best time for the event this year.

Altho Michigan is favored to take the team title, individual scoring honors may go to Claude [Buddy] Young, Illinois freshman and former football and track star at Wendell Phillips High school. The youngster made a spectacular collegiate debut this winter with his all-around track performance. He already has tied the meet record for the 60 yard dash and has bettered the broad jump mark. In addition, he is favored in the 70 yard low hurdles.

Schmidt in Pole Vault.

Another potential point winner for the Illini is Bob Kelley, outdoor half mile champion. Kelley lost a close decision to Ross Hume in last week's dual meet and tonight's meeting may provide the best race of the meet.

Among the few returning champions is John Schmidt of Ohio State, who tied for the pole vault title last year at 13 feet 3 inches. If he can repeat that performance tonight he is almost certain to win the title.

Produce Dark Horse.

A team that may surprise in the final point tabulation is Purdue, whose 12 man squad possesses a number of capable performers. The Boilermakers boast a strong contender in the distance events in Eric Ericsson, conference cross-country champion. Nelson Klaus, whose shotput mark of 47 feet 6 inches is the best recorded this season; Ben Hervey, sprinter, and Bill Haynes, a half miler who transferred from Kansas, are other Purdue threats.

Minnesota's outstanding individual is Arden Bauman, whose 6 feet 2 inch leap in the high jump is the best made in the conference this winter.

BATTLERS AND SPECTATORS HAVE A BIG NIGHT

Team Standings

FOLLOWING are the team standings of last night's Golden Gloves finals in Chicago Stadium. Points were awarded on a basis of five for champions, three for defeated finalists, and one for defeated semi-finalists. The standings:

Cleveland	12	Chanute Field	3
Peoria	10	Los Angeles	3
Chicago	8	Columbus	3
Fort Worth	7	Milwaukee	2
Gary	6	Omaha	4
Kansas City	6	Fort Wayne	1
Memphis	5	Minneapolis	1
Sioux City	5	Pensacola	1
St. Louis	3

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago's boxing fans, 21,652 of them, last night joined in enthusiastic collaboration in the Stadium with 32 of the nation's finest fighters to produce the most thrilling Golden Gloves finals in the 17 year career of the sport's No. 1 show.

Those fans, constituting a group which set a vocal mark for roaring appreciation of the punching and jabbing that ensued until nigh onto midnight, saw the eight Golden Gloves champions of 1944 crowned.

112 POUNDS—Tommy Nate, Gary, Ind.

118 POUNDS—Clayton Johnson, Sioux City, Ia.

135 POUNDS—Buddy Holderfield, Memphis, Tenn.

147 POUNDS—Corp. Levi Southall, Peoria, Ill.

160 POUNDS—Collins Brown, Chicago.

175 POUNDS — Ray Standifer, Cleveland, O.

The 32 survivors of an arduous march that began weeks ago, sprang from the widest territory ever reached by the world's top amateur tournament. They came from California on the west, Ohio on the east, and Florida and Texas on the south. The only regret of the big crowd which crammed the nation's largest indoor arena to its limits was that all 32 of them could not have gone away with a Golden Glove.

Achieve Triple Objective.

Spectators had their role in the party, too, one which is an annual thrill to all Golden Gloves followers. That occured when they saw the Stadium darkened, then rose to the raising of the flag, and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Never was this ceremony more stirring than it was last night.

After 16 semi-finals and eight finals had been fought, eight boys remained unbeaten. These eight had achieved a triple objective. They had survived the long campaign which had brought together men from the air transport command, Alaskan wing, soldiers and sailors from the Pacific coast and the southern seaboard, and high school lads and war workers from the central states. They had won a Golden Glove. And they had earned the right to battle New York's best in the annual intercity bouts in Madison Square Garden on March 27.

Lightweights Thrill Crowd.

Every one of the 24 bouts was a thriller, but the battle that captured the big crowd's fancy and rocked the Stadium roof for all of the six minutes of action was the stirring lightweight duel between two high school lads—Buddy Holderfield of Memphis, and Johnny Bratton of Chicago's Savoy A. C. They

Team Trophy to Cleveland for 7th Time

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer boxers won the Golden Gloves team trophy for the seventh time in the last 10 years as a result of scoring 12 points to the Peoria Journal-Transcript squad's 10. The result was not determined until the light heavyweight final between Ray Standifer of Cleveland and Pvt. 1st Class Vince Di Venti of Peoria.

Standifer captured the decision and with it the award for his team. Peoria and Cleveland each entered the semi-finals with four survivors. Sam Otis, Plain Dealer sports editor, received the trophy. The sportsmanship awards were given to Merton Herrick, Minneapolis welterweight who was eliminated in last week's tournament of champions, Collins Brown, Catholic Youth organization middleweight, and Pvt. Ragon Kinney, Los Angeles Times' heavyweight.

Joe Louis Awards Trophy.

Staff Sgt. Joe Louis, received a tremendous ovation as he awarded Kinney the heavyweight trophy.

The other prizes are named after two other famous Golden Gloves alumni, Marine Sgt. Barney Ross and Chief Petty Officer Tony Zale.

SAVOLD GAINS SPLIT DECISION OVER JOE BAKSI

New York, March 10 (AP).—Lee Savold, Paterson, N. J., veteran heavyweight, won a 10 round split decision over Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa., in Madison Square Garden tonight. Savold weighed 198 pounds and Baksi 210½.

A crowd of 15,947 paid $62,170 to see the battle, in which Savold, veteran of 14 years of ring warfare, catapulted himself high among the challengers for Joe Louis' title. It was Savold's first victory in five starts in the Garden, and burst the Baksi bubble which was inflated two weeks ago when the ex-coal miner outboxed Tami Mauriello of the Bronx.

DE PAUL EASILY BEATS ST. LOUIS QUINTET, 80 TO 44

Led by lanky George Mikan, who scored 34 points on 13 baskets and eight free throws, De Paul's Blue Demons defeated Concordia college of St. Louis, 80 to 44, at De Paul last night.

The game served as a warmup for the Demons' appearance in the National Invitational basketball tournament in Madison Square Garden, New York. It was their last competition before they leave for the east Tuesday. Lineups:

Fight Decisions

At Detroit—Tommy Bell, Youngstown, O., knocked out Tommy Hames, Chicago [7]; Izzy Jannazzo, New York, stopped Phil Enzenga, Brooklyn [7].

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

YOUNG JOE WOOD, who will pitch for the Boston Red Sox this summer, is reversing the pattern set by his famous dad, Old Smoky Joe. . . . Joe senior started as a hurler, became one of the best in the business, and then, when his arm failed, turned to the outfield, where he also starred. . . . The kid was an outfielder at Yale until his senior year, when he switched to the mound and, among other feats, struck out 13 Harvard batters in a single afternoon. . . . Bert Bell, president of the Pittsburgh football Steelers, is carrying on correspondence with soldiers on all the war fronts in the hope of lining up honorably discharged players for the 1944 season and men still in uniform for employment after the war. . . . Football's value in preparing men for battle duty is graphically illustrated by the record of the 1942 University of Portland [Ore.] squad. . . . Here it is: Full Back Del Huntsinger, marine lieutenant; Half Back Louis Fransworth, ditto; Blocking Back James McNerney, naval ensign; Tackle Phil Loprinzi, ditto; End Ken Brophy, army lieutenant; Tackle Erv Schillereff, ditto; End Pat Metke, naval ensign; End Paul O'Toole, navy V-12 trainee; Guard Bob Peters, ditto, and Center Keith Carr, army air corps lieutenant when killed in a plane crash. . . . That is the showing of just one squad at one comparatively small college. . . . Comparable ones have been made by the schools in every state in the union. . . . Francis Schmidt, they say, would consider a coaching offer from one of the National Football league clubs.

Joe Wood Jr.

Glenn Cunningham.

Before he left to enlist in the marine corps, President Bill Veeck of the Milwaukee baseball club instructed Mgr. Charley Grimm to stand pat on the hotel arrangements Bill had made last year, including a boycott of hostelries in St. Paul. . . . Veeck had been feuding with that city's chamber of commerce for two years. . . . At its winter meeting in New York, the American association passed a rule which makes it mandatory for teams to live in the cities in which they play while on the road. . . . Veeck, however, warned his colleagues that he would rather pay a fine than comply. . . . Glenn Cunningham averaged 14 hours of sleep per night when he was shattering mile records. . . . Charley Keller, now out of circulation until the war is over, had the satisfaction of poking at least one home run out of every American league park last season. . . . Norm Blaeske, forward on the Milwaukee Falks basketball team, scored three field goals in eight seconds in a game which his team lost to Fort Sheridan, 45 to 36. . . . He shot a basket, grabbed the ball as a soldier passed it in from out of bounds, fired his second goal, and duplicated the feat on the next pass-in.

To Edgar Lee Masters.

O, weaver of words, with your kindly pen
Dipped in the dreams of your fellow men;
How seldom, it seems, do the worldly things
Come to a heart which so softly sings.
Ill and alone, you are found today,
Ignored by all who should homage pay;
The gossamer wings of your poet heart
Broken and twisted, and torn apart.

O, the world needs your kind, and always will,
'Til the sun grows cold and the winds are still,
Martyr to beauty and slave to song,
Held to your dreams by a fragile thong.

May the God who created the finer things
Take your gentle heart, which to life still clings,
And fill it with laughter and light again,
In return for the joy that you brought to men.

Ray Mediand.

After Winter.

Tho long the barren winter,
And white the drifted lane,
Skies will be warm in April
And earth be green again.
Yes, doubting heart, remember
How other years have been,
When days grow long and linger
And ice begins to thin.
How trailing sweet arbutus
[Fair, frail, exquisite thing]
Will thread the woodland carpet
With the first pink flush of spring.
Then mornings, blue and golden,
The meadowlark will sing
His silver throated lyrics
To another new born spring.

wasted no time in feeling each other out, but began a toe-to-toe argument that was still going at the finish. It was a tough fight for either kid to lose, but the final margin and the Golden Glove went to Holderfield.

The name Nate has been a familiar one thruout the history of Golden Gloves. Last night, Tommy, representing the Gary Post Tribune, succeeded where his three brothers—Georgie, Johnny, and Joe—had failed. He won the first 1944 Golden Glove and the flyweight championship by outpointing Mike O'Leary, a willing young Irishman from Omaha, in three sharp hitting rounds.

Jones a Convincing Champion.

The featherweight crown went to Major Jones, a 16 year old Negro lad from a Kansas City vocational school who looked as tho he shouldn't have been up so late. Major had proved himself with a convincing semi-final decision against the seasoned Sgt. Manny Ortega of Fort Worth. In the final he came back to beat one of Cleveland's main hopes, red-headed Joey Damato, dropping that young man for a one count with a neat right hand punch at the first round's bell, and following with a sharp left thru the next two.

Another perennial seeker after a Golden Glove succeeded when Clayton Johnson, 26 year old Negro butcher from Sioux City, Ia., and the father of four children, solved the problem of the potent left with which Pvt. Frank Tunstill of Columbus, O., had been moving thru the tournament since it began. Johnson dropped the army man for a seven count with a right to the head at the end of the first round and pursued that advantage for the decision and championship in the bantamweight class.

Cpl. Southall Stays in Charge.

Cpl. Levi Southall of Camp Ellis, Ill., representing the Peoria Journal Transcript, who formerly had fought in Golden Gloves intercity competition became the new welterweight champion. This 19 year old Negro didn't have to work in the semi-finals after his scheduled opponent, Charles O'Kelley of St. Louis, was disqualified when it was learned that he had fought one professional fight in Kansas City. In the title bout, he drew another army boxer, Pvt. Jimmy Baratta of Chanute Field, Ill. The corporal dropped the private at the end of the first session, and was in complete charge the rest of the way for a unanimous decision.

Chicago's only championship was captured by Collins Brown, the Catholic Youth organization's knock-out star. Brown's artillery began to function against John Rogers, Cleveland's middleweight, as early as the first round, the end of which saw the Ohioan sprawled for a nine count. The Chicago Negro repeated this operation in the second, and then dropped Rogers a third time, this being sufficient to bring him a knockout triumph.

Heavies Slug It Out.

The heavyweight final, always a Golden Gloves classic, brought together Pvt. Ragon Kinney of Los Angeles and Aviation Cadet Orlan Ott, and fulfilled every tournament tradition, since both men were Golden Gloves veterans.

In the first round Kinney, outreached and outweighed by 32 pounds, brought the fans up howling by his willingness to mix it with big Ott in the clinches, but Orlan's physical adavntage asserted itself in the second, and he took a lead.

Kinney, an intercity winner in 1939, rallied in the final round to tie up the big boy and rake him with body punches, but his brave effort wasn't enough to take the decision from the navy man.

Sports Figures Present.

On the opposite side was Phil Handler, coach of the Chicago Cardinals; Athletic Director Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, Coaches Lynn Waldorf and Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern. Seated between Wilson and Waldorf was Harry Stuhldreher, athletic director and football coach at Wisconsin. Ray Eliot, chief of athletics at Illinois, also was a spectator. Capt. Robert R. M. Emmet, commanding officer at Great Lakes, was represented by Mrs. Anita Hall, his sister and hostess at Great Lakes, and Miss Beulah Emmet, his daughter. They were accompanied by Lt. Bob Elson, former W-G-N sports announcer.

Wyoming Officer Arrives.

Among the early spectators were John T. Dempsey, Republican candidate for state's attorney; T. P. Sullivan, director of public safety of Illinois, and former Judge John Casey.

Pvt. 1st Cl. Charles B. [Chuck] Fredericks, former member of the Tribune sports staff, now stationed at Camp Chaffee, Ark., kept his record intact of never having missed the finals in the 17 year history of the event. He received an 11 day furlough from his company commander, 1st Lt. Harold F. Tuber, Chicago attorney.

Professional boxing commissions were represented by Sten Cofell, chairman of the Cleveland, O., board; Harvey Buchanan, head of the Wisconsin commission, and Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, member of the Illinois board.

Tresh of Sox Quits Baseball; Lee to Get $1

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mike Tresh of the White Sox catching corps removed himself yesterday from the list of candidates for whatever Manager James Dykes will succeed in putting together as a 1944 baseball machine.

Tresh advised Vice President Harry Grabiner that he figured on going into military service and that if he remained a civilian it would be at his present defense job in the Ford plant in Detroit.

Another Sox development of the day was the signing of a conditional contract by Thornton Lee, whose southpaw troubles date back over two seasons. Presumably Lee will operate on a $1 per year basis until he has had ample time to determine whether his arm ailment was eliminated by surgical work last fall.

Lee, to all appearances, intends to cut the $1 per period to a minimum. Along with Orval Grove and Vince Castino, he's drilling daily in a south side Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, the work including good, healthy throwing.

CHICAGOAN LOSES IN FINALS

Johnny Bratton (right), Chicago 135 pounder, is full of determination as he wades into Buddy Holderfield of Memphis in their Golden Gloves championship bout in the Stadium last night, but Buddy came thru to win the decision. The referee is Tommy Thomas.

Blow by Blow Story of Golden Gloves Finals

BY WILFRID SMITH.

112 POUND CHAMPIONSHIP — Mike O'Leary, Omaha, Neb., versus Tom Nate, Gary, Ind.

The boys sparred for an opening with Nate landing an occasional left to the body. O'Leary was backed into the ropes midway in the round, but Tommy missed with a right to the jaw and they clinched. Both moved with speed and precision but failed to connect on leads.

The second round started in the same way. O'Leary landed a sharp left to the face. Nate came in close with a body attack but backed away after one solid wallop to the body. They exchanged light lefts to the face. Mike rolled with Nate's right to the side of the head and the round was even.

The tempo of the bout increased with Nate forcing the fighting. Neither was able to land a damaging punch, however, until the last minute when Nate caught his opponent with a right to the face which momentarily staggered O'Leary. Nate received the decision.

118 POUND CHAMPIONSHIP—Pvt. Frank Tunstill, Columbus, O., versus Clayton Johnson, Sioux City, Ia.

Johnson moved carefully against Tunstill, a left hander, and the crowd voiced its disapproval of the inaction. Near the close of the round, Johnson landed a stiff right to the face. Johnson moved to the wrong side of his opponent, but Tunstill still refused to lead.

In the second round, Johnson landed a right to the side of the head, and Tunstill went down for a seven count. They traded blows in a wild flurry.

Johnson had the better of the first minute melee in the third round and then the boys slowed up, each waiting for a lead. Johnson received the decision.

In the final round, Damato rushed Jones to a corner, but Jones responded with a brilliant rally and in a half clinch hammered Joe with a volley of lefts. Jones was awarded the decision.

135 POUND CHAMPIONSHIP — Johnny Bratton, Chicago, versus Buddy Holderfield, Memphis, Tenn.

This was a slam bang battle from the bell with neither giving an inch. Buddy caught a terrific right to the jaw which touched off the fireworks and for another minute the rivals hammered away with both fists and neither missed.

Bratton socked Holderfield again with a mighty wallop to open the second round and again Buddy rallied to a tremendous roar from the crowd. It was punch for punch util the bell.

The tempo was maintained in the final round, altho it seemed impossible, and the match ended apparently on even terms. The officials gave the decision to Holderfield in one of the closest of all Golden Gloves fights.

147 POUND CHAMPIONSHIP—James Baratta, Chanute field, versus Corp. Levi Southall, Peiria.

Southall, a former member of a Chicago intercity team, forced the fighting in the first round. He caught up with Baratta near the end of the two minute period and dropped him for a one second count with a resuonding smash to the jaw. Baratta rose and the bell rang almost immediately.

Southall's longer reach enabled him to outscore Baratta in the second round. Southall continued to force the scrap and at the end he was master of his opponent. Southall received the unanimous decision.

Brown flashed his right in the first minute of the round as Rogers came out of a neutral corner. John boxed his way out of trouble momentarily, but 20 seconds before the end of the round Collins sent his right to the jaw and Rogers took a nine count. He weathered the round.

Rogers was knocked down for another nine count in the second round. Once more the Cleveland champion again went down and this time he was counted out.

The opening round was even and furiously fought. The rivals traded blows to the head and fought in clinches until forced to separate. Starting the next round, Standifer landed a hard right to the face, but Di Venti came back with lefts and rights to the body.

Standifer was the more accurate in the second round but the tide of battle changed with Di Venti matching the Cleveland champion punch for punch. The team championship was at stake as the boxers came out for the final round. Di Venti scored roundly with a smash to the head, but Ray came back with a left to the head and a right to the body.

Di Venti bloodied Standifer's nose with a right. They fought without stopping until the bell which neither heard and the referee separated them. Standifer was awarded the decision.

HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP—Private Ragon Kinney, Los Angeles, Cal. versus A. C. Orlan Ott, Fort Worth:

Ott had the reach on Kinney, a former inter-city champion, and Ragon crouched to offset this advantage. Ott landed a light left to the face and then punched inside of Kinney's leads. Near the end of the round, Ott crossed his right to Kinney's head and the California champion staggered in retreat.

In a clinch, Kinney fought his tall rival on even terms and his aggressiveness neutralized Ott's straighter punching. Ott was cool under this attack, however, and began to punch in close for the first time in the tournament. Ott again staggered Kinney with a vicious right to the head.

Kinney tore in for the third round, staking all on a driving attack, and Ott tired under the assault. The men stood shoulder to shoulder and punched. Kinney had the edge in condition. Ott's short rights to the head in the last seconds won for him the heavyweight championship.

Howley managed the Browns for three years, 1927-1929, and the Cincinnati club for three years, 1930-1932.

BIG TEN GIVES GREAT LAKES 5 FOOTBALL DATES

Western conference athletic directors and football coaches closed their two day meeting in the Hotel Windermere last night after spending most of the day revising the 1944 football schedule to include games with service teams.

When the new program was announced it showed that the Great Lakes Naval Training station had secured five dates with Big Nine teams and that the Iowa Pre-Flight Seahawks had two definitely scheduled, plus indications that a couple more would be fitted into open dates in the conference cards.

List Service Games.

The five conference games secured by Great Lakes as a result of the schedule shuffle are: Sept. 23, Purdue at Great Lakes; Sept. 30, Illinois at Great Lakes; Oct. 7, Great Lakes at Northwestern; Oct. 21, Great Lakes at Ohio State, and Oct. 28, Great Lakes at Wisconsin. Definitely on the Iowa Pre-Flight school program are contests with Minnesota in Minneapolis on Sept. 23 and with the University of Iowa in Iowa City on Nov. 25.

The track coaches last night voted to hold the outdoor track and field meet at the University of Illinois on May 27.

The conference golf and tennis meets will be held May 27 and will be under the supervision of either Northwestern or Chicago. The latter will be host to the National Collegiate Athletic association tennis meet for the second straight year, dates being June 26 thru July 1.

Plan Post-War Expansion.

The athletic directors, at a morning session held prior to the schedule huddle, approved a number of recommendations which had been submitted by Maj. John L. Griffith, conference commissioner. Most of these dealt with situations which have grown out of the war. A suggestion that the scope of intercollegiate football after the war be expanded by the addition of schedules for 150-pound limit players and freshmen squads was among those adopted.

Also approved was a recommendation made by the coaches that unlimited summer practice be permitted, with a lapse of at least one week between the close of the summer drills and the start of regular fall workouts. A previous agreement permitting each conference member to play a maximum schedule of 10 games was reaffirmed, with the provision that at least one of these games be with a service team.

Michigan State, which dropped intercollegiate athletics last year, was represented at the meeting by Athletic Director Ralph Young and Coach Charley Bachman. Young said he hoped it would be possible to resume football at State this year if a suitable schedule could be arranged. He added, however, that this was entirely his own view on the matter and that any definite action would have to come thru the faculty.

PREP FIVES TO CLASH FOR CITY CROWNS TODAY

The City league's championship basketball games for the junior and senior 1944 crowns will be played today in the De La Salle High school gymnasium at 35th st. and Michigan av. The junior contest, bringing together south section champion Parker against runner-up Hyde Park, will begin at 3 p. m. The senior game between South Shore and Harper will start at 8 o'clock tonight.

Section champions with an undefeated record, South Shore extended its winning streak to 17 in the semi-final rout of Austin, 48 to 31. During the sectional race the champions dealt Harper a 51 to 31 defeat and enter tonight's game the favorites. Three other defeats by Harper gave the finalists a tie for fourth place with Bowen.

MADISON A. C.'S BOXERS LOSE TO GARY TEAM, 4-1

The Madison Athletic club lost a 4 to 1 decision to Gary in an intercity boxing match last night at the Madison club. Johnny Nelween won the only home bout by a decision over Rick Leland in three rounds at 150 pounds. Other results:

48 Pin Teams Open Victory Meet Today

The second annual Victory tournament, outstanding five man bowling competition of the war, will be held today and tomorrow over the 12 lanes of the Auditorium Service Men's center, with 47 of the nation's leading teams striving to make a better showing than the champion Stroh Bohemian Beers of Detroit. They'll be battling for first prize of $2,000, with $1,000 going to the runner-up team.

The highest scoring team in the Victory tournament will not win the title from the Strohs, however, that being, as its name indicates, the national match game championship, and this is not match competition. Present plans, however, call for a revision of the tournament rules which will in the future, permit the teams in the tournament to challenge the current champions in the order of their finish in the Victory event.

The field's two day assignment consists of six games over the 12 Auditorium drives—three games on six alleys today and the remaining three on the other six lanes tomorrow. The caliber of the competition is reflected in the entry qualifications, which demanded that a team must have maintained an average of 950 in sanctioned league play before its entry was accepted.

ORDER TO SEIZE CORN READY AS PINCH TIGHTENS

Processors' Needs to Force Action.

Expect Record Flow

WINNIPEG, Man., March 10. [Special].—Canada expects this year the heaviest lake movement of grain in history and as a result terminal elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur are being filled rapidly. More than 55 million bushels of grain today were in lakehead elevators and supplies are pouring in from western elevators at a rate of 600 cars daily. Most of the present movement, ranging from 10 to 12 trains a day, consists of wheat.

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—The war food administration today drafted an order requiring that the bulk of the corn moving to market be set aside for the government. Purpose of the order is to prevent possible closing of processing plants using corn to manufacture essential food and industrial products.

The directive is expected to be issued in a few days. Corn thus obtained will be used to meet needs of processing plants. Country elevators receiving corn from the farm would be affected.

Officials pointed out that the market supply of corn is low and shipments from farms are below demands of both processors and feeders who depend on market supplies rather than their own production.

This tight market reflects a price relationship which tends to give hog feeders a monopoly on supply. Farmers make more money feeding the grain to hogs than by selling it at ceiling prices.

Some Doubt Success.

Doubts were expressed in some WFA circles that the set-aside order would help the situation. Officials said it would not affect the hog-corn price relationship, which is said to be the principal factor restricting movement of grain off farms.

The opinion has been expressed in official as well as trade circles that the government may have to raise the ceiling price on corn, reduce the ceiling price on hogs, or requisition farm supplies of the grain. The latter method is out of the question, WFA officials have said.

A similar shortage of corn developed last summer. The government requisitioned stocks in commercial elevators and thru a special program encouraged marketing of farm held corn to obtain needed supplies for processors. With feed supplies short of live stock requirements, officials doubt farmers can be induced to sell a substantial amount of corn as long as hogs are the most profitable outlet.

FUTURES PRICES RISE

Reports that the congressional farm bloc would seek to force the inclusion of farm labor costs in computing parity prices on grains and other farm commodities during the coming debate on legislation to extend the life of the office of price administration resulted in active and higher grain markets yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Brokers estimated that the inclusion of labor costs in parity prices would raise the parity level on rye about 30 cents from the Feb. 15 figure of $1.32 a bushel, and on other grains in proportion.

Coupled with the parity talk was a broad demand for cash grain of all kinds, other than rye. Speculators were aggressive buyers of rye, the only grain currently selling below parity, and prices advanced ⅝ to 1¼ cents a bushel, closing at the top. May oats climbed to within ⅛ cent of the ceiling on futures before profit taking caused a reaction with the close ½ to 1¼ cents higher. July leading. Wheat gained ¼ to ⅝ cent and barley was 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents higher.

J. I. CASE.

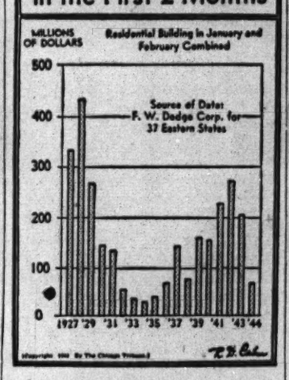
Kindly provide a report on the J. I. Case company. Z. T.

Answer: Case is one of the largest manufacturers of farm equipment, with tractors constituting the largest single source of revenue. Foreign sales, not including sales in Canada, normally account for 15 to 20 per cent of total business. Seven sales branches are operated in Canada, and five in South America. Dealers and agents represent the company in other countries.

At the close of the company's 1943 fiscal year on Oct. 31, capitalization consisted of 92,906 shares of $100 par value 7 per cent preferred stock and 193,752 shares of $100 par value common. Stockholders have approved a four for one split up of the common stock and a reduction of the par value to $25 a share. Dividend payments on the common in 1943 totaled $7, the same amount as in 1942.

Net income reported for the 1943 fiscal year, after provision for renegotiation of war contracts, was $2,420,456, or $9.14 a share, comparing with $2,482,920, or $9.34, for the preceding year after deducting a 1 million dollar special inventory reserve.

Home Building in the First 2 Months



Most Tenants Will Stay Put Come May 1

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago's residential space is 100 per cent occupied for the first time in the city's history, real estate men said yesterday. A similar situation exists in the suburbs where about the only way a person can get a home is to buy one—if he can find one to buy. This means May 1 will be Chicagoland's quietest moving day. Families who have a roof over their heads—even if it should happen to leak a bit—are going to stay under it.

Notices already have been sent out by most real estate rental firms to tenants whose leases expire May 1. Renewals are being made in large numbers and by the middle of March, OPA's deadline, most of the tenants will have indicated they will stay where they are, realty men predicted.

Waiting Lists Are Large.

All real estate firms have long waiting lists of families seeking living quarters. Some are from out of town and others require either larger or smaller accommodations than they now have.

Whenever a family decides to move a deluge of prospective occupants seeks to obtain the dwelling.

One Chicago woman who owns a 13 flat building learned she would soon have a vacancy. She advertised in an early edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and by 11 o'clock that night she had received 75 applications for the flat. Starting at 7 o'clock the next morning she received 26 more calls before she remembered to ease the rush by disconnecting the phone.

Percentage Shows Big Drop.

Fred M. Lorish, of Swan-Lorish, Inc., one of Chicago's largest rental firms, said that instead of the one-time 20 to 25 per cent ratio of moving only about one family in 100 will change living quarters on May 1.

Daniel Healy, secretary of the Movers' Association of Chicago, said no inquiries have been received so far for van service.

'FREE' UNIONS FAIL IN APPEAL FOR WLB SEATS

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—The war labor board today rejected the demands of unaffiliated unions for seats on the board with AFL and CIO members, and this resulted in an angry outburst and an implied threat of strikes from one group, the Confederated Unions of America.

Representatives of independent telephone workers' unions, altho not entirely satisfied, agreed to explore the board's proposals to give unaffiliated unions an office and a staff representative at the national and regional boards and possibly appoint their representatives on panels and review committees when cases involving those unions are being considered.

Vice Chairman Taylor said the public members, backed by labor and industry members, told the delegation "we would not recommend a change in the present composition of the board."

FIRST NATIONAL DIVIDEND RATE IS $8 ANNUALLY

Directors of the First National bank of Chicago yesterday declared two dividends of $2 each on the 500,000 outstanding shares of stock, their first authorization since the increase in capital stock to 50 million dollars. The dividends, payable April 1 and July 1, are at the annual rate of $8 which was forecast by Edward E. Brown, president, at the time the 66⅔ per cent distribution in stock was effected.

The last payments in January were $2.50 and an extra of 50 cents on the 300,000 shares then outstanding. The new rate of $8 in cash dividends entails an outlay of 4 million dollars annually.

Lewis Douglas Quits WSA to Resume Private Post

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—The resignation of Lewis W. Douglas as deputy war shipping administrator to return to the presidency of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York was announced today by President Roosevelt. He said Douglas would continue as deputy on the combined shipping adjustment board and as chairman of its employment and policy committee.

Fewer Municipal Loans to Be Offered Next Week

New York, March 10 (AP).—Municipal issues scheduled for sale next week total $4,099,711, compared with $9,551,300 this week, the Daily Bond Buyer reported today.

GEN. AMERICAN WILL PRODUCE PROCESS TOOLS

Year's Profit Tops 4 Million Dollars.

New techn'ques and materials developed during the war, along with other factors, are expected to create a large demand for industrial processing equipment when peace returns, Lester N. Selig, president of General American Transportation corporation, said yesterday in announcing the formation of a division to design and manufacture processing machinery.

His statement was addressed to stockholders in the company's annual report, which showed increased earnings in 1943. The new division will comprise three recent acquisitions, together with the company's facilities in Scranton, Pa.

Louisville Company Acquired.

The newly acquired properties are Louisville Drying Machinery company, Turbo-Mixer corporation, and American Machine company. The Conkey Sales Engineering organization also has been made a part of the division, which will produce equipment for the chemical, food, paper and pulp, distilling, and other processing industries.

Including the main railroad car operating and manufacturing activities, General American consists of eight divisions and three affiliate corporations.

Max Epstein, chairman, said that if present contracts with the army for construction of gliders work out favorably, General American may consider post-war entry into the aviation manufacturing field thru a west coast affiliate. He said commercial freight gliders towed in units of two or three were a definite possibility. A vast market for railroad equipment after the war seems assured, he asserted.

Profits Rise to 4 Millions.

The company's consolidated net income in 1943 was $4,003,381, equal to $3.84 a share, against $3,405,368, or $3.27 a share, in 1942. Federal taxes on income, after credits, amounted to $8,966,100, compared with $6,250,000 a year earlier. Current assets as of Dec. 31 totaled $29,264,454, including $10,203,589 cash, and current liabilities were $8,014,896.

Standard Gas and Electric company's consolidated net income amounted to $5,676,907 for 1943, compared with $5,641,188 in 1942. Operating revenues increased to $113,777,668 from $104,136,042.

Central Illinois Public Service company reported 1943 net income of $2,298,035, against $2,162,783. Operating revenues totaled $17,541,677, compared with $16,718,270.

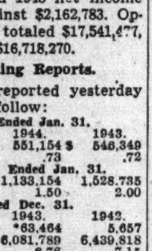
People and Events



James R. Leavell.

James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, was elected a director of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad yesterday. He succeeds the late John F. Craddock.

Packaging and packaging requirements for shipping to the army and navy overseas will be explained by a panel of army and navy officers at the American Management association's annual packaging conference March 28-30 in the Palmer House.

The Chicago Industrial Advertisers association will observe its 25th anniversary at a party in the La Salle hotel Monday night. Bennett Chapple, vice president of the American Rolling Mill company, Hamilton, O., will speak.

Dr. Harry L. Andrews, a professor at Northwestern university for 14 years, has been appointed coördinator of training for Pennsylvania-Central Airlines.

How Hotels Meet Ration Problem Told

Problems met in feeding under war time restrictions 40 million persons in 400,000 eating establishments in the United States were discussed yesterday by John L. Hennessy, chairman of the food rationing committee of the American Hotel association. He spoke before the midwest hotel conference sponsored by the Illinois and Greater Chicago Hotel associations in the Palmer House.

Hennessy, an official of the Statler hotel, Detroit, said he believed better public response would have resulted had rationing been termed "food sharing."

"No one minds sharing his food," he said, "but all dislike being rationed."

Few Statistics Available.

In establishing methods for distributing food to restaurants, which do business of 6 billions annually, little statistical data was available, Hennessy said. Consequently difficulties resulted. Despite reduced service in hotel restaurants the public has complained little, he added.

Hennessy said the nation is apt to overlook the vast quantities of food going to soldiers and sailors. It takes 90 days' supply to keep men in this country fed and 272 days' supply to maintain men overseas. With overseas forces growing steadily increasing amounts of food must be diverted to military needs.

He estimated 25 billion 451 million pounds of meat will be produced during 1944 of which the army will require 16 per cent. The government is setting aside 1 billion pounds of beef to meet contingencies, he said. Should the unexpected fail to materialize this reserve may be returned to civilian markets.

Diners Talk About Meat.

Meat is the food about which hotel restaurant patrons talk most, Hennessy said. He suggested a better selling job would make the lack of meat on hotel restaurant menus less glaring.

In explanation, he said the menu in his hotel listed "omelette with herbs and Virginia ham" and "thin pancakes with maple butter and bacon." With mouths everywhere watering for ham and bacon, to sell these dishes the impression should be conveyed that a larger quantity of meat is being served, he said. To do this, he suggested the listings "Virginia ham with omelette" and "bacon and thin pancakes with maple butter."

Phone Charge Order Scored.

Glenwood J. Sherrard, Boston hotel operator and association chairman, criticized the federal communications commission for its order directing hotels to cease collecting a service charge on long distance telephone calls. He said the next move would be to eliminate service charges on local calls. The FCC order would cost hotels approximately $2,800,000 a year, he said.

"It's a sad fact that we should have a governmental agency such as the FCC attempting to run our business and furthermore doing it without even giving us a hearing," he said. "We charge a service fee for buying and selling a railroad ticket and a theater ticket and no one accuses us of being in the railroad or theater business. But we are charged with being in the telephone industry because we make a service charge on phone calls."

PRICE OF HOGS BREAKS WHEN RECEIPTS GAIN

A few more hogs were received in the Chicago stock yards yesterday to reverse the trend which had raised prices to the highest level in four months. The break was the first in eight days and erased 10 cents a hundred pounds from the prices of most good grades. Packing sows sold steady.

Extremely narrow demand met the small Friday run of cattle. Prices were weak to lower. Some cattle were held for Monday because of unsatisfactory bids. The best sale of steers was at $16.35. These beeves averaged 1,065 pounds. Prime long feds were not offered.

RAIL CONSIDERS DIESELS FOR ALL FREIGHT SERVICE

Conversion to Diesel power of the Gulf, Mobile, and Ohio railroad's freight service is under consideration, I. B. Tigrett, president, told stockholders yesterday in the company's annual report. Tigrett said a complete Dieselization, which would retire steam locomotives, would result in estimated annual savings of $800,000 to a million dollars.

Net earnings, as previously reported to the interstate commerce commission, reached $4,328,168 in 1943 compared with $4,030,216 in 1942. Funded debt was reduced $3,643,484.

Refrigerator Egg Prices Decline in Heavy Trading

Prices of refrigerator eggs for October delivery yesterday closed 0.35 cent lower at 39.25 cents per dozen in the heaviest trading this year on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Sales aggregated 64 cars. The heavy selling was credited to reports of large accumulations of shell eggs at country points.

MOVE TO MAKE 'LITTLE STEEL' FORMULA LAW

Seek to Meet Wage Demand Pressure.

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—With pressure mounting for higher war time wages, a movement developed on Capitol hill today to write into law the Little Steel formula curbing wages.

Rep. Gore.

Representatives Gore [D., Tenn.] and Monroney [D., Okla.] announced they would seek to add wage restraints to legislation prolonging the life of the office of price administration, due to expire June 30. Hearings on a measure to extend OPA began today before the senate banking committee.

The wage control issue drew attention at the Capitol as offstage AFL-CIO rivalry for prestige accelerated a campaign to overturn the Little Steel formula and the troubled war labor board turned to the White House for guidance.

Formula Made an Order.

That formula, first originated by the war labor board and since incorporated into an executive order by President Roosevelt, limits general wage increases to 15 per cent above the level of January, 1941.

The CIO's principal attack on it is thru the demand by the United Steel Workers for a wage increase above the formula. The AFL members of the WLB, on their part, have asked the board to recommend that Mr. Roosevelt lift the wage ceiling.

As a result, it was learned, public members of WLB have decided to seek a conference with the President for a general canvass of the situation and his advice.

Gore, who at the outbreak of war sponsored unsuccessfully a bill to impose over-all ceilings on prices, wages, and profits, said today that "for any control measure to be effective all the major economic segments must have similar restraints."

Joint Control Held Essential.

In announcing his decision to attempt inserting wage control into the price curbing measure, Monroney said:

"Control of inflation is impossible unless the spiraling of both prices and wages are stabilized together. Either one cannot advance without bringing pressure for increase of the other."

He said he would try to couple the wage formula with continuation of the use of subsidies in stabilizing consumer food costs. [The economic stabilization act stipulates that both prices and wages be maintained as nearly as possible at the levels of September, 1942.]

Both Gore and Monroney emphasized that in writing the formula into the pricing law much latitude must be permitted for adjustments to correct "gross inequities."

NEW YORK LIFE'S ASSETS AT YEAR END 3.3 BILLION

New York, March 10 (AP).—Assets of the New York Life Insurance company aggregated 3 billion 342 million dollars on Dec. 31, the company reported in its 99th annual statement.

George L. Harrison, president, said that, after deducting liabilities amounting to 3 billion 127 million dollars, surplus for general contingencies totaled 215 millions.

The company increased its holdings of government obligations by 341 million dollars in 1943 to bring the total to 1 billion 608 millions, or 48 per cent of total assets. Sales of new life insurance were 452 millions. Terminations of $7,340,000 were lowest in 24 years.

Paper Mill Gets Timber Rights on Canadian Tract

TORONTO, Ont., March 10 (AP).—The Marathon Paper Mill of Canada, Ltd., subsidiary of Marathon Paper Mills company of Rothschild, Wis., announced today it had acquired timber cutting rights on 2,500 square miles of land on Lake Superior near the Pic river. Erection of a paper mill and shipping facilities to cost $10,000,000 are planned.

Illinois Oil Production Drops 288,000 Barrels

Springfield, Ill., March 10 (AP).—Illinois oil production of 6,153,000 barrels in February was 288,000 barrels less than January output, the state geological survey reported today. One new pool, the Divide West in Jefferson county, and five new producing sands in previously developed pools were discovered last month.

Predict Congress Will Act to End 30 Million Tax Filings

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Chairman George [D., Ga.] of the senate finance committee predicted tonight an income tax simplification bill eliminating the filing of returns on incomes up to $5,000 will be passed and sent to the President within 60 days. This will affect some 30 million taxpayers, he told a press conference.

He and Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee said in a joint statement that every effort would be made to limit the new legislation to simplification of the individual income tax law. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau emphasized this need at a press conference a short time earlier.

Morgenthau Stand Lauded.

"We wish to commend him for this suggestion and to express our complete personal approval," said the George-Doughton statement, which emphasized, however, that the final decision rested with the two committees.

George told reporters he did not expect another revenue bill this year, or any changes in the current individual or corporate tax rates, except whatever slight variations might result in individual income tax burdens as a result of integrating bases and exemptions.

Predicting the simplification bill would be approved by the house committee next week, George said he was hopeful the necessity for filing income tax returns can be eliminated entirely for persons with incomes up to $5,000, thru the application of a graduated withholding tax on incomes over $3,000 a year. Present withholding rates would be retained for sub-$3,000 incomes under that plan.

No Effect on Current Return.

"I won't be optimistic enough to say that we can eliminate returns on incomes up to $10,000, but they may run beyond the $5,000 mark," George said.

He said an effort would be made to apply the withholding tax not only to wages and salaries, but to rents, interest, dividends, and royalties as well.

George declined to forecast whether the victory tax would be integrated with the regular income tax, but said at least it was planned to make the bases and exemptions the same.

Stocks Strong on Bidding for Motors, Rails

New York, March 10 (AP).—Motors, a few rails and some specialties, including liquors, were in demand in today's stock market, but many leaders were unable to participate materially.

Selective recoveries appeared at the start. Final gains of fractions to a point were well distributed with scattered issues recording wider upturns. Low priced utilities turned over in blocks of as high as 16,000 shares but made little gain. Dealings exceeded 1 million shares for the third time this week. Numerous new 1944 highs were recorded.

The urge to employ idle funds plus another batch of good earnings statements aided the rise. Pleasing war news propped peace issues. The approach of the March 15 tax date brought some liquidation to obtain cash. Distiller stocks were bolstered by the outlook for rising profits.

BOND MARKET UNEVEN.

New York, March 10 (AP).—In one of the quietest markets of the year, bonds continued uneven today. A few rails were in supply and dropped a point or more. One of these was New Haven 4½s. Moderately lower were St. Paul E 4½s of 1989, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Delaware and Hudson 4s, and M-K-T adjustment 5s.

Gainers included obligations of Atlantic Coast Line and Baltimore and Ohio, Columbia Gas 5s of 1961, Erie 4s, Great Northern 5s of 1973, and Illinois Central 4s of 1953.

Small dealings in the foreign list brought only minor changes in the more actively traded issues. United States government bonds were steady. Transactions totaled $8,241,500 compared with $8,674,200 yesterday.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices advanced again in active trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Among the volume leaders, Chicago corporation and Commonwealth Edison were exceptions to the trend and closed at small declines. Butler Brothers and Nash-Kelvinator were active and higher. Eight new highs for 1943-'44 included Eversharp and North West Utilities prior lien and $7 preferred.

FEBRUARY PEAK SET IN U. S. STEEL FINISHED GOODS

New York, March 10 (AP).—Shipments of finished steel products by subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation last month established a new February record at 1,755,772 net tons, compared with 1,730,787 in January and 1,691,592 in February, 1943, the corporation reported today.

Shipments in the first two months of 1944 also were at a new high of 3,486,559 net tons, 108,974 more than in the 1943 period.

Wholesale Price Index Shows Slight Decline

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—The bureau of labor statistics' wholesale price index declined 0.2 per cent last week below a week earlier, chiefly because of lower prices for live stock, grains, cotton, and certain fruits and vegetables.

DEPARTMENT STORES' OFFICIALS ASK OPA TO END PRICE LIMITATION

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—Officials of the W. T. Grant company department stores, New York, insisted today that the OPA eliminate its "highest price line limitation" and be prohibited by congress from inserting the clause in future regulations.

The officials told the Smith committee investigating executive agencies that the regulation, identified in the trade as MTR 330, was driving low cost clothing and other items from the market.

R. A. Seidel, controler of the Grant company, explained that the regulation prohibited a store which sold dresses at a top price of $2 in March 1942 from selling dresses above that price. He contended this tended to drive firms such as his out of the dress business because they were unable, because of rising costs, to obtain dresses to sell under their highest price limitation which would be acceptable to consumers.

Byrnes H. Gitchell, acting director of the OPA consumer goods price division, said the highest price line limitation was one of the most troublesome questions to be settled and that it would be given special consideration by an OPA committee next Thursday.

INCOME VOLUME PAID INDIVIDUALS IS 16 PCT. LARGER

Washington, D. C., March 10 (AP).—January income payments to individuals totaling 12 billion 542 million dollars were 16 per cent higher than a year earlier, 48 per cent above January, 1942, more than double those of January, 1939, but 7 per cent lower than December's record total of 13 billion 469 millions, the commerce department said today.

DEMAND BRISK FOR CASH LOANS TO MEET TAXES

War Worker Needs Reported Heavy.

A brisk but not unduly large demand for loans has developed among small taxpayers as the March 15 income tax deadline draws near, a survey of Chicago lending agencies disclosed yesterday.

The smaller downtown banks, which have active personal loan departments, reported demand somewhat larger than a year ago. Most of the borrowing is by white collar workers whose salaries have not kept pace with the earnings of factory workers, the banks said.

Small loan companies, however, reported only negligible borrowing to meet the income tax. One loan executive said there was a small demand from individuals who borrowed minor amounts to avoid redeeming war bonds.

Rush Taxes Facilities.

The manager of a credit union serving one of the city's big war plants said the rush of borrowing reached such proportions in the last few days that clerical facilities were nearly overtaxed. Tax borrowing by plant workers this year is about three times as large as in 1943, and demand from plant workers is as heavy as that from office workers, he said. Many of the credit union members are cashing war bonds in order to pay their income tax, he said.

By contrast, the credit union manager in an establishment not engaged in war work reported the demand this year is less than in 1943, and comes chiefly from mechanical and laboring employes whose incomes have been swelled by overtime pay.

The chief loan officer of one of Chicago's largest banks said there was no evidence of tax borrowing in his bank, either by individuals or corporations.

Not Confirmed by Treasury.

Loan officers and credit union managers said most of the tax borrowers had failed to prepare for March 15 because they expected the withholding tax to take care of their obligation. In numerous cases married couples were forced to borrow because the wife went to work in 1943 and the 20 per cent withholding tax in effect only for the last half of the year was far from adequate to cover her full year's tax.

SEC Postpones Hearing on Midland Utility Plan

Philadelphia, Pa., March 10 (AP).—The securities and exchange commission today postponed from March 31 to April 18 arguments on the joint plan of reorganziation of Midland United company and Midland Utilities company.

MOVIE OWNERS WIN $630,000 IN 'BIG 9' CASE

Charge of Favoritism Upheld by Jury.

Attorneys for nine major film producers, exhibitors, and distributors indicated last night an appeal would be taken from the verdict of a federal jury yesterday assessing them $360,000 on charges of monopolizing the Chicago theater business.

The verdict was returned before Judge Michael L. Igoe in favor of the owners of the Jackson Park theater in their damage and injunction suit against the major companies. The suit charged that the major concerns discriminated against the smaller and independent theaters by favoring their own affiliated theaters in the distribution of films in violation of the Sherman antitrust act.

Defendants in Case.

The defendants named in the judgment award were: Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Balaban & Katz corporation; Warner Brothers, Inc.; Warner Brothers Circuit Management corporation; Warner Brothers Theaters, Inc.; Vitagraph, Inc.; R. K. O.-Radio Pictures, Inc.; Twentieth Century-Fox Film company, and Loew's, Inc.

Owners of the Jackson Park theater who filed the suit are Mrs. Florence B. Bigelow, Mrs. Marian B. Korber of Fort Wayne, Ind.; John E. Bloom of Toledo, O., and William C. Bloom, children of Edward Bloom, who gave the theater to them.

During the trial, Mrs. Bigelow testified she and other theater owners were willing to bid up to $3,000 a month for film rentals but were unable to secure the newer films. "I want to buy films the way I buy hats," she said. "I want to pick the pictures I want but I can't do that because the market isn't free."

Atty. Thomas C. McConnell, counsel for the Jackson Park theater, hailed the verdict as a "great victory for the little fellow—the independent operator." He said that if the verdict is upheld it will break up the alleged monopoly of the major concerns thruout the country.

Injunction to Be Sought.

He said that on the basis of the jury award, Judge Igoe will be asked to issue an injunction forbidding the defendant concerns from continuing their alleged discrimination against the independent operators in the distribution of film.

Attorneys for the defendants were allowed 10 days to file a motion for a new trial. They indicated that if the motion is overruled an appeal will be taken. The defendant concerns denied they conspired against the independent operators.

Help Wanted Ads Omitted Only On Saturday

Because of newsprint restrictions, the Tribune temporarily omits Help Wanted ads on Saturdays. This enables the Tribune to utilize to the best advantage of readers and advertisers the total weekly supply of paper allocated to such advertising under the Tribune's conservation program.

For Chicago's biggest job directory, consult the big want ad section in tomorrow's Sunday Tribune—which prints twice as many job offers as all other Chicago Sunday newspapers combined.

ALLIED STRATEGY OF SOUTHWEST PACIFIC
